DEMOCRATS WHO LIKE ROOSEVELT JUSTIFIED BY FEARS OF PARKER.

Oscar S. Straus Says Platform Adopted at St. Louis Is Viewed with Suspicion by the Men Who Are Determined to Purge Their Party of Bryanism and Unsound Money Theories.

PRESIDENT FOR PEACE, NOT A WAR SEEKER.

Present Administration Declared to Have Done More in the Interests of Universal Arbitration than All the Rest in the History of the United States Put Together.

The next article in this series, to be published tomorrow morning, will be by Dr. Albert Shaw, editor of the American Review of Reviews and author of many works on political science, economics, and municipal governments.

BY OSCAR S. STRAUS,

United States Minister to Turkey Under President Cleveland.

HOW the young men should vote on the 8th of November next?

Categorically, I would advise them, in the language of Col. Ingersoll, who, speaking to young men in the Garfield campaign, said: "If your father votes the democratic ticket, and your uncles vote the democratic ticket, that is no reason why you should vote the democratic ticket—that is disgrace enough for one family."

I have been an independent democrat all my life. Of course, I voted for Cleveland three times because he was sound, wise, and had at all times the courage of his patriotic convictions. He led the opposition party on a platform of principles to victory, as opposed to its present straddling and shifting professions. He made some mistakes, but what president has not made them? He made not more than Washington and fewer than Jefferson. The democratic party as an organization, after eight years of power, forsook principles and followed Bryan's silver heresies and destructive vagaries, inebriated by his engaging personality and the eloquent "exuberance of his verbosity." Many sound democrats had the wisdom and the courage to subordinate party to patriotism and voted for McKinley. I am yet to meet any democrat who followed this course who regrets his decision. They hoped that democracy would regain its sanity, and that in 1904 it would return sane and sound, and emphasize its adherence to honest standards by advocating sound money. But what do we find? The committee on resolutions, to which was referred the draft platform containing a sound money plank, cast out sound money by a vote of 35 to 15, and this the convention confirmed without a dissenting voice.

The New York World came out the next morning with the statement: "By a series of compromises the committee on resolutions made up its platform without a word of reference to the question that for ten years has been the paramount political issue, and twice caused the defeat of the democratic party. . . . Bryan again demonstrated his power and influence. Though hopelessly defeated in his attempts to influence the nomination of the candidate for president, he fought all through the night and triumphed in the end over the forces of sound money."

Surrender to Free Silver.

Now, what has transpired since? Has the platform been changed? Certainly not. Has Bryan's victory been changed? Certainly not. But two days later, after the convention had made its nomination and many of the members were on their homeward journey, a telegram was received from the nominee that he regarded the gold standard as firmly established, and that if elected he would not disturb it. Before this telegram was received Judge Parker's chief sponsor, Senator Hill, in answer to a direct question as to Judge Parker's views on sound money, said he did not know. After the receipt of the telegram, Senator Tillman (as reported in the New York Times) said: "I cast no aspersions upon Judge Parker's character. His action is manly, but we of the south have been deceived. We should have known all this before, not at the ninth hour." Is it not charitable to assume that Senator Hill had the best reasons for not knowing what Judge Parker's views were? Is it not charitable and logical to conclude that the reason he could not know was because Judge Parker himself did not know what his views might be? It is fair to assume what they had been, as he twice supported Bryan.

So much for the preconvention sound money of the democratic nominee. As to the platform as a whole, I will quote Bourke Cockran's characterization of it (New York Times, 10th of July). He said: "The platform as adopted is weak, windy, wordy, ambiguous, and is unworthy of its author. To my mind the absence of a gold plank virtually means reaffirming the Chicago and Kansas City platforms." I do not know whether Mr. Cockran has since changed his mind—the platform has not changed.

It will be said, and rightly so, these are only negative reasons why one should not vote for the democratic nominee. I will now briefly outline affirmative reasons why young men especially, and mature men as well, should vote for Roosevelt.

The brilliant populist candidate said that the democratic nominee straddled the gold issue, the tariff, Panama, the Philippines—in fact, straddled everything—while Mr. Roosevelt only straddles the war horse. I would like to add that whenever he does straddle his horse he does so only to take a constitutional.

Why Democrats Admire Roosevelt.

The democrats, I think I am justified in saying, admire the man Roosevelt as high minded, pure hearted, courageously honest, and capable. No one has ever attributed to him any but the best and purest motives; but that as president he is said to be unsafe, that he rushes precipitously to conclusions, that he has trampled upon the constitution, and that with him in the president's chair we are in hourly danger of becoming involved in war to gratify his imperialistic ambitions. On the other hand, Mr. Olney finds fault with the president's action in respect to the Philippines, the Kishineff massacre, Turkish massacres, and Roumanian persecutions, on the legal side, that there is no basis under the national constitution for the exercise of humanitarianism or the principles of altruism.

The argument of unconstitutionalism was hurled at the best of our presidents—at Washington, Jefferson, and at Abraham Lincoln. At Washington during the Anglo-French war, when he issued his proclamation of neutrality; at Jefferson for concluding negotiations for the Louisiana purchase; and at Lincoln for suspending the writ of habeas corpus, and again for that purely humanitarian act of issuing the emancipation proclamation. The strict constructionist of proslavery times could not find any humanitarian elements in the constitution; but Sumner, Seward, and Lincoln found the constitution embedded in that "higher law" of right and humanity which was the basis of its creation, and which surrounded it like the blue of the heavens, which envelops the most conspicuous stars and causes them to shine all the brighter.

Roosevelt for Peace, Not War.

But it is claimed that Roosevelt is dangerous; he is imbued with the war spirit, and if reelected he will feel himself much freer to indulge this craving of his for glory and greatness. Let us for a moment examine this claim, or, more correctly, democratic bogy to frighten timid voters. There has been no time in the history of our country when our relations with the whole world were more friendly than they have been during the entire administration of President Roosevelt. Nor has there been any period in our history when the influence of the United States in the councils of nations was as great and potent for peace as now. How has that influence made itself felt? I will answer this in the words of John Hay, his great secretary of state:

"He and his predecessor have done more in the interest of universal peace than any other two presidents since our government was formed. They have done more for the cause of arbitration than all the rest put together. They have composed more difficulties by friendly negotiation; they have settled more questions that threatened our peace; they have made more treaties, and more mutually advantageous ones, than any other presidents in our history. Theodore Roosevelt gave to The Hague court of arbitration the breath of new life when death threatened it. His influence, constantly and quietly exerted among our sister nations, has often dissuaded from violence and led to peaceful solutions.

"He is now preparing a set of arbitration treaties with all the countries which desire them. In compliance with the call of the Interparliamentary union, which had confidence in his discretion and his love of peace, he is trying to induce the powers to come together once more in conference at The Hague to concert measures for the peace and welfare of the world."

Right Policy in the Philippines.

As to the Philippines, they came to us by the fortunes of war, a war which the democrats in congress were as active in bringing on as their republican colleagues, and against the well known wishes of President McKinley. What is the difference between the policy the democrats would pursue and the one the republicans are pursuing? As I read the platforms, neither party is for giving them up. The democrats say we should now promise them independence; the republicans say a promise now would only complicate the problem of government and delay its fulfillment, that everything possible is being done to give the Philippines as large a measure of self-government as they can make use of. Roosevelt says on this point in his address of acceptance: "We have established in the islands a government by Americans, assisted by Filipinos. We are steadily striving to transform this into self-government by Filipinos, assisted by Americans."

If President Roosevelt has committed any executive act not authorized by the laws

SAYS CHICAGO IS SLANGY.

Prince Louis Philippe Discusses American Characteristics.

DELIGHTED WITH HIS TRIP.

Found Cab Hire Expensive, but Discovers Much to Admire.

NewYork, Nov. 4.—[Special.]—Louis Marie Philippe and Antoine Gaston Philippe, princes of Orleans, sons of Prince Louis Philippe Gaston, Comte d'Eu, and Isabella, Princess de Bragance and daughter of Dom Pedro, late emperor of Brazil, got back to New York today after a trip through the United States. They have been in this country about three months and in that time visited Boston, Lenox, Newport, Chicago, St. Louis, and Philadelphia.

Saw Horse Show in Chicago.

Concerning their Chicago visit Prince Louis said:

"Chicago is a big, bustling city. We were there for the horse show and a fine show it was, too."

"Yes," said Prince Antoine, "we saw there the American harness horse on his native heath. He is a fine animal. You know we have been exporting American harness horses to Austria for the trotting races. The American style is a feature of our sport."

"We found it hard," resumed Prince Louis, "getting on in Chicago. Somehow we couldn't well understand the vernacular, that is the vernacular of the streets, cars, and hotels. They use so many Americanisms there—what you call slang, we call patois—we could not understand it. They are difficult, your Americanisms.

Thinks Americans Are Courteous.

"We have had a fine time and we have been treated handsomely by your people. You Americans are so cordial, so courteous, so hospitable.

"America is a great country. There is one thing that surprised us most agreeably. We had heard before coming here that almost everything was frightfully expensive in America, but we have found it quite the contrary. Generally speaking, we had to pay no more for things in this country than we pay for the same things at our home in Vienna, Paris, or in London—except for cabs—your cab tariff does seem high to Europeans.

Theaters Like Those of Europe.

"Take your theaters, for example. It costs practically the same to occupy a seat in the orchestra here that it does in Paris, Vienna, and London. The New York theaters are about the same as those of London, much finer than those of Paris, but not nearly so roomy as those of Vienna. A man can get much more of what you call elbow room in a Vienna theater than he can in a playhouse in New York, but I realize land is not so dear in Vienna as it is here.

"As for the performances, we saw nothing anywhere in Europe so delightfully light and amusing as we found in New York. We go in for heavier things on the other side. If Europe wants to be amused it must come to the states and go to the theater. And American stage girls—why, there is none in all Europe to compare with them.

Visited Lenox and Newport.

"We went from here to Lenox and had a delightful, quiet time. It is a beautiful country, that, and we shall always remember its beauties. We were late for the Newport season, but we enjoyed ourselves there.

"We saw at the St. Louis exposition about what we saw in Paris two years ago. But the electric light effects are wonderful. At evening, when one looks down from the big wheel upon the exposition grounds it is like looking at a fairy city just coming out of the mist. That is beautiful and worth the trip over the ocean to see.

"In Philadelphia we were delightfully entertained. That is a fine, quiet, and beautiful old city, and the people were charming."

No Claims on French Throne.

Prince Louis is 26 years old and Prince Antoine 23. Both are fair haired, have blue eyes, are about 5 feet 10 inches in height, and well set up.

It is a mistaken notion that the young men are old line pretenders to the throne of France. They are rather pretenders to the throne of Brazil. Should the empire ever be restored in Brazil the elder of the two young men, Prince Pierre d'Alcontara, would be heir to the throne from which Dom Pedro was driven. The whole family is now banished.

PARKER IS TARRED WITH TRUST STICK

Begs His Friend Odell to Sell Him Shipbuilding Bonds and Gets $25,000 Worth.

ALSO OWNS SOME STEEL.

Governor of New York Makes Direct Charge, Says He Can Get Proof in Ten Hours.

New York, Nov. 4.—[Special.]—Gov. Odell, in a public speech, tonight declared that Alton B. Parker had owned stock in the shipbuilding trust and had assisted in the promotion of the steel trust.

"I said in a previous speech," asserted the governor, "that Judge Parker had been connected with trusts. I know it.

"I know that Judge Parker had $25,000 of shipbuilding stock, and the reason I know it is because he came to me and asked me to let him have it. I know it, because I instructed my agent to give it to him and he paid for it.

"I can produce the documentary proof in a few hours by going to Newburg, where it is.

Helped Promote Steel Trust.

"And this is not the only trust Judge Parker assisted in promoting. I know he had stock in the steel trust, and I will furnish the proof, and do it in fifteen minutes after I get to Newburg. A man who is attacking the trusts ought to come into court with clean hands."

The governor's reiteration of his charges against the democratic candidate is accompanied by a great deal of confirmatory circumstantial evidence.

Odell in Position to Know.

It was the governor who began suit against the promoters and underwriters of the Shipbuilding company after the value of the stock fell to almost nothing.

The Odells have been frequent visitors at the Parker home at Rosemount and the Parkers always have been heartily welcomed at the Odell home in Newburg and at the executive mansion in Albany since Odell became governor. On many important matters Gov. Odell consulted Chief Judge Parker, his relative by marriage, before coming to a decision.

The governor's version of the stock transaction is that Mr. Parker came to him and asked him for some stock. This transaction he told about in the words already quoted.

Objects to Parker's Posing.

It was at the outset of the governor's speech that the promised "hot stuff" came out. After being introduced by Capt. Goddard and getting the usual demonstration, he said:

"I have stood all the calumny heaped upon my more or less devoted head without saying a word, but when I've seen the tactics indulged in by the democratic party; when I see a man parading around posing as a trust buster, knowing what I know to be the case, I considered it my duty to inform my fellow citizens that it is not an honest appeal, but the kind that seeks only to influence you for the time being to win support for the democratic candidate.

"When I found this onslaught under way I thought I'd tell a thing or two myself.

"I have said that Judge Parker had been connected with trusts, and I know it. Today Mr. Samuel Untermyer in an interview says that I don't know what I'm talking about. It happens this time that I do."

Then, after making the declaration about the trust stock, Gov. Odell said:

Should Come with Clean Hands.

"The man who attacks the president of the United States, alleging that he's protecting trusts, ought to come to court with clean hands. I don't believe he should pose as being against the trusts when he himself has been assisting their promotion.

"The only thing Theodore Roosevelt ever has done to trusts has been to compel the trusts to obey the laws. His courage has commanded the respect of those opposed to him. Honesty always wins. Theodore Roosevelt has 100 per cent honesty in his makeup."

"Soak 'em again, Ben," yelled some of the crowd, but Odell dropped the trust question and went on to say his administration had done nothing to be ashamed of.

All afternoon Gov. Odell was hinting darkly at the Fifth Avenue hotel about his coming revelation concerning Parker's connection with the United States Shipbuilding company.

Decided in His Own Favor.

"Judge Parker," said the governor-chairman, "has inspired a statement that no shipbuilding trust case ever came before him while on the bench. In that statement he evades the point I raised in my speeches on Thursday night.

"What I stated was that Judge Parker was mixed up in trusts, and that while he was so interested he rendered a decision in a trust case that bore materially on the shipbuilding matter, which affected his own interests, as one of those concerned in the shipbuilding company.

"Judge Parker wrote the opinion in the decision which was rendered which made it possible for investors who had been swindled by companies like the shipbuilding company to pursue the promoters and get redress. It was on that decision that I brought my suit against the shipbuilding trust."

"I repeat that Judge Parker was an underwriter in the shipbuilding trust, and while the opinion I refer to did not directly bear on that trust, yet it was of such a character, in relation to another trust, as to affect the Shipbuilding company which Judge Parker had helped to underwrite."

"Do you mean that it was understood the decision would affect the shipbuilding promotion?" he was asked.

"Certainly it was," he replied.

PARKER'S CHARGES OF BLACKMAIL DECLARED FALSE BY ROOSEVELT.

President, in an Address to the American People, Replies to "Slanderous Accusations" Against Mr. Cortelyou and Himself Made by the Democratic Candidate.

NO LEVIES ON OR PLEDGES MADE TO THE TRUSTS.

Act of Infamy Contained in Assertions Repeatedly Made by the St. Louis Nominee Declared to Be Unqualifiedly and Atrociously Untrue—Is Under No Promise Except to Give Every Man a Square Deal.

President Roosevelt last night made the following signed statement to the American people in answer to the charges made against himself and Mr. Cortelyou in public speeches by Mr. Parker, the Democratic candidate for the presidency:

TO THE AMERICAN PEOPLE.

WHITE HOUSE, WASHINGTON, D. C.
Nov. 4, 1904.

Certain slanderous accusations as to Mr. Cortelyou and myself have been repeated time and again by Judge Parker, the candidate of his party for the office of president. He has neither produced nor can produce any proof of their truth; yet he has not withdrawn them; and as his position gives them wide currency I speak now, lest the silence of self-respect be misunderstood.

Mr. Parker's charges are in effect that the president of the United States and Mr. Cortelyou, formerly Mr. Cleveland's executive clerk, then Mr. McKinley's and my secretary, then secretary of commerce and labor, and now chairman of the republican national committee, have been in a conspiracy to blackmail corporations, Mr. Cortelyou using the knowledge gained while he was secretary of the department of commerce and labor to extort money from the corporations, and I, the president, having appointed him for this especial purpose. The gravamen of these charges lies in the assertion that the corporations have been blackmailed into contributing, and in the implication, which in one or two of Mr. Parker's speeches has taken the form practically of an assertion, that they have been promised certain immunities or favors or have been assured that they would receive some kind of improper consideration in view of their contributions.

Parker's Statements Devoid of Truth.

That contributions have been made to the republican committee, as contributions have been made to the democratic committee, is not the question at issue.

Mr. Parker's assertion is in effect that such contributions have been made for improper motives, either in consequence of threats, or in consequence of improper promises, direct or indirect, on the part of the recipients.

Mr. Parker knows best whether this is true of the contributions to his campaign fund which have come through his trusted friends and advisers who represent the great corporate interests that stand behind him.

But there is not one particle of truth in the statement as regards anything that has gone on in the management of the republican campaign.

Calls Parker's Charges "Monstrous."

Mr. Parker's accusations against Mr. Cortelyou and myself are monstrous. If true they would brand both of us forever with infamy; and inasmuch as they are false heavy must be the condemnation of the man making them.

I chose Mr. Cortelyou as chairman of the national committee after having failed successively to persuade Mr. Elihu Root, Mr. W. Murray Crane, and Mr. Cornelius N. Bliss to accept the position. I chose him with extreme reluctance, because I could ill spare him from the cabinet. But I felt that he possessed the high integrity which I demanded in the man who was to manage my campaign.

I am content that Mr. Parker and I should be judged by the public on the characters of the two men whom we chose to manage our campaigns; he by the character of his nominee, Mr. Thomas Taggart, and I by the character of Mr. Cortelyou.

Brands the Charges as Falsehoods.

The assertion that Mr. Cortelyou had any knowledge gained while in any official position whereby he was enabled to secure and did secure any contribution from any corporation is a falsehood.

The assertion that there has been any blackmail, direct or indirect, by Mr. Cortelyou or by me is a falsehood.

The assertion that there has been made in my behalf and by my authority by Mr. Cortelyou or by any one else any pledge or promise, or that there has been any understanding as to future immunities or benefits, in recognition of any contribution from any source is a wicked falsehood.

Base and Unworthy Personalities.

That Mr. Parker should desire to avoid the discussion of principles I can well understand, for it is but the bare truth to say that he has not attacked us on any matter of principle or upon any action of the government save after first misstating that principle or that action. But I cannot understand how any honorable man, a candidate for the highest office in the gift of the people, can take refuge not merely in personalities, but in such base and unworthy personalities.

If I deemed it necessary to support my flat denial by any evidence I would ask all men of common sense to ponder well what has been done in this campaign by Mr. Cortelyou, and to compare it with what Mr. Parker himself did when he was managing Mr. Hill's campaign for governor; and to compare what has been done as regards the great corporations and moneyed interests under this administration with what was done under the last democratic administration, while Mr. Richard Olney was the attorney general; I would ask all honest men whether they seriously deem it possible that the course this administration has taken in every matter from the Northern Securities suit to the settlement of the anthracite coal strike is compatible with any theory of public behavior, save the theory of doing exact justice to all men without fear and without favoritism; I would ask all honest and fair minded men to remember that the agents through whom

I have worked are Mr. Knox and Mr. Moody in the department of justice, Mr. Cortelyou in the department of commerce and labor, and Mr. Garfield in the bureau of corporations, and that no such act of infamy as Mr. Parker charges could have been done without all these men being parties to it.

Unqualifiedly and Atrociously False.

The statements made by Mr. Parker are unqualifiedly and atrociously false. As Mr. Cortelyou has said to me more than once during this campaign, if elected I shall go into the presidency unhampered by any pledge, promise, or understanding of any kind, sort, or description, save my promise, made openly to the American people, that so far as in my power lies I shall see to it that every man has a square deal, no less and no more.

Theodore Roosevelt

PARKER WILL REPLY TO LETTER TONIGHT.

New York, Nov. 5, 1 a. m.—[Special.]—After Judge Parker returned to the Hotel Seville from a private dinner at 12:30 o'clock this morning a copy of President Roosevelt's statement was given him. Judge Parker took it to his room to read it.

He declined to be seen or to discuss the letter, but it was announced by his secretary, Mr. McCausland, that he will reply to President Roosevelt tonight in a speech at the meeting of the Kings County Democratic club in Brooklyn. This is a radical change in Mr. Parker's plans, as six hours previously he announced that he would make no more speeches.

Judge Parker also declined to discuss Gov. Odell's charges that he owned shipbuilding bonds.

It is understood Mr. Parker will devote his whole speech tonight to a reply to President Roosevelt. On Sunday or Monday he will make some comment on Gov. Odell's charges.

ORIGINATOR OF "FALSEHOOD" NOW TALKS OF PROOF.

New York, Nov. 5, 2 a. m.—[Special.]—The New York Times, which is the father of the allegations adopted by Parker and denounced by President Roosevelt as wicked, monstrous falsehoods, is in high fettle this morning over the president's statement. It declares the democrats welcome it as a master opportunity and alleges "that the democrats have in fact baited the president into a position where he may be crushed on the eve of the election."

The Times alleges the democratic leaders have five specific cases where money has been secured or attempted to be secured from trusts whose business has been a matter of official inquiry by the bureau of corporations in the department of commerce and labor during the period when Mr. Cortelyou was at the head of that department. These five cases are said to be supported with affidavits and the whole story is said to be fully in print ready for the final coup.

Just why all this proof was withheld while demands were being made for any supporting evidence of the charges and when its publication would have prevented the president from making such a statement as the one given out last night, the Times fails to say.

PARKER METHODS DECLARED INFAMOUS

Former Secretary of War Root, in Speech in New York, Says the Democratic Candidate Has Descended to Contemptible Level in His Attacks on Roosevelt and Cortelyou.

New York, Nov. 4.—[Special.]—"It is for you to choose," said ex-Secretary Root at the close of his speech at the great republican meeting in Durland's Riding academy this evening. "It is for you to say which you prefer—President Roosevelt and Mr. Cortelyou or the standerers by inference who have been making a compromise with decency."

It seemed even before this closing climax of Mr. Root's address that the audience in the riding academy had done about everything conceivable in the way of whoops and cheers, but when the ex-secretary of war closed his reply to Candidate Parker it seemed for a time as if the audience would go sheer daft with its own enthusiasm. It shouted, yelled, and whooped, and kept at it, seemingly growing worse with every instant of semi-delirium.

Root Repeatedly Cheered.

Mr. Root, who had taken his seat, was called for, bellowed for, and shrieked for again and again. Every time he got up with a flushed and smiling face and bowed the crowd seemed to let out another link of its lung power.

It in a way was the windup of the republican campaign in the city—this big Durland Riding academy meeting. It was pretty generally understood that Mr. Root in his speech would have something to say about Candidate Parker's charge that the president and Mr. Cortelyou have been engaged in a conspiracy to levy blackmail from corporations by exposing the secrets which the president and Cortelyou have been able to learn by virtue of their offices.

Mr. Root's final reference to the newspapers which have been most active and persistent in circulating this "slander by inference," as Mr. Root termed the charge against Cortelyou, was greeted with a storm of hoots and jeers.

The first mention of Cortelyou's name was greeted with an outburst of cheers and applause second only to that which had been given the name of the president himself.

Parker "Man on Horseback."

The former secretary of war, in opening his speech, said:

"I am glad to see so many men and women of New York who dare to come to this Riding academy tonight, because it shows that you are not afraid of a 'man on horseback.'

"In these last days of the campaign the democratic candidate for the presidency has abandoned the course of conduct which he had marked out for himself, has left the dignified retirement of his home, and taken the stump in his own behalf.

"The purpose which he had formed to observe the rule of propriety customary to candidates for the highest office in our land had been officially declared. It seemed to be as irrevocably fixed in his mind as the gold standard after his nomination. It has been completely abandoned, and these last days have seen the candidate rushing from hall to hall in the vortex of a whirlwind campaign.

Lost Cause Forces Change.

"The change was coincident with a general public expression of relief by all republicans—and by most democrats in private conversation—that the democratic cause was lost, and it was coincident with the return of David B. Hill from the west.

"It is impossible to resist the conclusion that the change of method was the result of that belief, and was an eleventh hour expedient to revive or retrieve the fortunes of a fallen cause.

"The change of method has been paralleled by a change in the substance and matter of the candidate's views. He has not only departed from the dignified course which he laid out for himself in conduct, he has departed from the sober and moderate expressions which brought him upon many points into substantial accord with the republican platform and republican principles.

Speech of Acceptance Sape.

"In his speech of acceptance he said that the Philippines had come to us as an accident of war, 'and we are not at liberty to disregard the responsibility which thus came to us, but that responsibility will be best subserved by preparing the islanders as rapidly as possible for self-government and giving to them the assurances that it will come as soon as they are reasonably prepared for it.'

"That was the republican platform, that the republican practice, and that the republican promise. But now, under his new departure, Judge Parker says:

"'When we annexed the Philippine islands it was done not only with complete disregard of the rights and wishes of the people thereof, a disregard as absolute as ever characterized any of the conquests of the Roman empire, or of the French empire under Napoleon, but also with a hardly less absolute disregard of the spirit of our political institutions.'

"If he means what he says, if he believes what he says, then it will be his duty immediately to insist upon the abandonment of the Philippines. In his speech of acceptance he declares in favor of continuing there until we have fitted these people for self-government.

Goes Astray on the Stump.

"In his stump speeches now he declares that we are there by violation of their right and of our principles; and, if he is honest in what he says, then he will immediately proceed, if elected to the presidency, to withdraw American troops and American sovereignty from the Philippines.

"In his speech of acceptance he says, after speaking of the army and navy: 'Of course, such armament as may be necessary for the security of the country and the protection of the rights of its citizens at home and abroad must be maintained. Any other course would be not only false economy but pusillanimous.'

Raves at Army and Navy.

"In his letter of acceptance on the 25th of September, his only reference to the army and navy is to say: 'We are justly proud of the officers and men of our army and navy,' and then he declares that they have been unjustly treated in respect to promotion and discipline.

"Now in this whirlwind of oratory he has made it plain that if president he will stop the upbuilding of our navy, he will reduce our army to the point it was before the war with Spain. He will stop the completion of our coast fortifications and he will leave America as helpless as China, to depend on the good nature and the forbearance of foreign powers for our protection and defense.

"Let me read you, in contrast with what the present democratic candidates says, the words of Mr. Tilden, in a letter to Mr. Carlisle, written on the 1st of December, 1885. Mr. Tilden said:

"'While we may afford to be deficient in the means of offense, we cannot afford to be defenseless. The notoriety of the fact that we have neglected the ordinary precautions of defense invites want of consideration in our diplomacy in justice, arrogance, and insult at the hands of foreign nations. It is impossible to foresee in the recent scramble of the European powers for acquisition of colonies how soon an occasion may arise for our putting into practice the Monroe doctrine. It is clear that there ought to be some relation between our assertion of that doctrine and our preparation to maintain it.'

"Unless Mr. Parker is wiser and abler and a safer guide in statesmanship than Samuel J. Tilden, then the idle declarations of his stump oratory must go down before the wise warnings of that great fellow citizen of ours.

"Mr. Parker in his speech of acceptance roared as gently as a sucking dove when he came to the subject of trusts. The common law is enough, he said. No trust lawyer could have devised a scheme of more complete immunity than that, for that meant that henceforth the federal government should be bound hand and foot as to all trusts and combinations of capital.

Descends to Infamous Methods.

"On the 31st of October, in a public speech, Mr. Parker reflected upon the personal honor and integrity of President Roosevelt and descended to personalities, so grave, so infamous if not sustained that it is impossible to avoid a reference to them.

"On that day and in several speeches which he has made since, Mr. Parker has charged in substance that President Roosevelt and the chairman of the republican national committee had in substance entered into a conspiracy to secure a great campaign fund by blackmailing the great corporations and the trusts, through the use of some information obtained by Mr. Cortelyou as secretary of commerce and labor, and by means of assuring to the trusts the direct control of the government of the United States."

Parker Charges Improper Motive.

After quoting Judge Parker's statement on this subject, Mr. Root continued:

"There must have been some improper motive or means in the contribution. The judge says Mr. Cortelyou, as secretary of commerce and labor, got into the secrets of the corporations, and Mr. Cortelyou, he says, by this organized importunity—that is, the organized importunity was Mr. Cortelyou, who had been secretary of the department of commerce, being chairman of the national committee; and he also in other statements, that he makes, indicates that those trusts have obtained promises or pledges in regard to the future treatment which will be accorded to them by the administration in case of Mr. Roosevelt's election.

Charges Absolutely False.

"Both of these charges, in both respects, are absolutely and totally false. There is not one word, one scintilla of truth in either of them. Neither the department, nor Mr. Cortelyou, nor the president had any information or secret of any corporation or trust that you, or I, or any one of us have not.

"Mr. Cortelyou resigned from the department of commerce and labor in June last never to return to it, and he can have no more to do with corporations in the future than Mr. Thomas Taggart would have if Mr. Parker were to be elected.

Cortelyou Does Not Collect.

"Mr. Cortelyou's chief duty is not to collect funds for the purpose of securing the election of the president and he has not performed any such duty. He has had little or nothing to do with the collection of funds. He has been attending to the difficult and manifold duties of managing a presidential campaign all over the United States; and the moneys to pay expenses of that campaign has been raised by committees appointed in each of the principal cities of the union under the direction of Mr. Cornelius N. Bliss."

DEMOCRATS HEAR FAIRBANKS TALK.

He Delivers Fifteen Speeches in Southern Indiana Mining Towns.

TELLS WHY ALL ARE BUSY

Declares Republican Policies Have Caused Enormous Demand for Coal.

Evansville, Ind., Nov. 4.—Senator Charles W. Fairbanks today covered the territory in southern Indiana lying between Terre Haute and Evansville. The senator made fifteen speeches during the day's trip—at Farmersburg, Shelburn, Sullivan, Linton, Odon, Elnora, Washington, Vincennes, Princeton, Owensville, Cynthiana, Poseyville, Mount Vernon, and Evansville. The evening meeting in this city, which was notably large and enthusiastic, was presided over by Congressman James A. Hemenway.

The day's tour was mostly through the coal mining region of Indiana, and the miners in many instances formed a large part of the senator's audiences. To them he emphasized the desirability of a continuance of republican rule, because, he said, it was under republican administration that all the prosperity had come to the mines, the farms, and the factories during the last seven years.

Talks to Many Democrats.

A large portion of the country through which Senator Fairbanks passed today is regarded as the democratic stronghold of Indiana, and there were occasional cheers for Parker, but in the main the receptions accorded the senator were cordial and enthusiastic.

Tomorrow the special train is scheduled to stop at Jeffersonville, Scottsburg, Seymour, Columbus, Shelbyville, Rushville, Connersville, Newcastle, Muncie, Red Key, and Anderson. The evening meeting will be held in the senator's home city, Indianapolis.

Points to Prosperity of Mines.

At Sullivan Senator Fairbanks said in part: "I have seen as I came here this morning many new towns which have sprung up almost as by magic. They have not just happened. They have not sprung up as the mere result of chance. They have come into being in response to some need, they have been erected responsive to some law. They were not built under democratic policies or administrations. It remained for republican policies to give the vitalizing touch which brought these towns into being almost as by magic.

"What is the secret of the operation of these mines in Sullivan county, giving employment to hundreds and thousands of workingmen, who in turn are making more prosperous the villages throughout the county and are making greater prosperity for the farms? What has caused it all?

Cause of Great Activity.

"I will tell you. Republican policies create prosperity in the great industrial centers, open great factories and industrial establishments, and they in turn require the coal which nature laid away here countless centuries ago.

"You will have prosperity here when there is prosperity in the great industrial centers, when the great factories are open and running to their utmost, then there is demand for homes and villages and cities.

"There are more men employed under the present republican administration than under any democratic administration in all the history of the republic."

BET 6 TO 1 ON ROOSEVELT.

Thousands Are Wagered in Wall Street on the General Result, with Parker Money Scarce.

New York, Nov. 4.—[Special.]—The feature of election betting in Wall street is the large number of wagers, mostly of small size, made that Roosevelt will be the next president.

R. F. Wilson, who is one of the most active bettors, said he had placed nearly $100,000 in small lots on Roosevelt at 5 to 1 and 6 to 1. Bunnell & Buchanan also handled a large amount of money, one of their biggest wagers being $10,000 against $2,000, put up by W. R. Houghtaling. W. G. Gallagher, and G. R. Van Sickles. At the end of the day Bunnell & Buchanan said they still had $25,000 to place on Roosevelt at the prevailing odds.

The greatest fluctuation occurred in the odds on Roosevelt to carry New York state, bets being made all the way from 2 to 1 to 10 to 7. M. J. Kiernan, who handled most of the Parker money, reported that he had offered to bet $5,000 against $7,500 that Parker would carry the state without any takers. P. J. Goodhart bet $1,000 to $1,500 with Camman & Co. and W. B. Franklin placed $5,000 to $7,500, put up by Sheffield and McCullough on the same proposition.

Herrick ruled favorite in the New York state governorship at odds of 10 to 6, which, however, was shorted this afternoon to 10 to 7 on the appearance on the curb of Greene Pickens, a representative of A. A. Housman & Co., who brought with him several thousand dollars to place on Higgins.

Pickens succeeded in covering about $20,000 with Herrick money, all at odds of 10 to 7. His principal bets were $7,000 to $10,000 with Allen McGraw & Co., $3,500 to $5,000 with M. J. Kiernan, and $3,500 to $5,000 with a man who did not wish his name to be published. Another bet on Herrick was one of $10,000 to $7,000 by F. G. Lawrence with J. Schneck.

Pittsburg Man Receives Note Acknowledging Receipt of Relic of Horse Once Owned by McKinley.

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—A note of acknowledgment from the secretary of President Roosevelt was received in Allegheny today by J. F. Murray, who some days ago sent to the chief executive a horseshoe taken from the hind foot of Winner, a horse formerly owned by President McKinley, now owned by Mr. Murray.

ELKINS, W. VA.—Henry G. Davis in an address appealed to his fellow townsmen to support him as the democratic nominee for the vice presidency. Among those on the stage were Blaine and Davis Elkins, sons of Senator Elkins. The meeting here was the culmination of a day of campaigning on a special train.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—The grand jury has filed an accusation against the board of election commissioners that the board appointed as members of the election boards in the various booths men who did not reside in the precincts to which they had been appointed.

WOMAN BEATEN BY ROBBER: CASH AND DIAMONDS LOST.

Mrs. Helen Fisk, 134 Locust Street, Reports Loss of $500 in Gems and $50 Cash After Attack in Doorway.

While unlocking the front door to enter her residence, 134 Locust street, Mrs. Helen Fisk last night was attacked by a negro robber.

The man rushed up out of the darkness, struck her a severe blow on the head, making her half unconscious, and then seized her purse.

As she fell backward, according to her story to the Chicago avenue police, the thief tore open her waist and took a chamois bag from around her neck, containing diamonds valued at $500. The purse, she said, contained $50.

The police were given a good description of the robber, who was seen waiting near the house shortly before 9 o'clock, when the attack was made.

LIBERAL VICTORY IS COMPLETE.

Laurier Government Will Have Majority of at Least Seventy-two in Commons.

Ottawa, Ont., Nov. 4.—Additional returns from the Canadian elections show that the liberals have a majority of seventy-two in the house of commons, with seven elections yet to be held. The result is: Liberals, 134; conservatives, 71; independents, 2. The greatest blow to the conservatives is the defeat of Borden, their leader, in his own city of Halifax and the failure of the conservatives of Nova Scotia to return a single member. Premier Laurier's health is such that he may retire and transfer the premiership to W. S. Fielding of Halifax.

THE MYSTERY OF TOM TAGGART.

By Secretary of State John Hay.

The darkest, strangest mystery
I ever read, or heern, or see,
Is 'long of a drink at Taggart's hall—
Tom Taggart's of Gilgal.

I've heern the tale a thousand ways,
But never could git through the maze
That hangs around that queer day's doin's;
But I'll tell the yarn to youans.

Tom Taggart stood behind his bar,
The time was fall, the skies was fa'r,
The neighbors round the counter drawed,
And ca'mly drinked and jawed.

At last come Colonel Blood of Pike,
And old Jedge Phinn, permiscus-like,
And each, as he meandered in,
Remarked, "A whisky-skin."

Tom mixed the beverage full and fa'r,
And slammed it, smoking, on the bar.
Some says three fingers, some says two—
I'll leave the choice to you

Phinn to the drink put forth his hand;
Blood drawed his knife, with accent bland,
"I ax yer parding, Mister Phinn—
Jest drap that whisky-skin."

No man high-toneder could be found
Than old Jedge Phinn the country round.
Says he, "Young man, the tribe of Phinns Knows their own whisky-skins!"

He went for his 'leven-inch bowie-knife—
"I tries to foller a Christian life;
But I'll drap a slice of liver or two,
My bloomin' shrub, with you."

They carved in a way that all admired,
Tell Blood drawed iron at last, and fired.
It took Seth Bludso 'twixt the eyes,
Which caused him great surprise.

Then coats went off, and all went in;
Shots and bad language swelled the din;
The short, sharp bark of Derringers,
Like bull pups, cheered the furse.

They piled the stiffs outside the door;
They made, I reckon, a cord or more.
Girls went that winter, as a rule,
Alone to spellin'-school.

I've sarched in vain from Dan to Beer-Sheba, to make this mystery clear;
But I end with hit as I did begin,
WHO GOT THE WHISKY-SKIN?"

CLEVELAND SAYS TARIFF IS PERIL.

Former President Declares Friends of Protection Will Not Reduce Schedules.

SPEAKS AT NEWARK, N. J.

Tells Hearers That Trusts Have Grown Strong and Numerous Under Republican Rule.

Newark, N. J., Nov. 4.—Former President Grover Cleveland in this city tonight delivered his second speech of the present campaign.

He waited ten minutes for the cessation of the cheering and noise that his appearance brought forth, and for thirty-five minutes after he began his address 3,000 persons crowded together on the tanbark of a riding academy alternately listened and cheered.

The occasion was the closing democratic rally of the campaign, a rally under the auspices of a club of first voters.

Cleveland Wants Tariff Revised.

Mr. Cleveland's argument in his speech was that the revision of tariff should not be left to its friends because in that event the tariff would not be revised. He recalled one sentence from a speech he made twenty years ago in Newark when he was candidate for the presidency. On the occasion he said:

"The right of the government to exact tribute from the citizen is limited by its actual necessities, and every cent taken from the people beyond that required for their protection by the government is robbery."

Mr. Cleveland said he could repeat that sentence with equal force today.

The speaker then told how in 1882 a republican commission had recommended tariff reduction and how these recommendations had been disregarded and the tariff rates increased.

"It was under the operation of this disgraceful outcome of a delusive show of tariff reformation by its friends," he continued, "that the battle of 1884 was fought. The average rate of duty on imports then prevailing was something over 45 per cent, and this rate the people by their verdict at the polls condemned as unnecessary and unjust and denounced its exactions as no better than robbery.

How Trusts Have Grown.

"I have ventured to remind you of these incidents for an especial purpose. I desire to direct your attention to the fact that in the contest of twenty years ago the tariff then existing was condemned because in and of itself, without accomplices or vicious associates, it was guilty of despoiling our people in their homes.

"Trusts and combinations did not then appear as its confederates. If they existed at all they were infant industries, too few and too young to be mentioned in the platform of either of the great political parties, and too newly born to be the companions of such other infant industries as, though still unweaned, had actually grown gray at the breasts of sinfully indulgent tariff protection.

"The multiplication of this new race of infant industries soon grew to be wonderfully in excess of all other birth rate records. In 1888 they had attracted attention enough to be denounced in both party platforms. The precocity of these infant prodigies ran far ahead of the most exaggerated imagination of parental pride. Before they were a day old they recognized in the policy of high protection the way to grow in strength and wealth."

Rely on Tariff Protection.

The former president said that these trusts and combinations knew that their growth and prosperity was proportional to the height of the tariff wall around them which kept out foreign competition.

Home competition, he said, they disposed of by combinations and so called "economy of administration."

"I have said," he went on, "that the higher the wall of protection was raised the larger was the scope for the machinations of these trusts and combinations.

"Under the stimulus of increased protection afforded by the McKinley tariff they began to multiply. The statement has been made that under this tariff or prior to the passage of the Dingley law in 1897, only eighty of these trusts and combinations had been formed. It must be noted, however, that during about three years immediately before that date, the Wilson tariff law was in force. This was a democratic measure which repealed the McKinley enactment and lowered duties.

What Dingley Law Did.

"The Dingley tariff bill of 1897 raised the average of import duties to something over 50 per cent and made the high water mark in our country's tariff legislation. Its fond parents have placed upon the family record contained in their bible, entitled 'Republican Campaign Text Book, 1904,' the following mention of the child's birth and its lovely traits:

"'Went into effect July 24, 1897, known as the Dingley act—thoroughly protective,' and stated in its title that its purpose was to provide revenue for the government and 'to encourage the industries of the United States.'

"In the month of March, 1903, a distinguished republican member of congress on the floor of the house of representatives presented a carefully prepared list of industrial combinations existing on the 1st day of January in that year. They numbered 453, more than four-fifths of them apparently organized within six months under the 'thoroughly protective' Dingley act."

After saying that the tariff built trusts dictated the prices of all the necessaries of life, that the rates of duty today are higher than they were twenty years ago and that the expenses of the government were more than doubled, Mr. Cleveland concluded:

Party Policy Not Warlike.

"Our party makes no warfare upon the rich nor upon any legitimate enterprise. Its definition of American citizenship is broad enough and just enough to embrace all people—the rich and poor alike—and all corporations and associations of capital legitimately engaged in legitimate business; but it insists that the government should in no way and by no device or abuse of its functions be accessory to the creation of vast combinations of industrial and business enterprises whose inevitable tendencies are to control wrongfully the cost of our people's living and strangle independent and individual business effort."

BABY'S ECZEMA

CURED BY CUTICURA

Now Six Years Old with Thick Hair and Clean Scalp. Cure Permanent.

"My baby was about six weeks old when the top of her head became covered with thick scales, which would peel and come off, taking the hair with it. It would soon form again and be as bad as before. I tried several things and then went to the doctor. He said it was Eczema, and prescribed an ointment, which did not do any good. A friend spoke of Cuticura Soap. I tried it and read on the wrapper about Cuticura Ointment as a remedy for Eczema. I bought a box and washed her head in warm water and Cuticura Soap and gently combed the scales off. They did not come back and her hair grew out fine and thick. She is now a year and a half old and has no trace of Eczema."

TELLS OF HORROR IN PORT ARTHUR.

Russian Writer Says City Is Demolished; Men are Dying; Food Near Gone.

FIFTY SHELLS A MINUTE.

Hospitals Crowded, Ships Damaged, but Soldiers Determined to Hold Out.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, Nov. 5, 3 a. m.—The Daily Mail's Chefoo correspondent cables a long letter received from a Russian in Port Arthur, from which place it was dispatched on Oct. 27. It deals mainly with past events and likens the position of the besieged as being in the depths of hell. The writer says:

"The principal forts are uninjured, but most of the town is in ruins. The harbor works are in a sad plight. Some of the ships have been injured by falling shells and it is impossible, with our scant resources, to repair them.

"The hospitals are crowded with men suffering from sickening wounds. There is not a single bottle of anaesthetic in the place and the wounded endure agonies. Food is of the coarsest description and is beginning to be scarce. There is much disease.

Still Hope to Hold Out.

"But we all are animated by a resolve to hold out. Our trials and hardships and terrors have made us something more than human. We have left behind us our memories of civilization and live in bombproof shelters like the prehistoric men lived in caves. These shelters ever and anon are penetrated by shells. Our soldiers are gladiators, great hearted heroes. Disasters on land, worse than disasters at sea, do not effect them except for the moment. Their numbers are thinned, but they believe relief will come. Day and night we expect to hear the boom of the guns of the relieving host from the northward, or to sight the vanguard of the fleet from home. In that belief and confidence is our strength.

Can Endure Little More.

"We fight for the flag, but there will come a time when there will be no bearing the inconveniences of the siege due to sickness, scarcity of food, and cramped quarters.

"There is no enduring the unceasing hell of bursting shells which are scattering horror, killing friends, and tearing huge holes in the ground, to say nothing of the miasma arising from corpses rotting on hills and in ravines around the forts. The stench bred flies, with red heads, the bite of which is poisonous, that are increasing in number.

Fifty Shells a Minute.

"The bombardments have lately increased in fury. Fifty messengers of hate and destruction greet us every minute. A few days ago our whole garrison sallied out. It is evident the Japanese are making another nautical attempt to capture the fortress, but they cannot succeed. They only add to the terrible number of their dead.

"The uncanny part of all this is that these men meet death in utter silence. One sees the fiercest fights, but hears no sound.

"One moonlight night at Itseshan I watched an assault by a ghostly mass of moving figures, through which continual lanes were made by our guns, admitting glimpses of the scenes behind. These gaps were closed up as if by magic and the masses surged onward, while our men, forsaking their trenches, sought shelter in the forts.

Explosion of the Mines.

"On they came until close up. Then the mines exploded, the earth opened, and the bodies were hurled high in air, and then sank to the earth. Dead hands clutched rifles. In the moonlight the bayonets looked like fireworks shooting upwards and descending point downward into the bodies of their owners.

"I believe all inventions of military genius will be unable to daunt these heroes, who are incapable of recognizing that so long as we have ammunition the fortress is impregnable."

Sounds of Battle Cease.

The correspondent of the Daily Telegraph, who recently went near Port Arthur in a steamer, telegraphs from Chefoo that he has again been near the port, at which all was still and quiet at 6 p. m. last night. No movements were discernible and no shots could be heard. Admiral Togo's cruisers, gunboats, and destroyers were watching within a radius of ten to thirty miles, mostly eastward. Searchlights were going briskly all around Port Arthur.

Japs Will Keep Port Arthur.

In an interview Viscount Hayashi, the Japanese minister, said that he is of the opinion that Japan would hold Port Arthur permanently. "Once we have it," he added, "we shall not care to part with it again. We shall have captured it twice, and there is a strong sentiment in Japan which inclines us to hold it. Perhaps it will not be fortified again, for, as with England in the case of Wei-hai-wei, we think its strongest defense in the future will be a powerful navy."

JAP ATTACK CEASED?

CHEFOO, Nov. 4.—Information has been brought by Chinese that the six days of bombardment and desperate efforts on the part of the besiegers to take the fortress at Port Arthur ceased Wednesday. The Japanese took fort No. 3, but were unable to hold it. The Japanese losses are reported to be enormous.

There are persistent rumors that the Japanese have occupied the forts of Rihlung mountain and certain forts of the Keekwan mountain group, but well informed Japanese here consider these rumors as premature.

It is reported that the Japanese killed or wounded in front of Port Arthur during the last three months approximate 40,000.

JAPS ON EAST KEEKWAN.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 4.—Advices reaching Shanghai today say that the northern portion of East Keekwan mountain has been captured by the Japanese, who hold it under a furious Russian fire. A fort on the inner line of defense was destroyed by the explosion of a magazine on Nov. 2.

The British steamer Victoria, which succeeded in running the Port Arthur blockade with a full cargo of beef, and has returned here, confirms the reports that the Japanese have captured all the main northeastern positions of the fortress.

POLES AGAINST WAR SERVICE.

Six Men Killed and Twenty Wounded in Bayonet Charge by Russian Soldiers at Czestochowa.

BRESLAU, Prussian Silesia, Nov. 4.—Three thousand Poles marched through the streets of Czestochowa, Russian Poland, Wednesday, as a protest against the mobilization. The chief of police and gendarmes ordered the paraders to disperse, but they refused to do so, and continued to sing Polish songs. A detachment of infantry then charged the mob with bayonets, with the result that six persons were killed and twenty were wounded.

Method by Which Japs Have Reached Walls of Port Arthur Forts.

System of Parallel Trenches on Which Japs Worked for Months Preparatory to Assault Now in Progress.

[BY A MILITARY EXPERT.]

The picture shows a method of attacking a fort if high angle fire fails to reduce it. The irregular trenches leading to the parallels are dug so that they cannot be swept by the enemy's fire. The men dig the trenches under the protection of their own artillery. The parallels are for the protection of the storming parties as they approach nearer and nearer the walls.

A "parallel" is a trench, often many miles long, which fronts the fortress. Supposing the army is 4,000 yards from the fortress. During the commencing bombardment this is called the "first artillery position." They want to move nearer and so they construct the "first parallel," perhaps at a distance of 3,000 yards from the fortress. But, in order that men and guns may move safely into this "parallel," approaches have to be cut—that is, a number of trenches leading from the first artillery position into the "parallel." These approaches run in zigzags, as, if they were straight, they would be open to the enemy's fire.

The way in which the "parallel" is opened is interesting. So soon as it grows dusk a number of officers, accompanied by sappers, move forward. Here they trace the lines which the parallel will follow. Each sapper has a picket and a measuring tape. The officer stations the first sapper at the end of the trench line, takes the end of his tape, and walks along until the tape is drawn out. At this point he places a second sapper, takes his tape, and walks to the end of it, and so on.

The sappers drive the pickets into the ground, fasten the tapes to them, and lie down to await the working party.

Later on the working party, with picks and shovels, arrives and sets to work with all its might. By break of day each man must have dug a trench 5 feet long, 6½ feet wide, and 4 feet deep, except the front eighteen inches, which is only one and one-half feet deep. The earth he piles in front to form a parapet.

At daylight this trench will be occupied by a strong force, called the "guard of the trenches." But the work is not yet finished, for the following two nights are also devoted to digging, and when finished the trench is 10 feet wide at the bottom or more, much wider on top, 4 feet deep, having steps in front, and protected by a parapet of earth in front, which is about 4½ feet high.

Behind this "parallel" protected places are formed for the artillery, another big job, seeing that thirty feet of earth, and probably more, is required to insure the safety of the guns.

Finally the last parallel is made, and the rush of infantry into the fort takes place.

OFFICER OF BALTIC FLEET TELLS OF NORTH SEA AFFAIR.

Russian Admiral Asserted to Have Had Positive Knowledge That the Enemy Had Four Torpedo Boats Waiting to Attack Him in the North Sea—Received Suspicious Wireless Message—Fired When Searchlights Were Thrown Upon His Squadron.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 5, 4:15 a. m.—The Novoe Vremya this morning, however, prints a long letter dated Vigo, Oct. 28, and credited to a man of the Baltic squadron, containing a remarkable summary of events leading up to the firing on the British trawlers and the incidents of the night of Oct. 21. The letter states that Admiral Rojestvensky and the admiralty, before the sailing of the squadron, received from secret agents a mass of information regarding the plans and whereabouts of Japanese in European waters. The letter says:

"The Japanese had torpedo boats in the Norwegian fjords, and also purchased a number of fishing vessels at Hamburg, Hull, Southampton, and Christiania. The Russians also purchased a number of fishers, small steamers, for scouting duty.

"The Russian government warned the governments of Germany, Denmark, and Great Britain of the information in its possession, and asked that special precautions be taken to keep the track of the squadron clear of commercial vessels. Germany and Denmark both responded. Denmark particularly sent a warship with the squadron and warned off a number of fishermen and coasting craft.

Four Jap Boats Waiting.

"Before leaving Skagen Admiral Rojestvensky received further specific information, stating that four Japanese torpedo boats, accompanied by a collier, were waiting west of Cape Skagen. The Baltic squadron left in the morning, and the Japanese, in order to make a night attack, were obliged to follow and catch up with the warships in the North sea."

The writer enters into a detailed statement of the movements of the various divisions of the squadron the day the ships left Skagen, tending to show that all the Russian torpedo boats were sent ahead and that none of them were anywhere within touch of the battleships and cruiser divisions. The night of Oct. 21, according to this letter, Admiral Rojestvensky received a wireless message from the transport Kamchatka saying there was trouble with its machinery, that it was thirty miles in the rear, and asking whether the squadron would await its arrival or proceed.

Suspicious Wireless Messages.

Then came a number of wireless messages in Russian, also signed "Kamschatka," asking the squadron's whereabouts by latitude and longitude, and particularly where the battleships Orel and Kniaz Souvaroff were. These messages excited suspicion and the flagship replied, asking the names and the number in the family of a certain officer on board the Kamschatka. Thereupon the messages stopped.

It was 12:55 o'clock that night, the writer of this letter continues, when the squadron saw a green flare such as is used by vessels in distress, evidently a signal asking the squadron to stop and assist.

Soon thereafter a searchlight was thrown on Russian vessels by a vessel supposed to be accompanying the Japanese torpedo boats. This made the squadron a plain target for attack. At the same time the Russians made out the forms of two torpedo boats in the darkness to one side.

Squadron Opens Fire.

Searchlights were immediately thrown from the squadron on the strange torpedo boats, who instantly darted ahead at full speed. The squadron opened fire, and the boats came under the guns of the Orel, Kniaz Souvaroff, and Borodino. It is thought that one was sunk.

Meantime the squadron had gotten entangled with the trawler fleet, which was displaying no lights, flags, or signals. Admiral Rojestvensky, however, despite the fact that some of them were close enough to do serious damage had they had evil intent, signaled the squadron to stop firing. Some of the trawlers were then quite close under the bows of the squadron.

The Russian ships did not stop either to assist or to inquire if assistance were needed. Such proceeding at the night time, the letter says, would have been entirely too hazardous.

PAUL DE CASSAGNAC, NOTED EDITOR AND DUELIST, DEAD.

Famous French Journalist and Parliamentarian, Hero of Many Affairs of Honor, Passes Away in Paris.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

PARIS, Nov. 4.—Paul de Cassagnac, the journalist and for many years the most famous duelist in France, is dead at St. Viatre.

Paul de Cassagnac was born in 1842 in the island of Guadaloupe, but his parents returned to Paris while he was still a child. He was educated in the College of Perpignan, of which his uncle, the abbé de Cassagnac, was the superior.

Early in life De Cassagnac took up journalism and shortly afterward dueling. He was a man of immense strength, standing over six feet in height and of heavy build.

His first adversary in a duel was a rival editor, Aurelian Schall, whom he wounded so badly that it was feared for a time he would die.

His next important encounter was with Henri Rochefort, editor of the Soleil, who had written disrespectfully of Marie Antoinette. Cassagnac, in his paper, replied:

"You crawl like a snail over that white and pure statue and leave on it your slimy tracks."

A duel with pistols followed, in which Rochefort was wounded in the hip, a sacred medal stopping the bullet and saving his life.

Soon after Cassagnac fought with Lermina, editor of the Corsair, and a man named Lullier.

The duel he fought with one of his cousins, a M. Lissagaray, was the most famous of his many adventures on the "field of honor."

When Cassagnac was decorated by the emperor on the 15th of August, 1868, Lissagaray, commenting on the fact, finished up his article with the remark: "I declare that the Cassagnacs are unworthy of the notice of either my sword or my pen."

Paul answered that he "would force him to swallow both his sword and his pen," and then an encounter followed in the Bois de Vincennes. Lissagaray was an expert swordsman; but, evidently wishing to kill his adversary, he began with an open attack at the risk of getting killed himself if his thrust failed. Cassagnac managed to dodge and inflicted two wounds on his opponent. The seconds wished to put an end to the combat, but the principals insisted on continuing, and they fought with the utmost fury until Lissagaray was run through the lungs.

During the closing days of the empire and later as a member of the French chamber of deputies Cassagnac had many encounters and duels, and in every case came off victor.

Once he was wounded in a fight with the politician Ranc in Brussels.

DEATH FOLLOWS IN WAKE OF RIOTS OF STUDENTS.

Two Fatalities at Innsbruck Follow Efforts of Military to Restore Order in Austrian University Town.

INNSBRUCK, Austria, Nov. 4.—The anti-Italian rioting of the students at the university here, which began yesterday, became so serious during the night that troops, with fixed bayonets, marched into the midst of the German demonstrators. At 2 o'clock this morning the latter were besieging and wrecking the hotels occupied by the Italian students.

An artist named Prezzey was killed by a bayonet thrust through the heart, and many persons were wounded. The building occupied by the Italian faculty of the university was wrecked.

Besides Prezzey, who was killed, there were eight Germans and ten Italians wounded.

Herr Erler, the representative of Innsbruck in the reichsrath, has telegraphed to the premier demanding the removal of the Italian faculty, and holding the government responsible for the consequences in the event of its refusal to do so.

The rioting continued intermittently throughout the day. The students, reinforced by a town mob, wrecked the Italian club and Italian inns, smashed windows in the Hofburg, and made a hostile demonstration at the Italian consulate.

The military succeeded in stopping the rioting late this evening. It is reported that several more of the wounded, including a German railway official, have succumbed to their injuries.

TOYS TEACH ART OF CRUELTY, DECLARES A CHICAGO WOMAN.

Mrs. Theodore Thomas in Paper Read at St. Louis Attacks Training of Children—Gives Aim of Education.

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—"The earliest toys given children generate in them a spirit of cruelty," was the statement made today in a paper by Mrs. Theodore Thomas of Chicago which was read by Mrs. Anna Harris of Boston before the convention of the American Humane association at the world's fair.

"Children are trained in the arts of cruelty," declared the writer. "Their earliest toys generate in them this spirit. One of the first playthings given a boy is a whip, and as he rides his play horse his mother urges him to whip the bad horse. A little later the boy is presented with a set of tin soldiers, and with these he plays at the cruel arts of war. Then when the lad goes out of doors he receives a popgun, with which he amuses himself killing birds and other innocent creatures. With the use of these toys the infliction of cruelty becomes a pleasure.

Not Cruel by Nature.

"Children are not by nature cruel, but it is easy to make them so by giving them toys which are to be employed in the killing or the hurting of innocent creatures. There is nothing better fitted for the wholesome development of the better traits in the character of a child than care for the protection of animals and the study of nature. Children are not brought up to use their brains and their hands.

"Another objection to the education of children is that they are given more liberties that at their youthful age they know how to employ.

Healthful Games Neglected.

"The present general aim of education is to make instruction interesting. The teachers do the work and the children are relieved of the effort of learning. The children are trained to enjoy themselves, and they learn to shirk the drudgery of learning.

"Children are given too much unemployed time. They are not engaged on healthful games, but outside school hours they loiter around doorsteps shooting birds and cats. A system of education should be devised which will teach the children not only to better employ their time, but to train them to be kind to each other and to animals."

A resolution was adopted thanking Gov. Dockery for his efforts to suppress bull fighting in the neighborhood of the world's fair grounds.

Officers Are Elected.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

President—Dr. Alfred Leffingwell, Aurora, N. Y.

Secretary—Mrs. Mary P. Lovell, Wyncote, Pa.

Treasurer—Alfred Millard, Omaha.

RIOT IN FRENCH CHAMBER

MINISTER OF WAR ASSAULTED—PREMIER HAS NARROW ESCAPE.

Opposition Deputies Try to Force Gen. Andre to Resign from the Cabinet, and Upon His Refusal a Vote of Confidence Passes by Only a Majority of Two—General Fight Follows and Soldiers Finally Have to Be Called On to Restore Harmony.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

PARIS, Nov. 4.—The attempt of the opposition to force Gen. Andre, minister of war, to resign resulted in a riot in the chamber of deputies.

The minister of war was personally assaulted, and Premier Combes escaped violence only by the interference of bystanders.

The chamber had resumed its debate on the interpellation introduced some days ago which accused Gen. Andre, the minister of war, with instituting secret inquiries into the careers of army officers on which their advancement depended, of organizing systematic spying among subordinates, and of penalizing officers on account of their religious opinion. The clericals, who led the attack, alleged that Gen. Andre was under the influence of the freemasons.

Calls Minister a Liar.

Today the minister of war made a speech defending himself, in course of which he asserted that Col. Quinemont had displayed the royal standard at the head of his regiment, instead of the tricolor.

Gen. Jacquey, who also is a deputy, interrupted Gen. Andre, exclaiming:

"That is a lie."

This provoked a hubbub. M. Brisson, president of the chamber, requested Gen. Jacquey to withdraw his epithet. An angry discussion between several deputies followed, which resulted in Gen. Jacquey refusing to withdraw his expression.

Gen. Andre announced that he did not intend to punish any of those who had given information against officers, furthermore he did not intend to resign.

The opposition demanded the order of the day, pure and simple, which practically involved the resignation of the minister of war. This the government rejected and demanded a vote of confidence, which it obtained by a vote of 279 to 277, a majority of only two.

Then the Riot Begins.

The announcement of the vote caused a terrific uproar, which was punctuated by many shouts of "Resign, resign."

De Baudry d'Asson, a monarchist, rushed at Prime Minister Combes and it was only with great difficulty that the bystanders prevented him from assaulting the premier.

The chamber quickly became a bear garden. Several blows were exchanged. M. Syveton, who some time ago was removed from his professorship in the university because of his nationalist opinions, dashed at Gen. Andre and punched him in the face, causing the blood to flow. The minister sat on a front bench stanching the flow with his handkerchief, while the frenzied ministerialist made an onslaught on the monarchists and nationalists.

Many Fights in Progress.

There was fighting almost everywhere on the floor of the chamber. The scene has not been paralleled since the Dreyfus affair. President Brisson put his hat on his head and withdrew and thus suspended the session, while officials cleared the galleries. The session was resumed later, but Syveton's cowardly blow had turned the scale in the government's favor. His exclusion was voted by a large majority. He refused to go and the session again was suspended and the military guards summoned. They forcibly removed M. Syveton. Then the session was resumed and the public readmitted to the galleries. The proceedings then became calmer and ended in a vote of 343 to 236 declaring confidence in the government.

BOTH PARTIES CLAIM INDIANA.

Republican Chairman H. S. New Says Plurality Will Exceed That in 1900.

TAGGART ALSO IS HAPPY.

Regular Workers at Chicago Voting Places Will Aid the New Charter.

From the battle ground in Indiana both parties claimed the state yesterday. The republican forecast, however, was the more confident.

Vice Chairman Harry S. New of the republican national committee for the first time mentioned figures in connection with the vote next Tuesday in his native state by asserting that "Roosevelt will carry Indiana by a plurality larger than that given McKinley four years ago." McKinley won in 1900 by 26,000. Mr. New added that in ninety-one out of the ninety-two counties in the state the republicans had flawless organizations that had done harder and more effective work than ever before.

For the democrats, "Smiling Tom" Taggart of the national committee went on record in an official declaration. Chairman Charles Boeschenstein of the Illinois democratic organization sent the following telegram:

Indications in this state are reassuring for a democratic victory. Indiana democracy confident.

Republican Speakers Plenty.

In behalf of the republican congressional committee, Chairman Tawney announced that more national speakers had been assigned to Indiana in the present campaign than to any other state, with Missouri and Illinois a close second and third. To refute the rumor that the national bureau had run short of spellbinders, he made up statistics showing that out of 476 applicants for speaking dates only 198 had been assigned to meetings. Every request made for speakers by the state committees west of the Ohio river has been filled except in the cases of a few men of national prominence who were unavoidably assigned elsewhere.

Illinois, according to Mr. Tawney, was given more than its share of prominent orators, only because so many of them live in the state or passed through it on their journeys east or west. At democratic headquarters a telegram was received from Judge Parker asking that former Congressman J. Hamilton Lewis cancel his Illinois dates and wind up the campaign at Indianapolis.

Congressman Babcock, who a few weeks ago issued a warning that the democrats were likely to make large gains in the makeup of the lower house, has cheered up. In a message to Speaker Cannon, the Wisconsin man said:

"From our reports and the last information available, I am pleased to advise you that the republicans will elect not fewer than 206 members of the next house, with a probability of at least ten seats more."

Anti-Parker League Reports.

The Anti-Parker Democratic National league came out with a statement that in the last eight weeks it had placed on its rolls in the so-called doubtful states the names of more than 50,000 voters who heretofore have voted the democratic ticket, but this year are pledged to cast their ballots against the presidential nominee of their party. Judge Parker is stigmatized as "the undemocratic head of the nation's ticket, who was forced upon the St. Louis convention by such friends of Wall street's criminal trusts and plutocratic interests as Belmont, McCarren, Cleveland, and many others of the same stripe."

It is stated that "absolutely reliable information" from the doubtful states shows that Parker will not be able to carry a single northern state and his vote in the "solid south" will be lighter than is usual. Thomas N. Haskins, former member of the Illinois democratic state committee, is vice president of the organization.

Republicans Will Aid Charter.

Arrangements made by Chairman James J. Reddick of the republican county committee are expected to help the cause of Chicago's new charter campaign at the polls. Every one of the large force of republican precinct workers will wear a white badge bearing the legend: "Vote 'yes' on the charter amendment." Cards explanatory of the method of casting a ballot for the amendment proposition also will be handed to every voter as he approaches the booths.

Secretary Brown of the charter campaign committee renewed his request for funds to permit the establishment of a force of 8,000 election day workers through all the voting precincts in the state. Many volunteers for this work handed in their names from the University of Chicago.

Populists Make Last Appeal.

The people's party made its last appeal for votes for Thomas E. Watson in an open letter issued by Joseph Hopp of the state committee. A number of extracts were printed from the anti-democratic and anti-republican speeches of Mr. Watson, with the declaration that the people's party stood for principles carefully avoided by both its leading opponents. The continental party will end its local campaign with a series of meetings in Englewood.

OUTLINES RECORD OF HOLDOM.

Lawyer Shows That of Thirty-three of Judge's Labor Decisions Thirty Were Affirmed.

H. K. Crafts, an attorney, made public yesterday the following affidavit, subscribed by W. H. Edwards as notary public, as to Judge Holdom's record on the Superior bench:

H. K. Crafts, being duly sworn, on oath says: That he is a member of the Chicago bar, and is a practicing attorney; that he has examined all of the records of the Illinois Appellate and Supreme courts from the date that Jesse Holdom was elected Judge of the Superior court of Cook county, six years ago, to Nov. 1, 1904.

That of the thirty-three labor cases in which appeals have been taken from Judge Holdom's decisions thirty were unqualifiedly affirmed by the Appellate court. Two were reversed and one was modified.

Of the 143 appeals of all kinds from his decisions ninety-five were affirmed and forty-eight were reversed or modified.

The affidavit was given wide publicity.

DEMOCRATS WHO LIKE ROOSEVELT JUSTIFIED BY FEARS OF PARKER.

and the constitution, where is the evidence of it? Not in congress, for the treaty negotiated for the acquisition of the Philippines has been confirmed by the senate and the laws for the government thereof have been confirmed by the Supreme court. The Panama treaty has likewise been confirmed by the senate, and with no narrow majority, and with the concurrence of one-half the democratic senators, by a much larger vote than that which confirmed the Louisiana purchase under Jefferson.

Finally, it is claimed Roosevelt carries a 'big stick.' So he does; he carries it resolutely and with a patriotic pride; he carries it for the glory of our country and the peace of the world; it is the nation's flagstaff, from which floats the "flag of the free heart's hope and home."

BY SIMON WOLF, PRESIDENT OF NATIONAL B'NAI B'RITH.

You have asked me to give my opinion why first voters should cast their suffrage for Theodore Roosevelt as president of the United States.

In complying with your wish I want it distinctly understood that I am not voicing the opinions of the order of B'nai B'rith, of which I am chairman, nor am I pretending to express the feelings or opinions of American citizens of the Jewish faith, for I have ever held that in religious faith we owe no man an explanation, and that along all other lines of civic duty, including the right of voting, we are American citizens in common with our brethren of other faiths. Therefore, as an American and a republican, I unhesitatingly declare that it is a privilege and an honor for any first voter to cast his political fortunes with a party of action instead of a party of negation.

The young men of our day should be progressive and should typify in all their acts and ambitions the achievement of the past, the success of the present, and the hopes of the future. The past is glorious with acts that stand supreme in the annals of our country, proving to the world that the republican party has met every crisis with firmness and conspicuous patriotism, while our opponents have constantly opposed every step taken to advance the higher interests of our country. The present glows with results that have been achieved by the republican administration and notably of President Roosevelt, within the last three years. Every act and utterance of the president has been for the advancement and betterment of our country.

Triumphs of Roosevelt's Administration.

The settlement by arbitration of the Alaska boundary, the insistence which he displayed to secure from congress legislation for the irrigation of arid lands of the west, the reciprocity laws in regard to Cuba, the uplifting and development of the Philippine islands, the securing at last, after fifty years of constant work and toil, the Panama canal, his settlement in a peaceful way of the great coal strike, his declaration of the open shop, his firm hand in treating with the governments of other countries, all of these and many other things that I could mention show him to be a manly man, a typical American, strenuous, loyal, patriotic, cultured, a kind of man that all young men should love and admire and look upon as a manly example to follow.

The future, under these conditions, if the administration of President Roosevelt is continued, is absolutely assured. The building of the Panama canal will be of vast benefit to the south and the Pacific coast, not to speak of the east and west. The Philippine islands will in the end prove as great a blessing to this country as was the purchase of Alaska. The flag of our country, which for many years had disappeared from the seas of the world, is resuming its natural position and commanding the respect and homage of the whole world.

Commerce will follow the flag, and the great natural interests of our country will receive an impetus and expansion that have never been dreamed of in the wildest flights of imagination. We are prosperous, we are at peace with the world, our finances are stable, our working men are employed and receiving splendid wages. We are asked by other nations to be umpire and arbitrator in international questions, and why, under these glorious conditions, should any one hesitate for a moment to cast his vote for the representative of all these conditions, when, in fact, the representative embodies in the highest degree all those elements of grandeur and glory and prosperity for which the republican party has fought in peace and in war? It would be an unpardonable act in my judgment for any young voter to forego the privilege of voting for Theodore Roosevelt.

ODDITIES MARK THE END.

UNIQUE VOTE GETTING DEVICES COME IN LARGE NUMBERS.

Lawrence B. Stringer Adds Picturesque Touch to Closing of Campaign by Wearing Engineer's Overalls and Riding in Locomotive to Railroad Men's Meeting—Geer to Have Three Mounted Trumpeters—Republicans to Use 200,000 Postal Cards.

Picturesque vote getting and vote preventing devices are developing in unexpectedly large numbers in the closing days of the local campaign. Every device, from brass trumpets to court injunctions, is being used to sway the result at the ballot boxes next Tuesday.

From a spectacular point of view, Lawrence B. Stringer, the "unknown" democratic candidate for governor, carried off first honors yesterday. Donning an engineer's blouse and overalls, Mr. Stringer rode in the cab of a locomotive out to Burnside, Ill. where he addressed a large gathering of railroad employés.

Mounted Trumpeters for Geer.

David S. Geer, independent candidate for congress in the First district, added another picturesque touch to the campaign by announcing he would today send through the whole district three mounted trumpeters to give each voter a "clarion call" to go to the polls and do his duty by voting against Martin B. Madden.

Residence in a caboose car on a railroad side track was the odd and successful plea made by James Gillespie for having his name retained upon the registration rolls. Gillespie told the election board that the caboose was firmly anchored on a stretch of rails at West Fortieth and Kinzie streets, and Judge Carter held it constituted a "permanent" residence, as the switch was entirely cut off from the main line so the car could not be moved.

A number of college students were debarred from voting because they registered from their university addresses instead of their parents' residences. Lindsay A. Beaton and James Hill of the Rush Medical school argued their cases before Judge Carter and had their names reinstated.

Using 200,000 Postal Cards.

"Uncle Sam" and "Chicago" are two appealing figures that will appear on the 200,000 postal cards which the republican county committee is mailing to voters, urging them to go to the polls on Tuesday. The cards have been specially designed for the purpose and will reach each voter Monday morning. To offset the possible effects of this appeal the democrats count largely upon the free ham, bread, beer, and other delicacies which are to be given out at the Coliseum meeting tonight.

"Desirons-nous le retour de la misère de 1893? Non! Mille fois, non!!!"

This is the climax of a stirring campaign manifesto issued by the French Republican club. It is stated that almost the entire French vote in Cook county will be cast for Roosevelt, and that the French democrats "have not dared" to hold a single campaign meeting. Judge Chetlain and Abel Davis are said to be candidates that will be especially favored by natives of France.

Seek to Capture German Vote.

Final efforts to capture the German vote were put forth during the day by Secretary Lahiff and Chairman Carey, who invaded the Hopkins-Sullivan headquarters at the Grand Pacific to superintend the output of a large amount of mail matter to these citizens. Mr. Lahiff also devoted his attention to exploiting the support given the democratic ticket by labor leaders opposed to Judge Holdom.

The petition to have Oscar Hebel removed from the board of election commissioners because he is candidate for membership upon the board of assessors was thrown out of court by Judge Carter. The judge questioned the good faith of the suit and took upon his own shoulders the responsibility for Mr. Hebel's position.

"As soon as Mr. Hebel was nominated," said the judge, "he came to me and wanted to resign. A few months ago he repeated this proposition. I told him I did not care to have him resign, and that I saw no occasion for it. If there is any one responsible for any mistake I am the man. If you would take the principle underlying this petition to the ultimate conclusion you would have every official who is running for reelection removed from office. The mayor has been reelected three times, and he has greater power, through the police, over an election than have the election commissioners."

Makes Attack on Recorder.

A. J. Sabath, democratic candidate for recorder, attacked the work of Recorder Simon and charged him with allowing special privileges to the Chicago Title and Trust company. Abel Davis made a declaration that if the republicans elected him to the recordership he would use every effort to spread the use of the Torrens system.

Censures Meacham for Letters.

To counteract the effect of the "reduction letter" campaign notices sent out by F. D. Meacham, candidate for reelection to the board of review, an effort was made by several of his supporters to exploit an appeal sent out by Joseph Donnersberger on stationery bearing the official mark of Sheriff Barrett's office. Fred M. Blount, who is one of Mr. Meacham's campaign managers, said, however, that he did not wish to make an issue of this charge, as it was "legitimate politics." The executive committee of the nonpartisan Donnersberger club passed resolutions censuring Mr. Meacham for using his official position to win votes.

According to its announcement, the Hamilton club will take no official action before election on the petition signed by Rudolph M. Patterson, R. D. Martin, and J. T. Lenfesty, asking that Mr. Geer be expelled from the club for running as an independent republican against Madden for congress. Mr. Madden advised the club that he knew nothing of this attack on Mr. Geer.

MAKES "MYSELF" THE ISSUE.

W. P. Harrison, Candidate for Congress in Eighth, Assails John M. Harlan and Clarence Darrow.

William Preston Harrison paid his respects to his critics last night in a speech in which he attacked John M. Harlan and Clarence Darrow. In the words of the mayor's brother it was a speech on "myself."

"A new issue has been dragged into this campaign," said the democratic candidate for congress in the Eighth district, at Tivoli hall, California avenue and Division street. That issue is myself. I accept it.

"Mr. Darrow has been sucking a sore thumb ever since I secured seventy-three votes as against his nine votes in a certain democratic convention."

NEARLY 20,000 IN DENEEN MEETINGS

Candidate's Voice Fails Under the Strain, but He Keeps Up His Hard Work.

SPEAKS AT "OVERFLOW."

Will Continue His "Whirlwind" Tonight and on Monday Evening.

After a campaign of nine weeks, covering the entire state, in which he has made in the neighborhood of 200 speeches, Charles S. Deneen, republican candidate for governor, lost his voice last night and was obliged to use a conversational tone in addressing the largest meetings of his city canvass. The climax of the strain came in the first meeting of the evening, in a large tent at Western and Wabansia avenues, when the candidate attempted to make himself heard by an audience estimated at 7,000.

Although seriously handicapped by hoarseness and the soreness of his throat, Mr. Deneen followed this speech with one to an overflow meeting outside the tent, where 2,000 persons waited in the chill air to hear him.

Speaks at Five Meetings.

The evening's tour began at the large tent in the Twenty-eight ward and included addresses at Walsh's hall, Noble street and Milwaukee avenue; West Side Turner hall, 770 West Chicago avenue; Netherwood hall, Marshfield avenue and West Taylor street, and Princess rink, 538 West Madison street. Others who spoke at one or more of the various meetings were Lawrence Y. Sherman, candidate for lieutenant governor; Gov. Richard Yates, William E. Mason, Frank O. Lowden, and Hugo Pam.

Mr. Deneen spoke principally on state issues, touching only lightly on national questions in referring to the candidacy of the congressional nominees in the different districts. He reiterated his replies to the criticism of the democratic candidate for governor, who had accused him of failing to make any promises for his administration in the event of election. Mr. Deneen declared he stood on his record as state's attorney.

As to the policy of the administration he called attention to the pledge of the republican party in convention to apply civil service rules to the state's penal and charitable institutions and to cause the enactment of a compulsory primary law.

Will Finish Monday Night.

Asking the indulgence of his hearers because of his weakened voice, Mr. Deneen said it would not prevent him from rounding out his campaign with speeches tonight and Monday night, by which time he not only will have spoken in every county in the state but in each of the thirty-five wards of Chicago, and in every county commissioner's district.

Aside from the meeting in the large tent, the largest meetings of the evening were at Walsh's hall and at Princess rink, the audience at the latter place waiting until nearly 11 o'clock to hear the candidate. The total attendance at all meetings was estimated at nearly 20,000. The Flambeau club of the Thirteenth ward escorted the speaker to the tent and to Princess rink, illuminating the streets with red fire, flambeaus, and roman candles.

STIRS STUDENTS AT THE U. OF C.

Col. John C. Freeman, Former Minister to Denmark, Talks to Republicans in Kent Theater.

Col. John C. Freeman, former United States minister to Denmark, spoke last night before the Students' Republican club in Kent theater at the University of Chicago.

"There are 2,800,000 young men," he said, "who have come of age since the last presidential election. Their votes will determine the choice for president. They know something of the history of this country. They have not failed to notice that one of the two great parties is a party of achievement, the other of opposition; one looks to the future, the other to the past.

"For a half century the democratic party has followed the trail of the republican party and occupied its abandoned camp grounds."

'VOTE FOR THE WINNER, WURST.'

Continental Candidate for Surveyor Adopts a Unique Placard to Win the German Vote.

Felix Wurst, the candidate for surveyor on the continental ticket, is making a strong bid for the German vote with the following placard:

VOTE FOR THE WINNER, WURST.

It is said 100,000 of these were distributed yesterday.

"Wait until election night," says his manager. "The early returns may appear against him, but you will find that Wurst is yet to come."

STRIKES BLOW FOR 'DRYS.'

DR. SILAS SWALLOW SPEAKS TO ENTHUSIASTIC AUDIENCE.

Prohibition Candidate for President Is Received with Waving of Handkerchiefs and Cries of "Amen" in Central Y. M. C. A.—Declares Tariff Is Not the Issue, but That "Drunken Labor" Riddance Is More Important—Woolley Attacks Bishop Potter.

The waving of hundreds of handkerchiefs and shouts of "Amen," mingled with a more vociferous applause, greeted the Rev. Dr. Silas C. Swallow, prohibition candidate for president, who spoke last night in the Central Y. M. C. A. auditorium.

"If the women were allowed to vote," he said to the feminine part of the audience, "I could invite you all to meet me in the White house, and you wouldn't have to climb up on a beer keg to reach the latchkey, either."

Calls "Drunken Labor" the Issue.

Dr. Swallow declared the tariff was not the dominant issue of the campaign; that it had been buffeted back and forth between the two leading political parties like a football, and that voters were made to believe the salvation of the country depended upon it.

"We are not so much concerned," he said, "in keeping out cheap foreign competition as in ridding our country of cheap drunken labor. Our object is to convert the breweries and distilleries into useful factories, and to divert the money spent in liquor interests into legitimate trade channels."

Dr. Swallow criticised the democratic party on the ground of its "not knowing where it got off at," and the republican administration for standing for "a government of liquor sellers, for liquor sellers, and by liquor sellers."

Takes a Rap at Bryan.

"Bryan once told me," he said, "that I should stay in my little corner, and he would stay in his. Here I am still, with the same issue, but Mr. Bryan hasn't staid in the same corner. He is advocating the election of a gold standard candidate, with the understanding that he is going to reorganize the party. We can preach the same gospel in Nebraska as in New York."

Declaring the saloonkeepers were making converts to the prohibition party, Dr. Swallow explained that, while they were legally entitled to prosecute their business, the government was essentially at fault.

"If their business," he said, "is legalized by statutory enactment, we can use this condition as a fulcrum on which to apply our lever."

Dr. Swallow also commented upon the civil service reform, the anti-Mormon, and the qualified suffrage planks in his party's platform. He addressed an overflow meeting afterward in Willard hall.

Silent on "Second Term."

The candidate at noon addressed the members of the Press club. He made his stock invitation to the audience to meet him at the White house.

"I should like to ask an important question," interrupted H. R. Bucklen. "Will you accept a second term at Washington?"

"That question," responded Dr. Swallow with gravity, "I must decline to answer on the ground that it would jeopardize my chances for my first term."

Woolley Assails Bishop Potter.

John G. Woolley at noon spoke to prohibitionists in Willard hall, assailing Bishop Potter for "fostering the so-called prohibition saloon."

"This country is ready for a great Christian ministry," said Mr. Woolley, "but we never can expect to have it while any part of the ministry, as in the case of Bishop Potter, will bow before the power of the liquor traffic. We want the Christian religion, but cannot have it until Christian voters do their part by making the word of the church good by voting against the saloon.

"Probably 25 per cent of the ministers who are against the saloon in the pulpit forget all about their convictions on election day and cast their ballot against the prohibition ticket. A great many of us, too, forget to vote right.

"I fully expect to live to see the time when there will not be a lawful saloon in Chicago, and I appeal to the voters who are in favor of such conditions to assert themselves at the polls."

POLICEMAN SMITH BOSS PIE EATER.

Member of New York Force Beats All Comers in Match in Brooklyn.

HOLDS FOUR BITE GAIT.

Many Novelties in Accommodations to Be Introduced in Steamships.

NEW YORK BUREAU CHICAGO TRIBUNE, New York, Nov. 4.

Patrolman Smith Makes Record as Pie Eater.

Patrolman Terence Smith has been crowned king of the pie eaters in Brooklyn. On Thursday night Smith met the pick of the borough's pie devourers, and in an eat-to-a-finish match showed such form that the other contestants seemed to be eating like dyspeptics. Smith put under his belt sixteen pies of the kind, if not of the quality, his mother used to make.

The contest for the pie eating championship of Brooklyn was held in a café at 506 De Kalb avenue. Smith, upon whom the members of the police force were plunging heavily, led off with a juicy pineapple pie and put it out of sight with four bites. George Meyer, the favorite, however, passed him at the third pie and still was leading when he encountered a thick mince creation on the sixth lap. The mince pie troubled Meyer, so that Smith, who was plodding along at an even four-bites-to-the-pie pace, overhauled him and ate his way into the lead.

Smith still was leading as he fairly romped through three pumpkins, but faltered when he struck a lemon meringue. He got rid of it with five bites, however, and sent two cranberries, a plum, and a cocoanut after it in fast time. At the sixteenth pie he was seven ahead of Meyer, his nearest competitor, who then tossed up the sponge.

Smith, who then just was getting into his pie eating gait, was for going on and finishing with fourteen more mince pies to make a record of thirty, but the manager of the contest declined to assume the responsibility.

Kogoro Takahira, Japanese minister to the United States, was reported today to be much improved. Dr. Shrady said that he thought all danger was passed.

Many Novelties to Be Introduced in New Steamers.

The Hamburg-American line announced today some novelties in the construction of their new monster ships, the Kaiserin Augusta Victoria, and the America, now building respectively at the Vulcan works at Stettin and the yards of Harland & Wolf in Belfast.

Each of the liners will have a grillroom of the proportions of a modern à la carte restaurant, where the passengers may dine when they please and may arrange luncheon and dinner parties for friends whom they may meet on board.

There will be passenger elevators running through all five stories or decks where there are passenger accommodations. There will be also Turkish baths and a large gymnasium.

Boy Commits Forgery to Get Schooling.

Max Niedelman, aged 16 years, the eldest of a family of four children, went to work in a Sixth avenue department store four months ago as a "wrapper." He worked one week, and in that time he learned the signatures of three heads of departments. A punch being necessary to make his time check good, he procured the signatures and manufactured the punch.

Then he stopped wrapping packages and practiced the signatures. His parents didn't know he had stopped work, for he turned in his $10 every week. He went to school every day except Thursday. Then he went to the department store cashier and drew his $10. The forgeries were so good they never suspected him for four months.

Max was arrested today. At the Tenderloin police station he confessed to the forgeries. When he was asked why he did it he said: "Because I wanted to go to school." He carried a volume of Greek Myths under his arm, and his pockets were filled with clippings on political and economic subjects.

Night in Cell for Friend of President.

William Beverly Harison, the publisher, who said he was a schoolmate of President Roosevelt, was arrested for alleged illegal registration yesterday, and spent last night in a station house cell at Flushing because the police sergeant on duty at the station house said he could not accept bail for a prisoner charged with felony.

Patrolman Lawlor, who was investigating the registration lists, called at the Franklin place house and was told Harison did not live there and had not been in the house since Sept. 21, when Mrs. Wittemore took possession. Lawlor said Harison asked if the offense he was charged with was serious and was told he might get five years. He then said:

That's too bad. I wanted to vote for President Roosevelt because he is an old friend and schoolmate of mine."

Countess de Castellane Must Pay Attorney's Fees.

The vexed litigation over the great estate of the countess de Castellane, formerly Miss Anna Gould, whose husband has been said for years to have $4,700,000 of unpaid debts on his hands, was the subject again today of a court decision. Justice Lacombe has signed an order authorizing George J. Gould and Miss Helen Gould, as receivers of the countess' income, to pay certain lawyers annual sums for their services in the legal affairs of the countess. These payments go back to Feb. 7, 1901, and are to reimburse the attorneys for their work. John F. Dillon will receive $1,500 a year, Coudert Bros., $3,000; Coudert Freres of Paris, $3,500; and Charles A. Gardiner of New York, $1,000 a year.

Fog Makes Boating Dangerous; Trains Delayed.

A thick blanket of fog which settled down over New York City and harbor during the night seriously disarranged traffic both by land and water early today and resulted in at least one serious accident. The Columbia, an East river ferry boat, carrying 150 passengers, was run into and sunk, a number of them perishing.

The Garden City, a ferry boat plying between Long Island City and New York, carrying 100 passengers, collided seven times with various craft before it reached its slip in this city. A hole was stove in its side and a portion of its guard rail was carried away.

Finds Subway Air Short of Oxygen.

Dr. August G. Siebert completed a series of tests today of air in the subway. He said they showed one of the subway stations at One Hundred and Third street with as little as 11.9 per cent of oxygen in the air. The average amount of oxygen in surface air is about 20.8 per cent. Dr. Siebert says atmosphere that contains less than 14 per cent is detrimental to health. Dr. Siebert found his library, which hadn't been ventilated for several hours, contained 18 per cent of oxygen.

HOT ON BANDITS' TRAIL.

WYOMING OUTLAWS ARE NOW VIRTUALLY AT BAY.

Slayers of Cashier Middaugh Reach Lair in the Bad Lands, with Two Sheriff's Posses at Their Heels, and a Pitched Battle in Which No Captives Will Be Taken Is Certain—Noted Fighters Engaged in Pursuit of Robbers.

Cheyenne, Wyo., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—The gang of outlaws headed by Harvey Curry which has been operating in the Hole in the Wall country, and members of which shot and killed Cashier Middaugh in the bank holdup at Cody, Wyo., a few days ago, has been trailed into the heart of the bad lands by two sheriff's posses, and it is said their escape now is impossible.

Sheriff Stough of Fremont county and Sheriff Fenton of Big Horn county have reached Derauch, forty-five miles southeast of Thermopolis and 100 miles west of Casper, with their posses and are at the heels of their quarry.

Posses at Heels of Outlaws.

The outlaw band has been trailed to the ranch house of one of their sympathizers, and the northern officers will keep in the rear until reinforcements ordered out from Casper reach the scene, when the officers will close in on their prey, and either capture or slay every member of the band.

Sheriff Webb of Casper has departed for the bad lands with a posse of twenty picked men, among their number being Bob Lee, who, single handed, cleaned out the notorious Bob Smith gang a few years ago and killed Smith. Webb is a celebrated man hunter, having captured or killed a number of bad men.

A report is in circulation at Meeteetse to the effect that officers aided Curry and his gang in escaping from Cody to Meeteetse Tuesday night, by purposely taking out of the way roads while in pursuit of the outlaws. There is much indignation over the matter, but the report has not been substantiated.

Robbers in Wholesale Raid.

Hammond, Ind., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—A wholesale raid was made by robbers at McCoysburg, south of this city, on the Monon railway, last night. Five stores and the postoffice were robbed. In the postoffice the richest booty was obtained. Here the big safe was blown to pieces with nitroglycerine. All the stamps and money, including some church funds that had been deposited there, were taken. The amount stolen is not given out by Postmaster McCoy. All the officers in northern Indiana have been notified of the affair.

Masked Man Holds Up Six Men.

Redding, Cal., Nov. 4.—A masked man armed with a pistol entered a saloon at Cottonwood today and lined six men up with their faces to the wall while he relieved them of $500 in cash and $1,800 in checks. As he left the saloon the robber facetiously remarked, "I hope you boys will make a winning tonight." Charles Emerson, one of the men who was held up, has been arrested on suspicion of complicity in the robbery.

Chicago Couple Robbed of Jewels.

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 4.—Arnold Gundelfinger, a retired merchant, and his wife, former residents of Chicago, were held up in their apartments at the Hotel Dorchester and robbed of jewelry valued at $2,500. According to Mr. Gundelfinger and his wife the robber was James Gates, a former bell boy of the hotel. Gates made his escape.

Banker Robbed of $23,500.

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 4.—The safe of James L. Blodgett, an aged private banker at Hermitage, was blown open early today. The robbers got $1,500 in cash and certificates of deposit amounting to $22,000. Blodgett was robbed of $12,000 about ten years ago.

BLAZE CLOSE TO A THEATER.

Audience at Cleveland's Kept in Ignorance of Confusion Outside—Fire Soon Extinguished.

Although three engine companies, two insurance patrols, and a truck company responded to the alarm sent out for a fire three doors west of Cleveland's theater, not a person in the audience knew what was going on outside. Assistant Chief Burroughs, who was at the theater when the alarm was sent in, went out and warned the drivers to cease ringing their gongs as they approached the theater. In this manner the apparatus drew up so quietly that the noise did not penetrater through the closed exits. To be on the safe side, however, men were stationed at every exit, so that they could be quickly opened in case a panic started. The fire was in the Newport lunchroom and did only nominal damage.

MEETS, PROPOSES, AND MARRIES

William Mitchell, Introduced to Young Woman at Party, Weds Her Sixteen Hours Later.

Three hours after they met for the first time, William Mitchell proposed to Miss Mary Beck and was accepted. Thirteen hours after the beginning of their engagement they were married.

Mitchell, who is 21 years old, is employed in the advertising department of McVicker's theater. He attended a party Thursday night at the residence of his brother-in-law, James Battles, Hill and Wells streets, and there met Miss Beck, who is the daughter of a north side contractor. Their marriage followed yesterday noon in the office of a downtown justice.

Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell had their wedding dinner in a Madison street café, where a fellow-employé found Mitchell and showered him with rice. The diners then filed past the young people, congratulating them, and the proprietor ordered champagne. The wedding was followed in the evening by a reception at the house where Mitchell met his bride.

MINERS CRUSH OUT ENGINEERS.

Men Ordered Back to Work in Illinois Collieries Affected by the Strike.

HOISTERS' UNION IGNORED

Leaders of Larger Organization Alone Attend Conference with Operators and Make Terms.

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—With a heavy heel the powerful organization, the United Mine Workers of America, today stamped the life out of the Brotherhood of Hoisting Engineers and ended the suspension of work in the coal fields of Illinois.

Late tonight the men received notice from their executive committee to go to work, and tomorrow morning the mines will resume with such engineers as are at hand. None of them, however, will be recognized as a member of the brotherhood. Hereafter only members of the United Mine Workers of America will be treated with by the operators and the engineers' brotherhood will be obsolete.

Engineers Not at Conference.

These things were brought about at a series of conferences lasting all day and late into the night. In these conferences the engineers had no part. Their officers were here, coming on the invitation of the miners to participate in the joint conference with the operators, but the latter declined to meet with them. The operators took the position that the engineers, having refused arbitration, could not expect them to treat with them on the same terms as with the miners.

They were ready, however, to discuss the matter of resumption if the engineers were not present. The engineers remained at the hotel while the miners and operators went into conference. The operators said they would expect the miners to carry out their contract, and the miners replied they were willing to do so. They insisted, however, that the engineers ought to be union men, and the operators said they were willing to concede this point and would employ only such engineers as will join the United Mine Workers. After this other details were gone into.

Question of Wages Considered.

After the question of unionism had been decided the meeting took up the matter of wages. A joint committee was appointed, and tonight it is working on the details of the scale. If it fails to agree the question will be submitted to arbitration.

The engineers were dumfounded by the action taken. They expected the miners to insist that they affiliate with the United Mine Workers and were getting ready to do this, but did not expect to be ignored altogether. Under the agreement with the mine workers the operators tomorrow will offer places to all the old engineers as individuals. They can go to work at once, but later they must join the United Mine Workers and submit to the scale on which the operators and the latter association agree.

THE HUB

HENRY C. LYTTON Pres.
STATE, JACKSON & QUINCY STS.

A True Story for Men.

A FEW THOUGHTS AS TO WHY THE BUSINESS OF THIS GREAT CLOTHING STORE IS CONSTANTLY INCREASING.

EVERYBODY knows that in spite of the most exorbitant and bombastic claims made by many advertisers as to values and prices, THE HUB'S business steadily increases. Business today is not chance, and a moment's thought will convince you there is some good reason for this continual progress. It is simple. For many years we have devoted all our time, energy and capital to the advancement of the clothing business, and it is very apparent that concentrated energy in any one direction is bound to bring better results than if divided among a thousand and one things. This, together with always giving the maximum of value for the minimum of price, has built up for this institution the largest clothing business in the world and enables us to under-buy and under-sell all others.

We wish to call particular attention to THE ATTERBURY SYSTEM CLOTHES of which we are Chicago's sole agents. Only a very few custom tailors can make garments equal to this celebrated line and they ask double our prices. We are always pleased to show this handsome apparel and it will repay you to look them over.

Hub clothing for boys is made in the same superior way as the clothing for men. Every fabric is all wool and every garment is made from special Hub specifications. We have all the usual styles as well as many attractive exclusive designs. Below are a few suggestions for both men and boys:

Men's swell frock overcoats, in paletot and surtout styles, fashioned by the most expert tailors, $22.00 to $50.00.

Men's genuine Sedan montegnac overcoats, the costliest fabric woven, lined with finest silks, equal to a custom tailor's $100 garment, $55 and $60.

Men's Suits.

MURDER OF GIRL STILL A MYSTERY.

Police Find No Clews in Connection with Crime in Cincinnati Suburb.

STRANGER IS SUSPECTED.

Theory That Man Who Left Car When Miss Steingeweg Did Caused Her Death.

Cincinnati, O., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—Another day has passed and not one tangible clew to the murderer of Alma Steingeweg has been found. The police still cling to the theory that the girl was struck by a street car in spite of the statement of the coroner that the girl was killed instantly when struck and could not have walked a foot, much less a hundred yards, to the place where the body was found.

The people of Cumminsville, where the tragedy took place, are much incensed over the alleged inactivity of the police. Women all over the city are much frightened and refuse to leave their homes at night without an escort.

The general opinion of those who have investigated the case most closely is that the man who murdered Alma Steingeweg killed Lulu Mueller about a month ago and May MacDonald last May, and that he is a moral pervert who may be likened to "Jack the Ripper" and "Strangler" Knapp.

President John Kilgour of the Bell Telephone company offered a reward of $1,000 for the apprehension and conviction of the guilty parties.

Stranger Is Suspected.

Frank Limle, the conductor on whose car Miss Steingeweg rode on her way home Wednesday night, said the girl had been in the habit of going home on that car, and Limle knew her by sight. He says that on Monday night, a short, stout man, a stranger, boarded the car with Miss Steingeweg and sat facing her. He alighted when she did, with other passengers.

Miss Steingeweg had a transfer for the Winton road car, but the stranger asked for no transfer. The conductor wondered why the man took the car for such a short distance. Tuesday night the man did the same. Then also other passengers got off with Miss Steingeweg, but on Wednesday night the man alighted alone with his victim. The conductor infers that the presence of other passengers caused the murderer to desist until Wednesday night.

Was Dusty and Nervous.

Coupled with this is the statement of Jacob Kollmer, a saloonkeeper, who says a stranger, dusty and nervous, entered his place a few squares from the scene of the murder at 10:15 Wednesday night and asked the nearest place to board a freight train. Kollmer directed him to Elmwood place, and he left hurriedly.

May Solve Dentist's Murder.

New Ulm, Minn., Nov. 4.—The murder of Dr. L. A. Gebhard, the young dentist whose body was found in his office Tuesday night with his throat cut and his head badly crushed, still remains a mystery, although suspicion points to two residents of this city. Editor Asa P. Brooks of the Review, whose office is near, who on hearing the commotion, looked through the transom, says that he recognized only one man, but the theory of the police is that another might have been in the room.

Shoots Sweetheart and Self.

Bay City, Mich., Nov. 4.—William Muthart, a farm hand, living near Munger, about eight miles from here, today shot his sweetheart, Martha Zuba, three times, after they had quarreled, and then sent a bullet into his own brain. He was dead when found by the sheriff and the girl is not expected to live.

Girl's Body Found in Pasture.

Marshall, Mo., Nov. 4.—The body of Miss Rea Butts, aged 23 years, a servant girl of this city, was found today in the suburbs of South Marshall in a pasture. The girl evidently had been murdered. Her throat had been cut with a sharp stick, her left ear had been cut off, and there was a bullet hole in her head. There was evidence that the girl had made a struggle for her life. A cigaret near the body and bloody tracks leading away from the spot are the only tangible clews. Two young men were seen with her Wednesday.

DR. HIRSCH SAYS MARRIAGE IS IN NO SENSE A "PICNIC."

Blames Romantic Impulses of Young Persons and the Carelessness of Parents for the Prevalence of Divorce.

Romantic impulses of young persons, who treat life too lightly and look upon runaway marriages as "larks," were declared by Dr. Emil G. Hirsch in an address at Temple Israel last evening to be responsible for 50 per cent of the divorce cases. Another cause of marital unhappiness and separation, he said, is the failure of American parents to exercise proper jurisdiction in the selection of life partners for their children.

"Marriage—Should It Be for Life?" was the subject on which Dr. Hirsch spoke.

"Religion has much to do with the happiness of married life," he said, "in that it undoubtedly molds the thought and influences character. This has been proved, and, though its effect may be imperceptible, still the influence exists. Persons of a like religion will think along similar lines, and in this way have much in common.

"Here in America no law governs marriage so far as the will of parents is concerned, but where the law is absent our own moral sense of right should control our acts.

"Runaway marriages are the source of much of the misery in homes and of the rush orders in the divorce courts. The older we get, the more we know that life is not a picnic—a boat ride on the lake in the moonlight—but is a serious reality. To derive from it the highest pleasure we should live for one another.

"The terms 'dearest' and 'darling' in themselves carry no meaning, and sometimes are but an outward show, often as falsely assumed as the 'humbleness' of Uriah Heep.

"Were divorce looked upon now as a disgrace, as in olden times, it would be taken up and discussed with greater energy in women's clubs."

LOCAL BREVITIES.

Receiver for Ogden Estate.—Eugene H. Fishburn was appointed receiver yesterday for the estate of William B. Ogden. The action taken was by agreement of all the heirs. The estate is to be divided. The assets are valued at $5,000,000.

KILLS TO POSE AS A HERO.

ALIENIST SAYS VANITY CAUSED ROLAND O'SHEA TO SLAY.

Prof. James Kiernan Declares Uxoricide Was Sane—Believed He Loved Wife Only as Some Persons Love Money, as a Possession—Testimony Shows Disregard for Rights of Others — Dr. Moyer Testifies That Insane Man May Reason.

That Victor Roland O'Shea was insane when he shot and killed his wife, Amy, was denied yesterday by Dr. Harold N. Moyer and Prof. James G. Kiernan, summoned as alienists by the prosecution in the trial before Judge Chetlain.

"His motive for the crime was an overwhelming desire to pose as a romantic hero," said Prof. Kiernan. "He wanted to strike a pose before the public."

"Do you think he loved his wife?" asked Attorney Darrow.

"Yes; as some people love money, because it is a possession."

"What traits of character would you say contributed in his case to the homicidal impulse?"

"Vanity and self-esteem and a disregard for the rights of others. The pawnshop incident in this boy's life is significant in this particular. According to the evidence, he boasted to his wife that he intended to take a broken violin to a pawnbroker and then sue him for breaking it."

Tells of Hereditary Taints.

As the result of testimony previously offered to show that several members of the O'Shea family had been mentally unbalanced, the witness was asked concerning the prevalence of hereditary insanity.

"Where there is a trace of mental trouble in a family we look for it in succeeding generations," was the answer. "It frequently reappears."

The testimony of Dr. Moyer was concerned principally with the symptoms of insanity. On cross examination he was asked to what extent an insane person, such as O'Shea was represented to be, might retain control of his faculties.

"An insane man may reason, remember, and premeditate," he said.

Impeaches Witness for State.

Arthur E. Hood, 16 years old, testified in behalf of the defense that he had heard a conversation between Miss Jennie Custy, a witness for the state, and a friend, in which the Custy girl had contradicted her own testimony as to O'Shea's sanity.

"I distinctly heard her say she didn't believe Roland would have killed his wife if he had known what he was doing," said Hood.

M. F. Blondell, a neighbor of O'Shea's father-in-law, Emmanuel Hogenson, testified he had heard Hogenson say he regretted the indictment of O'Shea by the grand jury.

"Mr. Hogenson told me not long after the shooting that in view of all the circumstances of the case he preferred to have the indictment quashed and to have nothing more to do with the case."

Father Will Testify Again.

Several other witnesses will be summoned by the defense this morning, including Attorney P. J. O'Shea, the defendant's father, and the opening argument for the prosecution then will be made by Assistant State's Attorney Barbour. An adjournment then may be taken until Wednesday morning, owing to the election.

BULLETS FLY IN THE STREET.

Detective Fires Several Shots at Escaped Prisoner and Frightens Many Downtown Pedestrians.

Many pedestrians near Taylor and State streets last night were frightened when Detective Smith of the Harrison street station fired several shots at a prisoner who had broken from his grasp. Passengers on State street cars tried to leap to the ground, but conductors prevented this.

The man, who is at liberty, is suspected of burglaries.

Mrs. Philip Ryan, a guest at the Merchants' hotel, Lake and Clark streets, told the police she left $100 on a dresser in her room and that when she returned it was gone.

DANGERS TO FOOD SUPPLY

PRESERVATIVES DECLARED INJURIOUS TO DIGESTION.

Dr. W. H. Wiley, Chief of Bureau of Chemistry at Washington, Gives Results of Investigation of Effect of Borax and Boric Acid on the Human System — These Antiseptics Styled the Least Harmful of All of Their Class.

Philadelphia Pa., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—Dr. W. H. Wiley, chief of the bureau of chemistry of the United States department of agriculture, whose "poison squad" attracted general notice several months ago, delivered a lecture on the effect on health and digestion of the use of preservatives in food stuffs tonight under the auspices of the Franklin institute.

After discussing various means of preservation, Dr. Wiley spoke of experiments conducted at Washington a short time ago and their object. He said:

"In these experiments borax and boric acid were added to food, beginning with small and gradually increasing to large doses each day. These experiments were carried on during a period of about nine months.

Cause Disordered Digestion.

"Boric acid and borax in gradually increasing doses with maximum of three to five grams a day," said he, "cause disturbance of digestion and health, manifested in loss of appetite, loss of weight, a feeling of uneasiness, and sometimes illness in the stomach, fullness in the head, which often developed into a dull and persistent headache, and general disturbance of the metabolic functions of digestion and other disturbances. When borax and boric acid are administered in small doses—namely: one-half gram (seven and a half grains) a day over a long period of time similar symptoms in less acute form developed in the majority of cases.

Least Harmful of Antiseptics.

"Borax and boric acid are regarded by experts as the least harmful of antiseptics employed. Miscellaneous and premeditated use of these antiseptics in food is reprehensible.

"It is evident that eating small quantities of borax in food occasionally would not prove of any lasting injury to the ordinary citizen in good health, but the weak and feeble must be protected, and it is entirely within the grounds of reason that even a small quantity of antiseptic of this kind would prove harmful to a disordered stomach."

ROMANCE IN A HOSPITAL.

H. C. PIERCE WEDS THE TRAINED NURSE WHO SAVED HIS LIFE.

Elgin Man, Wounded by Holdup Man and Taken to the Presbyterian, Is Cared For by Miss Margaret Bryson and Recovers Only to Lose His Heart to Her—Wedding Follows and the Bride Is Introduced Finally to the Mother of the Bridegroom.

All the essentials of a melodrama are contained in the romance of H. C. Pierce, revealed yesterday by the announcement of his marriage. His bride is a trained nurse, the daughter of Dr. W. G. Bryson, 4918 Calumet avenue. This will afford a clew to the plot unfolded in the acts which follow.

Act one is laid in Elgin, with green fields and placid river in the distance behind the Pierce homestead. The time is a year ago. The only son of a wealthy mother, young Pierce decides to leave home and win his own way in the world. He came to Chicago.

Fortune making is not always easy in Chicago, and act two, time March 18 last, finds Pierce working as conductor on a North Halsted electric car. Not a particularly romantic avocation for a hero, but wait.

Is Shot by a Highwayman.

First comes the villain, a negro highwayman, who holds up Pierce's car. The conductor fights to save the company's money and the watch his mother gave him. There is a struggle and Pierce is shot. The robber escapes, but the money and watch are saved.

The rising of the curtain for act three discloses the conductor unconscious and apparently dying in the Presbyterian hospital. White clad internes and nurses hover about him, but the bullet had pierced the abdomen and the case is declared hopeless.

Dr. Nicholas Senn is called in for consultation, and he summons Margaret Bryson, a graduate nurse, to care for the wounded man. She is considered an expert in emergency cases, and hour after hour she watches over Pierce.

Dawn of Hospital Romance.

At the end of three days the wounded man rallies, and not till then does Miss Bryson seek rest. The fall of the curtain leaves Pierce out of danger and showing the incipient signs of an affection of the heart.

All through act four Miss Bryson watches over her patient, who rallies rapidly from the bullet wound. But the heart malady grows as rapidly. There are symptoms, too, that the young nurse is taking more than a professional interest in her patient. When the day comes on which he is discharged as cured Pierce takes Miss Bryson's hand.

"You saved my life," he tells her. "Now make it worth the saving. Without you existence is worse than the grave. I love you, Margaret."

And Miss Bryson, after an ineffectual effort to release her hand, surrenders both hand and heart. Quick curtain.

Last Act in the Romance.

The last act was yesterday. Miss Bryson and Pierce were married in Chicago on Sept. 18, but the ceremony was kept a secret. In the morning Pierce and his bride returned to the homestead in Elgin. He rings the door bell; they enter the house and then his mother appears.

"Mother," says Pierce, "this is my wife. She saved my life when others declared I must die." The elder woman clasps the younger in her arms. And the curtain comes down.

CALL TO THANKSGIVING FROM A KENTUCKY MAYOR.

Saints and Sinners Urged to Be Good and to Deliver Poor from Thin Soup and Cold Potatoes.

Henderson, Ky., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—Mayor J. H. Powell has issued a Thanksgiving proclamation that gets far away from the ordinary official papers. The proclamation is as follows:

By authority vested in me, as mayor of an unpretentious little city, I do thus publicly proclaim:

Whereas, In accord with Christian custom, Thursday, Nov. 24, 1904, hath been set apart as a day of thanksgiving and prayer, I do beseech saints and sinners to go to church and be good. Whether chanting hymns, shooting quail, or sipping delicious potion from the eyes of beauty, "keep innocency, and take heed unto the thing that is right, for that shall bring a man peace at the last."

Let us be thankful that our colonels are not so full of corn as our corn is full of kernels.

Though the surrounding soil, tickled with a hoe, is laughing with a harvest, poor folks are still with us. From thin soup and cold potatoes, good Lord, deliver them. O! Christian men and women, astonish the stomach of the starving sufferer with oysters, turkey, and mince pie. Adorn the ragged pauper with comfortable clothing. An ounce of practice is worth a pound of preaching.

Dearly beloved, let us play upon a harp of a thousand strings a new song of praise, give thanks unto the Lord for the most charming crop of beautiful babies ever born in the old town since creation dawned and the morning stars sang together. Sweet, dainty darlings, smile on, like sunbeams in shady places. Kick up your little heels and make of earth a heaven.

With charity unto all and malice toward none, I do hereunto subscribe my official signature to the words that have been written this 3d day of November, 1904.

J. H. POWELL,
Mayor of Henderson, Ky.

PERRY HEARING TO BEGIN TODAY.

Defense First Asks Postponement, Then Requests Immediate Action.

CHARGE OF INTIMIDATION

Prosecution Accused of Trying to Prove Arson by Threatening Witnesses.

Isaac N. Perry, former president of the National Bank of North America, will be arraigned today on a charge of arson before Justice Callahan of South Chicago.

Fire Department Attorney Johnson had been told at noon by Attorney Moritz Rosenthal, for Mr. Perry, that a ten days' continuance would be asked. To this Mr. Johnson made no objection, and he sent out to the forty witnesses the city has, telling them they need not appear. At 6 o'clock in the evening a message was received that the defense would be ready to go to trial today. The fire investigator then sent out policemen to countermand the notice to witnesses.

On the eve of the hearing sensational charges were made by Attorney Rosenthal. He accused Attorney Johnson of intimidating witnesses who have been subpœnaed for the prosecution. Men would be called on the stand today, Attorney Rosenthal said, to prove his assertions.

The chief witness mentioned in connection with the intimidation story was Charles Sullivan, a driver for the Farrell livery stable. He was expected to furnish evidence connecting Perry with the disappearance of a box of charcoal bricks, which, according to a theory, may have been used in setting fire to the Hegewisch locomotive plant.

Denies Intimidation Story.

When he heard of the accusations Attorney Johnson laughed.

"If Mr. Rosenthal thinks," said he, "that we place much importance upon Sullivan's testimony he is sadly mistaken. I doubt if the coachman's affidavit will even be introduced by the prosecution. As for the intimidation story it betokens only the weakness of the defense. Mr. Perry will find that we have better things up our sleeve than that."

Mr. Rosenthal insisted that he had secured an affidavit from Sullivan charging the police and fire investigators with obtaining from him by threats and misrepresentations a statement implicating Perry in the disappearance of the charcoal bricks.

"What is more," said Attorney Rosenthal, "I have a witness who will testify that Attorney Johnson compelled Sullivan to sign an affidavit, the contents of which the latter complained he knew nothing about."

Mr. Rosenthal could not be induced to say that warrants for Johnson would be sworn out on intimidation charges. He said that the office of fire attorney was illegally constituted under the statutes, but he would not admit that his belief on this point was strong enough to justify action on his part.

Fire Attorney Johnson dismissed the latter assertion with a curt comment.

Thirty Witnesses to Be Called.

Attorney Johnson, who, with Assistant State's Attorney Lindley and Haynie Pearson, will conduct the prosecution today, was busy yesterday arranging the evidence against Perry. About thirty witnesses will be called by the prosecution. They will include Charles Bock, watchman at the Hegewisch plant, and Lieut. Crane of the Hegewisch police station.

Besides testimony intended to reveal the actions of Perry from the time he paid his Sunday afternoon visit to the locomotive works until the burning of the buildings, the prosecution has in reserve witnesses who are counted on to meet the lines of defense which it is expected Mr. Perry's attorneys will pursue. Attorney Johnson refused to be specific on this point, but said he was prepared to meet the defensive efforts.

With the failure of F. M. Pease to put in an appearance one important element in the defense was regarded by the fire investigators as eliminated. Mr. Pease, who was expected to testify that he had offered Mr. Perry $200,000 for the locomotive plant and thus remove any alleged motive for arson, is in New York. Attorney Rosenthal said his appearance at the hearing this afternoon was doubtful. At the office of Mr. Pease in the Railway Exchange building his secretary said he was confident that Mr. Pease would not be in Chicago for the hearing.

Close Iroquois Case at Noon.

Both Attorney Rosenthal and Assistant State's Attorney Lindley have arranged to finish their pleas in the Iroquois theater case before Judge Kersten by noon today, thus giving them freedom to enter upon the Perry hearing.

Whether or not Perry is bound over by Justice Callahan, the evidence, according to the city attorneys, will be laid before the grand jury.

Is meeting with not only an unquestioned success from the selling standpoint, but it is achieving the even more difficult distinction of a literary success. These two are seldom united in one book. Here, for example, are what two leading journals say:

The New York Times Saturday Review

"The book is very charming, and in much very true. Not a man who has been a real country boy, or who has been cheated by his elders (always with the best motives) of being all the boy he might have been, but, if he has grown up to be ripe enough, will seem to find himself again in many of Mr. Darrow's pages.

'Our impression is that Mr. Darrow has shown real art in the handling of one of the most difficult forms of literature."

The Dial

"'Farmington' is not a book to be taken from the public library, or even to be borrowed from an obliging friend. It is a book to own—to read by the winter's fire, and re-read under a summer tree; a book to be kept on the shelf where the oldest favorites live. It is a book for boys, for women—but above all, it is a book for men who have once been boys."

These two distinguished examples illustrate perfectly the prevailing tone of all the reviews of this rare and delightful book.

HALF STUDY DAY FOR 11,000 PUPILS

Supt. Cooley Says 85 Portable School Buildings are Needed at Once.

TEACHERS OVERWORKED.

Overcrowding in Classes Worst in History of the Board of Education.

Over 11,000 Chicago public school children are limited to half a day in school because the school buildings cannot accommodate them. In seventy schools the classes are so large that the pupils' progress is hampered. Many teachers are so overburdened with work that they are physically unable to do it satisfactorily. In some of the schools children are taught in insanitary basement rooms, where the sunshine never penetrates and which are cold and damp. If the board continues to erect new buildings at the present rate relief from the overcrowded conditions will not come for twenty years.

The foregoing are some of the statements made by Supt. Edwin G. Cooley at the meeting of the buildings and grounds committee of the board of education yesterday. He declared that conditions at some of the schools are deplorable. By making this statement Supt. Cooley stole the ammunition which the Chicago Teachers' federation has been collecting to use against him.

Wants Eighty-five Portable Schools.

To relieve conditions, Supt. Cooley called upon the committee to advertise for bids for the building of eighty-five portable schools, to be located in the yards or on property adjoining the congested schools.

The committee voted to advertise at once for bids for twenty schools, making the total number already provided for twenty-six. The portable schools are to cost approximately $2,000 each and must be built within sixty days.

The committee also voted an appropriation of $500,000 for a new manual training high school to be erected on the site of the present Lyman Trumbull school, Division and Sedgwick streets. It was decided also to reopen the old Thomas Hoyne school, Cass and Indiana streets, as a school for apprentices, and to abandon the two rooms in the Tilden school which Supt. Cooley declared insanitary.

The figures presented by Supt. Cooley to show the overcrowding were based on the attendance report for the last month. The figures show unprecedented increase in the attendance at all the schools in the poorer districts, due, it is said, to the enforcement of the new child labor and compulsory education laws.

The number of pupils in half day sessions, as shown by districts, is as follows:

District 1	2,823	District 5	1,909
District 2	1,069	District 6	633
District 3	2,502
District 4	2,161	Total	11,206

The third district, in which the conditions are worst, includes the Ghetto district and all the congested territory west of the river.

PALMER TO PAY AUTO DAMAGE.

Judgment for $11 Given Because of Accident When Chauffeur Was Entertaining Friends.

The damage caused by the automobile of Potter Palmer Jr. on Derby day of last year, when it was being used by his chauffeur to entertain the latter's friends, amounted to $11.92. A judgment against Palmer for this amount was given yesterday to A. L. Johns, whose carriage was struck by the automobile.

Hall told Justice Martin that he had taken several friends out in the auto while Mr. Palmer was at the track and during the time the accident occurred.

Walter Ryer, 5518 Washington avenue, was fined $5 and costs by Justice Quinn for speeding his auto in the Midway Plaisance. George Blittner, 2011 Fillmore avenue, a chauffeur employed by a local automobile concern, was fined $3 for a similar offense.

WARNS NEW 'GAMBLERS' TRUST.'

Assistant Chief Schuettler Says It Will Not Be Permitted to Establish Poolrooms.

Assistant Chief of Police Herman Schuettler is waiting for an alleged new gambling trust to make the first move. In answer to a rumor circulated yesterday that Tom McGinnis and the Murphy brothers were preparing to install a big clearing house, with wires strung to all the race tracks and a chain of poolrooms, the assistant cheif said: "I should like to see them do it."

"I have warned the Murphy brothers," he declared, "that they can furnish no more gambling paraphernalia to the poolroom men while I am here. I made my assertion good recently when I stripped their headquarters of telephone apparatus. We shall continue along the same lines if any of the gamblers try to start again."

West End Club Women Study Bookbinding

BOOKBINDING. BY MISS GERTRUDE STILES

If the hundred members of the West End Woman's club keep the promises they made to themselves yesterday they will call on their husbands to buy them a bookbinding machine or a potter's wheel. They took their first lessons in both crafts at the club meeting. They watched Miss Gertrude Stiles bind books and gathered around Judson T. Webb while he molded a clay vase.

"I think I'll start in by binding Tracy's old books," declared Mrs. F. K. Tracy, chairman of the education department.

"The next vase that goes into our library will be home made," declared Mrs. Beers.

An exhibit of arts and crafts was held in connection with the celebration of "educational day" at the new clubhouse, Monroe street and Ashland boulevard. Mrs. James Frake, the newly elected president of the state federation, addressed the meeting.

SAYS MOTHER-IN-LAW URGED THAT HE GET A NEW WIFE.

Divorce Defendant Declares Relative Told Him She Would Aid in Search After Separation from Plaintiff.

The mother-in-law figured in a divorce case in a new way yesterday. Dr. Charles Heller, opposing his wife's second suit, declared Mrs. Bertha Greenhoot in May, 1903, came to his house and told him his wife did not care to live with him any longer and that he should "look out for another wife." He asserts his mother-in-law reminded him that he was young and had a good practice and income, which would aid him in his search.

"I told her that she was crazy, like the rest of her family," testified Dr. Heller, "and that my wife was crazy, too, and I showed her out."

Dr. Heller, who was sued on statutary grounds, asserted that because of mental and physical infirmities his wife easily is influenced by her mother and her uncles and is entirely subservient to them. Her fortune of $40,000 left her by her father is managed by relatives in Michigan.

The physician has sued his mother-in-law for $50,000 damages for alienating the affections of his wife, who lives with her mother at 4417 Berkeley avenue.

George W. Wilson was given a decree against Edith R. Wilson, 3514 Vincennes avenue. Detectives and saloons figured in the case.

Emily Louise Case sued Wilbur R. Case, a leather merchant, at 201 Lake street, charging drunkenness. She yesterday left his house at 1062 Leland avenue.

Daniel Thomson, president of the Thomson Electrical company, 315 Dearborn street, was sued by Mrs. Fannie Thomson on statutory grounds. He has paid her $50 a month since their separation in 1888.

Mrs. Jessie Pattison, married to Edmund B. Pattison two weeks after his divorce, appealed from a decision ordering her to pay a $750 claim against Pattison's estate.

IN HIDING WITH GRANDCHILD.

Mrs. Louise O'Malley Refuses to Allow Her Son-in-Law to Secure His Young Daughter.

Determined that her son-in-law, Albert J. Hartkie, shall not secure the custody of his 2 year old daughter, Louise, Mrs. Louise O'Malley, the grandmother, has left her home at 559 West Addison avenue and is hiding at the house of a friend. Yesterday Hartkie with a companion entered Mrs. O'Malley's house and attempted to take the child, it is said. Mrs. O'Malley called for help and J. Miller, a neighbor, hurried to her assistance. The visitors then left. A few hours later Mrs. O'Malley left home, taking the girl with her.

BRITISH AMBASSADOR HERE: WILL STAY UNTIL MONDAY.

Sir Henry Mortimer Durand Visits University of Chicago and Is Entertained by Mr. and Mrs. John Crerar.

Sir Henry Mortimer Durand, British ambassador to the United States, is making his first visit to Chicago. He arrived yesterday afternoon and was met at the railway station by John Crerar and Robert Lincoln, former United States minister to the court of St. James, who accompanied him to the University of Chicago. They visited President Harper and inspected some of the departments.

Sir Henry was the guest of honor last evening at a small and informal dinner at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. John Crerar, 1827 Michigan avenue. Others present were Mr. Lincoln, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Cobb, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Insull, Henry Dibblee, Miss Catherine Jones, and Miss Belden.

The ambassador expects to view the stockyards and other sights of interest in Chicago today, and will meet a few friends at the Virginia hotel, where he is stopping. Mr. Insull will be his host at a luncheon at the Chicago club. Sir Henry will resume his journey Monday morning to the Louisiana exposition.

BELIEVE MAN WAS MURDERED.

Police Obtain a Postponement of Inquest in Case of Drowning in Lake Calumet.

The inquest on the body of the unidentified man found in Lake Calumet several days ago was postponed yesterday at the request of the police, who believe the man was killed and thrown into the water.

A coroner's physician made a post-mortem examination and reported he discovered nothing to indicate foul play. Dr. F. Moore of Pullman had declared no water was found in the man's lungs.

The body is that of a man, gray haired, light complexioned, and apparently 55 years old. It was cheaply dressed.

MEET TO DISCUSS NEW FRANCHISE.

Corporation Counsel and Receiver Sampsell Have an Informal Talk.

HOPE FOR A SETTLEMENT.

Union Traction Interests Claim to Control Underlying Companies.

Corporation Counsel Tolman and Receiver Sampsell of the Union Traction company had a talk yesterday morning regarding the granting of a new franchise for the street railway corporation. It was an informal affair, going no further than an interchange of personal views, but was regarded as indicating, on Judge Grosscup's part at least, a desire to come to some kind of an understanding with the city on the franchise question.

"Mr. Sampsell was here on entirely different business," said Maj. Tolman, in speaking of the conference, "and our talk was of the most informal kind. No attempt to come to an agreement was made on either side and none could have been possible.

"What I told him was that in my opinion unless the Union Traction company soon met the city with some plan of settlement similar to the tentative ordinance of the Chicago City company the time when any settlement could be made would pass away.

"As I view it, unless the company makes a proposal to the city which the latter could accept and which could be advocated before the public the result will be that the referendum vote will go on record against passing any franchise ordinance at all and that will be the end of the matter."

Plans of Judge Grosscup.

As Mr. Sampsell is the personal representative of Judge Grosscup on the board of receivers, his visit to Maj. Tolman was generally understood to be a further step in the judge's desire to have the city and the company get together on some plan of settlement.

It is also reported that if the judge does arrange for reopened negotiations with the city Receiver John C. Fetzer is more likely to be his representative than John S. Miller. The criticism the city officials make on Mr. Miller's actions is that he never showed a real desire to settle the question, while it is known Mr. Fetzer is anxious to do it. The excuse given for Mr. Miller's course, however, is that the Union Traction people did not wish to come to the trading point until the attempt to acquire the Chicago City property had succeeded or failed. That apparently has failed.

Claim Change of Control.

Receiver Sampsell was quoted as saying that a majority of the stock of the north and west side companies is now held by the Hollins-Govin interest, which is in control of Union Traction. If this proves true it will mean the choice at the January elections of board of directors for these underlying companies in sympathy with the Union Traction corporation.

Receiver Henry A. Blair for the underlying companies denied that such control had been secured, but it is known that the Hollins-Govin people have been quietly buying up this underlying stock, and it is possible that, even if they have not a majority, between what they hold and what is in the hands of their friends they have a practical control.

Decrease of Earnings.

The auditor's reports of the business of Union Traction for September are anything but flattering. There is a decrease of $7 900 in the gross receipts of the north side company and of $11,000 in the west side, while the operating expenses of west side show an increase of $15,000. The Consolidated company shows a deficit of $25,000, of which $10,000 is charged up against the north side and $15,000 to the west side company. Altogether the net earnings of the north side are cut down to $40.000 and of the west side to $35,000 for the month.

If from this is subtracted the 22 per cent of the gross earning to be charged to the north side lines for maintenance and the 24 per cent to the west, both companies will show an actual deficit for the month, and there will be nothing left for rents. The instructions of Judge Grosscup, however, are that this maintenance charge shall be made quarterly. There is little hope, though, that the October and November figures will be any better than the September ones.

TWO YEAR OLD BABY LOST: WANDERS 24 HOURS ALONE.

Child Found Half Mile Away from Home After Mother and Neighbors Had Searched Long in Vain.

After wandering alone through North Side streets for twenty-four hours, 2 year old Walter Kunow, son of Mrs. Kate Kunow, 138 East Erie street, was found in Division street, nearly two miles from home, late yesterday afternoon. The baby was sent to the East Chicago avenue police station, and there his frantic mother found him. Followed by a crowd of her neighbors, who had searched for the lost child for hours, Mrs. Kunow carried the baby home, and for the rest of the day refused to let him out of her sight.

Thursday afternoon the child was playing in front of the house with a dozen other children. Half an hour later he was missing. The mother and friends at once began a search, but no trace of the child could be found.

The police were notified, but it was not until yesterday afternoon that the child was found. How he reached Division street no one knows, and he is too young to tell. In order to stray from his home to the point where he was found the child had to cross a dozen busy streets and car tracks, and how he escaped being run down is a mystery to the police.

DR. SENN FIGURES IN RUMOR.

Reported to Have Left Rush Medical College Because of Difficulties with Management.

No confirmation could be found of a rumor yesterday that Dr. Nicholas Senn had severed his relations with Rush Medical college because of friction between him and the college authorities. Dr. Senn operated at the Presbyterian hospital in the afternoon.

"If my father has left Rush," said Dr. E. J. Senn last night, "the action was entirely voluntary and because he did not wish to devote time to the college to the exclusion of his practice. He has been neglecting his practice for clinical work."

Dr. J. M. Dodson, speaking for the college, said there was no truth in the report.

The Tomlins School of Music

IMPORTANT

An Extra Class for SCHOOL MUSIC SUPERVISORS.

THE demand for School Music Supervisors, trained by Mr. Tomlins, is so great that he has decided to form an Extra Class, for his regular two years' course, to begin study in January instead of September. Students for this Extra Class can register up to Jan. 10, 1905. Study begins Jan. 2, 1905. The class, by special effort, will be graduated July, 1906, in time to fill Fall engagements as Supervisors.

Wm. L. Tomlins is recognized as a superlatively great teacher.

In the Tomlins School of Music he teaches teachers how to teach as he teaches.

Teachers trained by him are superlative in efficiency. Consequently there is a superlative opportunity for them.

Boards of Education and Superintendents of Schools want Tomlins teachers—the demand is greater than the supply—hence this Extra Class.

MEACHAM'S CAMPAIGN LETTERS.

It is the duty of the board of review to estimate as exactly as possible the values of the different parcels of property in Chicago just as a judge should estimate as exactly as possible the legal rights and wrongs of cases brought before him.

The board of review should do no favors in taxing matters, for a favor is more than justice, and to give more than justice to one taxpayer necessarily means the giving of less than justice to other taxpayers. During the present political campaign letters on board of review letter heads, stamped with the facsimile signature of F. D. Meacham, have been sent to certain taxpayers, notifying them that their assessments have been reduced and inclosing campaign cards of candidate Meacham. What is the inference except that Mr. Meacham solicits votes from those whose taxes have been reduced on account of the fact that their taxes have been reduced?

This reduction of the taxes was either a favor or it was not. If it was a favor it was improper. If it was not a favor, why should Mr. Meacham solicit votes on account of it?

Suppose a judge, running for reëlection, should send out notices to all successful litigants who had come before him during the previous term of office in the following form: "Dear Sir: On such a date you appeared before me. The case was decided in your favor. I am a candidate for reëlection. Yours truly ——." Such an action would be essentially improper. Though the judge had been guilty of no breach of trust during his incumbancy, yet he would be setting a most dangerous example.

It is true that other members of the board of review have in previous campaigns done much as Mr. Meacham has done in this campaign. But the practice should be so sternly discountenanced that it will never be repeated in the future.

RECIPROCITY WITH CANADA.

The liberal party has won the Canadian election. While there is at present but a slight difference between the principles of the two parties, the liberals are traditionally more favorable to reciprocity with the United States than are the conservatives. Formerly they favored free trade with this country, but when our government rejected all the overtures for closer trade relations with the dominion the liberals were compelled to drop the issue or lose their self-respect. Had this country come forward thirteen years ago, when the liberal party was in power, and made a proposal for reciprocity, the North American continent would not now be divided by hostile tariffs, to the commercial disadvantage of each section.

Still the victory of the liberals should be gratifying to those Americans who believe that the time is come for this country to make amends for its former short sightedness. The liberals have been "Canada for the Canadians." They believe that Canada should be ruled solely by the self-interests of the colony and not by sentiment for the British flag. But it must be understood that our neighbors to the north will not be the ones to take the initiative towards continental reciprocity. This government must make the advances.

The imperialistic press of Canada is anxious to circulate the impression that reciprocity with the United States is a dead issue. It maintains that "in no province of the dominion is there any sentiment in favor of it." This, however, is not true. In his thorough canvass of the situation last August, Mr. John H. Raftery, THE TRIBUNE correspondent, found the sentiment for reciprocity strongly pronounced in the maritime provinces of Quebec, Newfoundland, New Brunswick, and Nova Scotia. Throughout the dominion he found the manufacturing interests arrayed against lower tariffs, but, on the other hand, the agricultural interests were in favor of the idea of free trade with this country. In the provinces of Manitoba and the new wheat belt—the provinces of Alberta, Assiniboia, and Saskatchewan—the majority of the population would vote for reciprocity today if the question were submitted to them. The fact that the rural class is favorable to reciprocity is significant. The bulk of the immigration now pouring into Canada is settling upon farms. This means that the interests of the growing element in Canada's population are arrayed naturally on the side of closer trade relations with this country.

The natural persistent interests of both Canada and the United States demand commercial union. The boundary between them is wholly artificial. This country needs the vast natural resources of the territory to the north. Canada needs our highly developed industries and their products. The next congress will leave a most important duty unperformed if it does not inaugurate a policy looking toward the commercial amalgamation which nature intended. Political union will follow if commercial union proves the success anticipated.

ROOSEVELT, PARKER, AND TRUSTS.

In his speech of acceptance Judge Parker said that the common law was sufficient for the regulation of the trusts and that no further legislation seemed necessary. Roosevelt, in his letter of acceptance, pointed out that there was no federal common law. The country thought that Parker's break was simply an unfortunate error.

But shortly afterwards, to the astonishment of everybody, Parker reiterated that the common law was sufficient for the trusts, and maintained that there was a common law applicable, instancing the Western Union case. This case, as was quickly pointed out, had absolutely nothing to do with the point made by Roosevelt against Parker's common law theory. There was nothing in this Western Union decision to permit the federal government to initiate prosecution against trusts under the common law. Lawyers were of the opinion that Parker had got himself into a tight hole and was trying to crawl out by a quibble. It was a natural thing to do, but didn't show good faith.

In the attempt to bolster up our option upon the lands, tenements, and hereditaments of the unconquered Filipino we have wasted over $670,000,000 of the people's money, and sacrificed over 200,000 lives.

Judge Parker said this ten days after Secretary Taft had stated that the cost of the Philippines to the country as shown by official treasury reports was under $200,000,000, and that the total cost in lives was under 5,000. The enormous discrepancy of over $470,000,000 and 195,000 lives between the two estimates amazed the country. It seemed as if the revelation of some startling scandal, involving colossal juggling of the official accounts of the government, was about to be revealed. Judge Parker was asked for proof, and after a while he gave it thus: Edward F. ("Aladdin") Atkinson, the semi-crank statistician, had said that the cost of the Philippines was about a billion dollars and half a million lives. Parker explained that he had conservatively cut down this estimate to $670,000,000 and 200,000 lives. The country was amazed at such a performance by a presidential candidate, and passed the matter over with rather amused disgust.

Parker also described general conditions in the Philippines as "beyond conception." Agriculture was ruined. The population was overburdened with taxation. There were ladrones everywhere. Newspapers were bought or brow-beaten. Every private citizen was open to the stealthy animosity of spies. Judge Parker said that he got his authority from a "student of conditions." Much evidence was brought that this picture was not only overdrawn but wholly false. The judge was urged to name his "student of conditions." Finally he named H. Parker Willis.

Who was Willis? He was an editorial writer on the rabid anti-imperialist New York Post. He was the Washington correspondent of the rabid anti-imperialist Springfield Republican. He had been sent to the Philippines by five citizens who have been known ever since the war with Spain as earnest, persistent, and consistent anti-imperialists—C. F. Adams, E. B. Smith, Carl Schurz, Herbert Walsh, and Moorefield Story.

To him who could see as far through a grindstone as the next one, it was plain enough why Willis told this "horrible, terrible, big calamity" story. Yet Judge Parker accepted the testimony of such a man as a fair account of the conditions in the Philippines. The country was getting disgusted at Parker's way of playing politics.

But his worst exhibition of dirty politics was saved to the last. Parker now says President Roosevelt is a dishonest blackmailer. This is the most serious charge ever brought against a president. What evidence has Parker got to back it up? Not a shred. Not even an H. Parker Willis, nor an Aladdin Atkinson, nor a Western Union case.

In previous presidential campaigns the mud slinging has been done by the party bush-whackers. Never before has the party's official chief indulged in stab-in-the-back politics. And in previous campaigns, when serious charges have been brought against the integrity of a presidential nominee there have been at least some vestiges of evidence which, hung together, made a plausible case.

But Parker produces no evidence. Not a scintilla. And yet day after day he goes on making these charges, which, if true, would imperatively require Roosevelt's impeachment.

Parker's charge is this:

Cortelyou, as secretary of commerce and labor, by means of the publicity law, obtained the trusts' secrets. Then he became chairman of the national committee, and, with these secrets as bludgeons, he blackmailed the trusts.

Yet in his Hartford speech of Thursday Judge Parker says: "I do not know that he (Cortelyou) had any information, but his position was one that entitled him to get it."

Parker doesn't know that Cortelyou had the information which would enable him to blackmail the trusts, and yet Parker maintains that Cortelyou is using this information to blackmail the trusts!

In this same Hartford speech Parker said: "It is believed that every trust in this country, including the Standard Oil trust, is doing what it can to elect that (republican) ticket." It is believed by whom? Not even, we fancy, by Parker, except for campaign purposes.

Parker knows that, in the face of the most persistent opposition from the senators and congressmen of his own party, as well as from those of the other party, Roosevelt has done more to check the excessive power of the trusts than any other president in the history of the country. Parker knows that Roosevelt settled the coal strike, undeterred by the threats of a united Wall street, and that he prosecuted the Northern Securities case against Hill, Harriman, and Morgan in spite of their ominous warnings. Parker knows that Roosevelt earned the hatred of the Standard Oil company by publishing the John D. Rockefeller telegrams of Feb. 7. Parker knows that Roosevelt forced through the anti-rebate, publicity, and expedition of anti-trust case laws which the John D. Rockefeller telegrams were sent to block. Parker knows that the corporations schemed persistently to get any prominent republican—Hay, Root, or Hanna—to contest the nomination with Roosevelt, promising them unlimited campaign funds for the attempt. Parker knows that the chief factor in his own nomination, with the possible exception of David B. Hill, was Patrick McCarren, publicly branded, and publicly rejoicing in the brand, as the Standard Oil's hired man. Parker knows that the day after his nomination John D. Rockefeller Jr. called on him by appointment and spent two hours in conference with him. Parker knows that he himself was nominated by subterranean, occult manipulation, and he is one of the very few who know who put up the funds for that movement.

The case therefore stands thus:

Direct evidence proves that Roosevelt antagonized the trusts. Circumstantial evidence tends strongly to prove that Parker was manufactured by the trusts. Yet Parker accuses Roosevelt of being a trust man. And his charge is based, as he himself admits, on the one fact that Cortelyou, who was once secretary of commerce and labor, is now chairman of the republican national campaign committee. If from that one fact Parker concludes that Roosevelt is a trust man what must he conclude with regard to himself from the long chain of facts which leads from Roosevelt's anti-trust legislation, through the St. Louis convention, to young Rockefeller's visit at Esopus, and finally to Parker's own public declaration that the trusts need no further control?

WILLIAM PRESTON HARRISON FOR CONGRESS.

[From the Chicago Daily News, Nov. 4.]

The situation in the Eighth congressional district has aroused much interest because the mayor's brother, William Preston Harrison, is a candidate in that district. Mr. Harrison may be expected to serve the district creditably if elected. Although until recently he has not made his home in the district, that part of the city was the home of the Harrison family for many years. LETTER OF MARQUISE DE FONTENOY

Copyright: 1904: By the Marquise de Fontenoy.

SOME time ago I mentioned in these letters the fact, known to but few, that the French government has been paying for nearly 100 years past large annuities to noblemen who are identified with the royalist cause, and who are endeavoring by every means in their power to overthrow the republic. These annuities were, in the majority of cases, conferred along with the titles of duke, prince, and count upon generals, statesmen, and court dignitaries by the first Napoleon, and have been paid ever since without interruption to the descendants in the male line of the original grantees by the French treasury, no matter whether the government was that of the empire, of the house of Orleans, of the Bourbon dynasty, or of the republic.

Proposals were often made to abolish these perpetual pensions. But the minister of finance of the day has always taken the ground that, in view of the fact that these annuities were inscribed on the so-called "Grand Livre deFrance" (the Grand Ledger of France), the credit of the nation would be affected injuriously were these obligations repudiated.

The government, however, has now taken steps to compound the annuities by means of a most liberal compromise, and the negotiations in connection with the transaction have brought to light for the first time the number of the annuitants, their identity, and the size of the sums which they have been drawing each year from the treasury of the government, which they were endeavoring to overthrow.

The nobleman who figures for the largest amount is the prince and duke of Wagram, who draws yearly about $47,000. As the prince, who is a grandson of the famous Marshal Berthier, married the late Baroness Bertha de Rothschild of the Frankfort branch of the great banking house, who brought him a colossal fortune, in which he has a life interest, he scarcely needs the money and can well afford to dispense therewith.

The fat prince of Essling, who is likewise duc de Rivoli, and a grandson of Napoleon's marshal, Massena, draws $18,000 a year from the French treasury, although he, like the prince of Wagram, is a rich man, his wife, who died last year, having been the heiress of the immensely rich Mme. Heine-Furtado.

The duc de Montebello, great-grandson of Marshal Lannes, Napoleon Ney, prince de la Moskowa, great-grandson of Marshal Ney; the duc d'Albufera, whose mother was the heiress of a multimillionaire Berlin merchant, and who is a grandson of Marshal Suchet; the duc de Massa, grandson of Marshal Regnier; the duc de Reggio, grandson of Marshal Oudinot; the duc de Trevise, grandson of Marshal Mortier; the duc de Bassano, great-grandson of the first Napoleon's secretary and minister of state, Maret; the duc de Bellune, grandson of another of the first Napoleon's followers; the duc d'Elchingen, another of the great-grandsons of Marshal Ney; and King Oscar of Sweden, as great grandson of the French field marshal Bernadotte, are among the most notable of the forty-odd annuitants.

The basis on which the government of the republic has compounded these annuities is the liberal one of one and twenty years' purchase—that is to say, the payment in lump of a sum equal to twenty-one years of the annuity.

One cannot but admire the attitude of the French government in the matter. For the dukes and nobles of minor degree to whom these large annuities have been paid until now are among the most bitter foes of the republic, and, judging by their attitude in the past, the government has no guarantee that the big sums about to be turned over to them by the treasury in settlement of the annuities will not be used in conspiracies and plottings to upset the administration and to bring about a royalist restoration. For, curiously enough, all the dukedoms created by the first Napoleon are now held by men who give their political allegiance to the head of the house of Orleans rather than to the chief of the house of Bonaparte.

The prince of Wales, whose fame as a philatelist is world wide, and whose collection of stamps is valued at about $100,000, some stamps costing, by reason of their extraordinary rarity, as much as $5,000 apiece, has just given a fresh manifestation of his interest in this particular hobby by writing the introduction to a work entitled "The Postage Stamps of Great Britain," published by Frederick J. Melville. In his introduction, the prince, who writes over his own name, relates how the new stamps now in use throughout the British empire came to be chosen. Numerous designs, taken from photographs, were submitted to the king, but failed to meet his approval, and ultimately a drawing made by Emil Fuchs was chosen for the purpose, the artist in question likewise designing the border and framework decoration.

The original sketch and border were then photographed and submitted to the king. The king signed this with his written approval, and the original photograph, with the monarch's indorsement, now figures in the prince of Wales' stamp collection. After this, the queen suggested a slight modification in the way of reducing the width of the wreath design, which was adopted.

The prince, in his introduction, likewise explains why the little books of stamps now issued by the British postoffices are often found with inverted water marks. It seems that to facilitate the binding of the stamps into books half of the stamps on a sheet are printed upside down.

Lady Curzon's illness has been a terribly heavy drain upon the purse of her husband, and it is estimated that the expenses in connection therewith have amounted to something like $50,000; that is to say, half of the salary, though not of the allowances, which he receives as governor general of India. Sir Thomas Barlow and one or two other equally famous specialists lived for days together at Walmer castle, with fees of $500 apiece per diem, while each time additional medical attendance or even medicaments were needed from London special trains were employed. It is fortunate, under the circumstances, that Lady Curzon is a rich woman, since otherwise it would take her husband several years in the far east to retrieve his losses.

Lord Gosford, who is Queen Alexandra's chamberlain, whose wife is a sister of the late duke of Manchester, and whose son, Lord Acheson, is well known in this country, where he has spent much of his time, has just effected a sale of the major part of his extensive estates in the north of Ireland, for a sum of $1,500,000, at the same time retaining the castle itself and the sporting rights over the properties. Young Lord Acheson has left the army and has started in business under the auspices of the Rothschilds in London. His father will now be in a position to place a considerable amount of capital at his disposal.

Cannizaro house, on the borders of Wimbledon common, is one of the best known of those picturesque suburban residences which during the London season are the scene of so many outdoor entertainments. It was there that Lady Archibald Campbell's pastoral play, "Le Baiser," by De Banville, and "Fair Rosamond," were performed in the open air in the presence of the king and queen, the place being at the time owned by the late Mrs. Leo Schuster, a popular London hostess. It owes its odd name to the fact that it was owned and occupied for many years in the eighteenth century by the Neapolitan Duc de Cannizaro, who had purchased it from Dundas, the colleague of Pitt. The duke married Miss Johnson, heiress of a Lancashire cotton spinner, and after living in great splendor at Cannizaro house with her, he quarreled and deserted her and returned to Italy. The duchess followed him there, found that he had become infatuated by an Italian princess at Florence, and after a vain endeavor to induce him to return to her, seeking at the opera to outshine her rival, she gave up the contest, returned to London, and consoled herself with an Italian tenor. Society, however, was indulgent. Her wealth, her hospitality, and above all the munificence of her concerts caused the great world to close its eyes to her affair de cœur. She never saw her husband again, and predeceased him by a couple of years, dying in 1840.

But It's Hard.

When a woman works two months on a tidy for her church fair, and sees it appear marked 50 cents by a committee, she must be compelled to remind herself that the Lord demands humility.—Atchison Globe.

A LINE-O'-TYPE OR TWO.

One More Reform Suggested.

"I'll make this world a better place,"
He told his friend.
Soon for a car he had to race;
He caught it, after quite a chase;
Then for a quarter of an hour
He told the crew in language sour
They had to mend.

"The time has come for a reform,"
He told his friend:
And day by day in speeches warm
At chance offenders he would storm—
He warned policemen, maids, and cooks,
And bellboys, waiters, clerks, and crooks
Their faults must end.

"Observe that things are better now?"
He asked his friend.
Where things went wrong he raised a row;
No lapse in duty he'd allow;
Should faults arise he'd labor hard
Until each paper held a card
That he had penned.

At last: "The world is running right,"
He told his friend.
Yet still he watched by day and night
With keen and all embracing sight;
By night and day he joyed to seek
The uncomplaining, cowed, and weak
He might defend.

"You see," he said, "the world improves
Beneath my touch.
It has left all the ruts and grooves
And, 'neath my gaze, serenely moves.
Can you find fault with my wise plan?"
His friend replied: "Well, yes I can.
You kick too much!"

NEWS OF THE THEATERS.

The fourteenth season of the Chicago orchestra was inaugurated yesterday afternoon at the Auditorium under pleasant conditions. The weather—at least when the concert began—was of the bright and balmy variety which usually assures a large audience, and the Auditorium was virtually filled with music hungry folk eager to give Mr. Thomas and his men a generous welcome. The eminent conductor and his players received such a welcome—applause long continued and hearty, greeted them when they entered, and after every movement of the Dvorak symphony and after each selection the hand clapping told not only of approval and thanks, but of kindliness and good will as well. It was an audience in all ways fine—fine in size, fine in quality, fine in attention, fine in appreciation.

The approval lavished on the orchestra was merited. At no previous first concert has the playing seemed so free from every roughness and inaccuracy as it did yesterday. The men and their leader impressed as in the best of spirits and in refreshed, rested condition, and owing to the personnel of the orchestra having undergone so little change, the technical proficiency of the band appeared exactly what it had been when last season closed—so complete as virtually to be beyond all unfavorable criticism.

The first half of the program was devoted to two of Dvorak's best orchestral works—the "Carnival" Overture and the "New World" Symphony—their performance being intended as a tribute to the memory of the late Bohemian master. No sooner had the orchestra swept into the brilliant, joyous opening phrases of the "Carnival" than it was realized that the players were in splendid form, and the afternoon served but to demonstrate anew how excellent are the orchestral forces Chicago calls its own.

The Dvorak overture is one of the happiest, sunniest tonal reflections of that joy in life which supposedly in man's birthright, that the late master has left us. He saw the world through sane, healthy eyes, this gifted son of faraway, beautiful Bohemia, and despite the struggles and hardships that were his early portion, he found much that was hopeful, much that was worth while in life. And his musical messages are welcome, because they so frequently voice this wholesome, helpful optimism. The "Carnival" is filled with gladness and animation, and yesterday the orchestra made all that gladness and animation patent to the listener. It was a performance vital, inspiriting, and exhilarating—a fitting opening to a season which it is hoped means much of good to the Chicago orchestra.

Of the "New World" Symphony, it is unnecessary to write at the present day. It has been frequently heard and has been accorded fittingly a place among the most attractive of Dvorak's creations. The rhythms suggested by the negro melodies which he came to know during his residence in the United States lend the work a character almost unique in the realm of symphonic music, and make it interesting and pleasing to an unusually large class of listeners. The performance yesterday was of rare beauty, rich in color, admirable in the poetic and imaginative qualities which distinguish it, and technically exceptional.

The novelty of the afternoon was the concert overture "In the South," by Edward Elgar, which on this occasion had its first performance on this side of the Atlantic. Mr. Damrosch is to give it its initial hearing in New York tomorrow night, but yesterday marked its premiere in this country. It is a work of unusual magnitude for a composition in the overture form, and the estimate here placed on it after a single hearing can of course be but impressional and subject to future revision. Twenty minutes are required for the performance of the overture and there are many things in the score which may prove clearer and more significant when more familiar. Yesterday the impression received was that the music has nothing in particular to do with Italy or the south. Its thematic material and its moods may have been suggested to Mr. Elgar while reveling in the physical and mental uplifting resultant from a perfect day in Italy, but there is nothing in the themes nor in their treatment, which—were no "program" supplied with the work—would suggest the south. The dreamy mood which obtains throughout a large portion of the composition might have been enjoyed in any land and amid any scene of natural loveliness. The mood is well reflected, and musically there is much of thematic interest and attractiveness in the manner of its reflection. There is an abundance of the refined, cooler coloring which Elgar seemingly is fond of and which he employs with such excellent effect. The middle section of the work which that faithful devotee and expositor of Elgar, Mr. A. J. Jaeger of London, assures us pictures "the relentless and domineering onward force of the ancient day and the strife and wars of a later time" impressed yesterday as considerable of a harmonic and contrapuntal mixup which might mean all it is said to, and then again might not. It was not as successful cacophony as Richard Strauss when at his most daring produces, but it will suffice. The overture yesterday impressed as a work of unnecessary length, containing a first part of considerable beauty and a middle section that was too daring to be pleasant, and not sufficiently so to be "great." The performance by Mr. Thomas and the orchestra was a splendid one, each man giving of his best powers, musical, temperamental, and technical.

The "Siegfried Rhine Journey" from "Götterdämmerung" and the Richard Strauss "Till Eulenspiegel" completed the program. The regular concert will take place tonight at the Auditorium, the hour of commencement being 8:15 o'clock.

Short Studies in Animal Intelligence.

——MONKEYS.

WHEN Darwin about a half century ago published his book arguing that man was descended from the anthropoid ape, religious people were outraged, and many scientific men were hardly behind them in ridiculing and denouncing "Darwinism." The more men study the monkey, the less are they disposed contemptuously to reject Darwin's conclusion.

The gap between the monkey and the lower races of men is probably not as wide as the distance which separates the naked Fuegian from the educated American. Both physically and mentally the monkey has many characteristics which strikingly resemble those of human beings. His manual dexterity far exceeds that of any other animal except man. He is jealous, affectionate, revengeful, suspicious, emulous. He is vindictive to those who hurt him, grateful to those who are kind to him. He remembers, imitates, reasons. Some of his race learn much faster, some much more, than others. Occasionally they even go insane. Whether the monkey is or is not man's progenitor, he is at least so near him in the scale of intellect as to be rightfully an object of much interest and respect.

THE CHIMPANZEE.

Monkeys show unmistakable love for their young and sympathy for their suffering fellows. Rengger saw an American monkey driving away the flies that plagued her infant. Duvancel saw a Hylobates washing its offspring's face in a stream. The loss of her babe often causes the monkey mother to grieve herself to death. An orphan is commonly adopted and tenderly cared for by the members of the tribe. Sir James Malcolm relates that once when he was on a steamer he saw a young monkey fall overboard. An older but unrelated one at once ran frantically down to the side of the vessel and held out to the one in the water the end of a rope. Here the romance ends, as the rope was not long enough to be reached by the endangered animal. He was rescued, however, by a sailor. A party of which Sir James Forbes was a member shot a female monkey and carried it to their tent. The tent was quickly surrounded by forty or fifty of the tribe. Finding threats of no avail, the head of the tribe set up a pitiful moaning, and by expressive gestures begged for the body of his deceased kinswoman. It was given him and he went off sorrowfully, bearing it in his arms.

THE OURANG OUTANG.

There is no doubt that monkeys have a keen sense of the ludicrous. Romanes tells that in the London Zoölogical garden an orang outang had a feeding pan of a peculiar shape, which she put upon her head. She never failed to raise a laugh from the spectators, and "her success in this respect was evidently attended with no small gratification." Monkeys know when they are ridiculed and become furious if laughed at. Darwin saw a baboon get so enraged because his keeper persisted in reading to him from a book that he bit his leg until the blood ran.

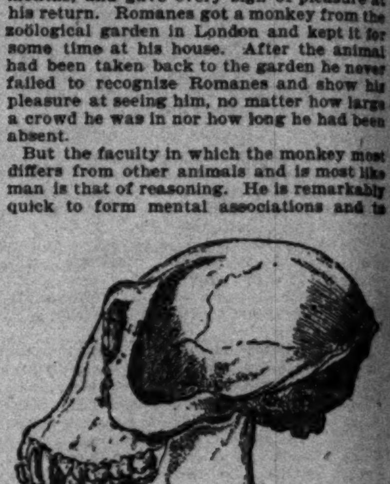
All quadrumana are highly revengeful. An army officer at the Cape of Good Hope, according to Sir Andrew Smith, had plagued a baboon. Seeing the officer approaching one Sunday in his best clothes, the ingenious animal quickly poured water in a hole, mixed some thick mud, and dashed it over his tormenter from head to foot. Ever afterwards when his victim came near the baboon rejoiced and triumphed over him. Brehm tells of a female baboon whose heart was so large that she not only adopted young ones of her own species but also puppies and kittens. One day a kitten scratched her. The baboon picked up the kitten's feet, examined them with astonishment, and promptly bit off all its claws.

Monkeys have the invincible curiosity of children. To test Brehm's statement that they dread snakes Darwin placed a sack containing a stuffed snake in a monkey cage. One of the monkeys opened the sack, peered in, and at once dashed off. None of them could "resist taking a momentary peep into the upright bag at the dreadful object lying quietly at the bottom," but, having done this, each ran off as fast as he could.

It has been truly said that the monkey is the only animal that voluntarily imitates the acts of man. He carries mockery of other animals and of his fellows, as well as of human beings, to a ludicrous degree.

He recognizes and remembers his friends better than any other animal except the elephant and the dog, and as well as they. Sir Andrew Smith had a baboon which knew him instantly after an absence of nine months, and gave every sign of pleasure at his return. Romanes got a monkey from the zoölogical garden in London and kept it for some time at his house. After the animal had been taken back to the garden he never failed to recognize Romanes and show his pleasure at seeing him, no matter how large a crowd he was in nor how long he had been absent.

But the faculty in which the monkey most differs from other animals and is most like man is that of reasoning. He is remarkably quick to form mental associations and to detect the connection of cause and effect; and he is wonderfully apt at adapting means to ends. Rengger says that the first time he gave his Paraguayan monkeys eggs they smashed them and lost all their contents, but they soon learned to hit one end gently against a hard body and pick off the shells with their fingers. After cutting themselves once with a sharp instrument they let it alone or handled it with the greatest care. He often gave them lumps of sugar wrapped in paper. Sometimes he put a wasp in the paper, so that in hastily unfolding it they got stung. After being stung once they would hold the paper to their ears to detect any movement within. It used to be an axiom with those who believed man entirely different from other animals that he alone used tools, but the chimpanzee employs stones to crack nuts, and Rengger taught an American monkey the mechanical principal of the lever so well he was able to take the lid off a large box with it. Monkeys, also unlike any other animal except man—use weapons to fight with. When a party accompanying the duke of Coburg-Gotha in Abyssinia attacked some baboons with guns the baboons rolled so many stones down the mountain side on the heads of their assailants that the latter had to beat a hasty retreat.



SIDE VIEW OF THE SKULL OF THE DOUC

The anthropoid apes build for themselves temporary platforms on which they live. The orang covers itself before it goes to sleep at night with leaves, and one of Brehm's baboons protected itself from the sun's heat by putting a straw mat upon its head. All monkeys make gestures and grimaces which are understood by other monkeys and men, and the Cebus of Paraguay is said to make six distinct sounds which excite in other monkeys the same emotions as are felt by the one making the noises. The Darwinian regards these habits as first steps toward the arts of architecture, of dress, and of language which, as developed among and practiced by men, contribute so much to their comfort, their happiness, and their intelligence.

Japanese Nerve-Steadying.

[From Success.]

Admiral Togo, commander in chief of the Japanese navy, whose prowess as a fighting man has won world wide praise of late, comes from an old school of Nippon warriors. His naval education is of the best, and he has been trained in every way to be a fearless, calm, and tireless fighter.

In his youth he and his fellow students at the Japanese naval academy were accustomed to attend an annual banquet. They sat at a circular table around a slowly revolving cannon, loaded with a ball and trained to the level of their heads. The trigger was so arranged that it could be touched from a hidden source outside of the banquet hall. That at some time during the banquet the cannon would be fired every one at the table knew; but just when, or in what direction it would be pointed, was a mystery. Of course, there was a possibility that the ball might crash harmlessly between the heads of two banqueters, but it was equally probable that it might carry off the head of some student. Yet no one flinched. The chances were equal to all.

The picturesque object of destruction revolving during the jovial hours of the banquet, pointing from student to student, and ready at a given moment to blow any one of them to pieces, was considered in Japan admirable training to steady the nerves of a fighting man.

REVIEWS OF CURRENT PUBLICATIONS.

Okakura-Kakuzo's "Awakening of Japan."

An Illuminating Book on the Eastern Power.

BY JEANNETTE L. GILDER.

ALMOST remarkable as well as important book is scheduled for early publication by the Century company. It is called "THE AWAKENING OF JAPAN," and its author is Mr. Okakura-Kakuzo, who is also author of "The Ideals of the East," a book that made a great impression when it was published some years ago. Mr. Okakura, who by the way is now in this country, has a distinguished position as a man of letters and of art in Japan. He is still comparatively young, having been born in 1863. In 1886 he was sent by his government to America and Europe as a commissioner to report on western art education. On returning he organized the Imperial Art school of Tokio, of which he was made director. He was one of the promoters of the reactionary movement against the wholesale introduction of western art and manners, which was carried on by the starting of periodicals and clubs devoted to the preservation of the old life of Japan. The relations between Mr. Okakura and the Imperial Art school at Tokio becoming strained, he, with one-half of the faculty, resigned, and started a private academy in a suburb of Tokio, where are kept up the ancient traditions of native art.

In "The Awakening of Japan," Mr. Okakura answers with knowledge and great vividness of expression the question now uppermost in the minds of western observers: From what sources are drawn the intellectual and moral qualities which have enabled the present generation of statesmen, citizens, soldiers, and sailors, under an able emperor, to enter suddenly, as a first class liberal power, into the company of nations? It is the author's aim, and he accomplishes it, to show that what the new Japan has done is the natural outcome of her history—her religion, her art, her tradition. He does not believe in the "Yellow Peril"; or that the empire, though warlike, stands for aggression. It is, he declares, for peace. He sketches the entire history of the country, but dwells particularly upon modern events and developments. He indicates some of the tendencies which may affect the future of the orient; and speaks especially of the Christian attitude toward woman as an influence upon the society and civilization of Japan.

All this is most interesting, but the remarkable part of it is that the book is written entirely in English by its author. There is no indication from the first chapter to the last that he is writing in a foreign language. The only reason one might suspect that it is not an American or an Englishman who is writing is the poetical expression. An American or Englishman would be more matter of fact, more prosaic.

The reader who takes up this book expecting to find it a history of the manners and customs of the Japanese will be disappointed. It is not that. It gives, however, the Japanese point of view—the point of view of the liberal minded, educated native of Japan. Mr. Okakura resents the encroachments of Europe in Asia, but at the same time he welcomes certain things that an intermingling of foreign nations has brought about.

"In Japan," he writes, "the race of those fiery patriots who fifty years ago shouted, 'Away with the western barbarians!' with all the lusty enthusiasm of the Chinese Boxers, is entirely gone. The tremendous change which has since come over our political life and the material advantages we have gained by foreign contact have so completely revolutionized national sentiment in regard to the west that it has become almost impossible for us to conceive what it was that so aroused the antagonism of our grandfathers. On the contrary, we have become so eager to identify ourselves with European civilization instead of Asiatic that our continental neighbors regard us as renegades—nay, even as an embodiment of the white disaster itself. But our mental standpoint of a few generations back was that of the conservative Chinese patriot of today, and we saw in western advance but the probable encompassing of our ruin. To the downtrodden oriental the glory of Europe is but the humiliation of Asia."

"The sudden development of Japan," writes Mr. Okakura, "has been more or less of an enigma to foreign observers. She is the country of flowers and ironclads, of dashing heroism and delicate teacups—the strange borderland where quaint shadows cross each other in the twilight of the new and the old world. Until recently the west has never taken Japan seriously. It is amusing to find nowadays that such success as we have achieved in our efforts to take a place among the family of nations appears in the eyes of many as a menace to Christendom. In the mysterious nothing is improbable. Exaggeration is the courtesy which fancy pays to the unknown. What sweeping condemnation, what absurd praise, has not the world lavished on new Japan! We are both the cherished child of modern progress and a dread resurrection of heathendom—the yellow peril itself!".

Then he asks: "Has not the west as much to unlearn about the east as the east has to unlearn about the west?". Which query, I think, might well be answered in the affirmative. In spite of "the vast sources of information at the command of the west" Mr. Okakura finds it "sad to realize today how many misconceptions are still entertained concerning" Japan. He acknowledges the benefits that have been derived from the west, but adds: "With immense gratitude to the west for what she has taught us, we must still regard Asia as the true source of our inspirations."

To most eastern nations, he insists, the advent of the west has been by no means an unmixed blessing. "Thinking to welcome the benefits of increased commerce, they have become the victims of foreign imperialism; believing in the philanthropic aims of Christian missionaries, they have bowed before the messengers of military aggression. For them the earth is no longer filled with that peace which pillowed their contentment. If the guilty conscience of some European nations has conjured up the specter of a yellow peril, may not the suffering soul of Asia wail over the realities of the white disaster?"

Notwithstanding the western invasion and the influence that the manners and customs of the west have had upon Japan, Mr. Okakura insists that the old is not forgotten in his country. Old customs and ceremonies are being revived, and a knowledge "of our ancient etiquette forms as much a part of a gentleman's training as ever it did, the tendency of democracy being only to make it more universal than before. The tea ceremony and flower arrangement have again become common features in the life of our ladies. Classic music and drama are widely studied, even by people of European education. It may not, perhaps, be generally known that the ancient ceremonial functions of the court are kept up today without any alteration in form. As a notable instance of this we may call attention to the fact that the declaration of war with Russia was announced to the sun goddess by a distinguished envoy from the mikado, and a special guard was detailed for service at the shrine in Ise during the continuance of hostilities."

It is the old in them, or their reverence for the old, that makes the Japanese of today what they are, according to this writer. "In the tender care bestowed upon our stricken adversary of the battlefield will be found the ancient courtesy of the samurai, who knew 'the sadness of things' and looked to his enemy's wound before his own. The ardor that leads our sailors into daring enterprises is inspired by the Neo-Confucian doctrine which teaches that to know is to do. The calmness with which our people have met the exigencies of a national crisis is a heritage from those disciples of Buddha who in the silence of the monastery meditated on change. All that is vital and representative in our contemporary art and literature is the revivified expression of the national school, not imitation of European models."

Being an artist, and one who delights in the picturesque, it is a matter of regret to Mr. Okakura that the gilded youth of Japan delight in the latest cut of a London tailor or the last novelty from Paris. This he thinks "one of the pathetic indications of an attempted protective coloring against the universal condemnation of eastern customs."

Mr. Okakura insists upon it that Japan is a peaceful nation. The very nature of Japanese civilization, he argues, prohibits aggression against foreign nations; but if Japan is goaded she is not only going to defend herself, but she is going to punish those who encroach upon her domain. "Today the Muscovites have laid their hands on these territories, with none but us to offer any resistance. Under these circumstances we are compelled to regard our ancient domain of Corea as lying within our lines of legitimate national defense. It was when the independence of the peninsula was threatened by China in 1894 that we were compelled to go to war with the latter country. It was for this same independence that we fought Russia in 1904."

If the Corean question had been settled Mr. Okakura thinks it more than likely that all the bloodshed of the Chinese and Russian wars might have been avoided. "The mikado's chief advisers, together with a majority of those who had a voice in the government, were strongly opposed to the views of the war party. In their eyes the restoration had a higher significance than could be found in aggrandizement at the expense of neighboring countries. To them it represented the principles of justice and humanity, liberalism, and the elevation of the Japanese race. Its keynotes should be nobleness and self-sacrifice, the virtues of the samurai enlarged into those of the nation. The lives of those statesmen who, like Okubo-Toshimichi, Kido-Koyin, and Prince Iwakura, held to these lofty ideals gave its moral tone to the present Japanese government and are eloquent of unselfishness and purity."

Of any alliance between China and Japan he speaks with scorn. "The idea that China might, with the aid of Japan, hurl her hosts against Europe would be too absurd even to notice were it not for those things from which attention is drawn by the utterance. It may not, perhaps, be generally known that the expression 'yellow peril' was first coined in Germany when she was preparing to annex the coast of Shantung. Naturally, therefore, we become suspicious when Russia takes up the cry at the moment when she is tightening the grasp of her mailed hand on Manchuria and Corea."

Mr. Okakura's book will be carefully read by the thoughtful. It will not have as many readers as "Beverly of Graustark," but it will make a more lasting impression.

BOOK GOSSIP OF LONDON.

Season of 1904-'05 to Be Notable for the Issue of an Unusually Large Number of Novels.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

[Copyright: 1904: By the New York Herald.]

LONDON, Nov. 4.—According to all accounts it would seem as if the season of 1904-'05 will be notable for the issue of an extraordinarily large number of novels. Publishers appear to be at considerable variance as to what may be the public taste. Some do not believe in the growing deterioration of literature and point to the sharp distinction that must be drawn between novels as articles of art and of commerce, but the general opinion is that amusement, more than art, is the popular cry.

The season also will show that there exists a considerable reaction against the sexual problem novels. On the other hand, the star of romance decidedly is in the ascendant. There is a growing demand for healthy but innocuous tales of adventure, rather than good, quiet stories of domestic sentiment.

Some light is thrown on the tremendous amount of writing which goes on which never is seen in print by the announcement with regard to the new magazine just started by Sir Alfred Harmsworth. Among the stories alone, it is stated, will be found the cream of 26,000 manuscripts submitted for consideration. This magazine, which has been named The World and His Wife, is undoubtedly the largest magazine for sixpence which has ever been offered to the public. It is claimed for it that it contains double the amount of literary and artistic matter provided by any other magazine at the same price, while the highest standard of excellence is maintained throughout. The reviews are unanimous in characterizing the new Harmsworth venture as another success, being quite a novelty, not only in the treatment of its contents but in the handiness of its size.

The sensation caused by the North sea incident has given an extraordinary impetus to the advance booking for the book which Nash is publishing, entitled "Men of the North Sea." The author, Walter Wood, has sailed with the fishermen of the North sea fleet and is intimately acquainted with the romance and toil of their lives.

The publication has been secured by Hutchinson of a book which is being anticipated with considerable interest. It is a book by Mr. Katikiro, prime minister of Uganda, who came to England for King Edward's coronation. A diary was kept and filled with notes of the wonders of his journey. These notes have been translated into English and an introduction written to them by Sir Henry Johnson, who was then British proconsul at Uganda.

GLOOMY STORY OF CHILDHOOD.

Reviewed by Ella W. Peattie.

WHAT murky quality of the mind is it that makes the literature, like the music of the north, stand apart from all else that is done in those arts? What moving power and fundamental sadness—sadness and power as of the nether sea, moves in these compositions? They are as intimate as the unspoken thought, and yet they are uttered with such lucidity that any one who reads may understand.

A work to claim the attention of all who love this solemn and beautiful literature appears in "ANDREA; THE TRIBULATIONS OF A CHILD," by the Dane, Karin Michaelis, John Nilsen Laurvik being the translator.

The scene opens in the death chamber of a talented, whimsical girl, half genius, who is the adored of the village. Her father and mother pour out their devotion like incense before her, but they are themselves separated by some mysterious antagonism. Save in the presence of their daughter they are silent. They are in no sense husband and wife. The man in his moments of involuntary thought forgets that the woman has been his wife, and thinks of her only as the mother of the child. The wife, who loves her husband, cringes before him and takes morphine that she may forget that, like Sappho, in her immemorial sorrow, she sleeps alone while the nights pass.

The child dies. She has, in dying, expressed many wishes, and it becomes the passion of the father and the mother to see that these are carried out. But the mother lacks integrity of soul. She comes across a diary kept by the dead girl, and upon it her written prohibition against the reading of it. Her curiosity overcomes her feeble honor. She reads the diary, and there finds revealed the fearful precocity of a young and ardent woman, who, gifted with extraordinary sensibility, has understood the soul tragedy which her parents supposed they had concealed. The wife, not telling her husband of the child's demand that the book shall not be read, gives it to him to read. He does so, and understands at last his own relation to life, to the past, to the future, and to his own soul. He considers with his wife what there is left to them. There remains but one thing, "Jutta," he cries, "we have the grave." "The grave," acquiesces the wife. It is inevitably their only refuge. (McClure, Phillips & Co.)

To have confidence is one of the most satisfying feelings of which man is capable. He likes to feel confidence in the engineer that runs his train, in the wife who conducts his household, in the orator who addresses him from the platform, and in the author who provides him with a book. Some authors inspire this feeling at once. A. E. W. Mason is such an one. He is not an extraordinarily brilliant writer, but he has plenty of ideas, he knows how to arrange them, and from the first page the reader rests secure in the confidence that the writer is fitted for his task and will carry him through to a safe conclusion. Mr. Mason's new book is "THE TRUANTS," a tale of modern London. The heroine does not, oddly enough, supply the chief interest in the story, and her relation to the young married pair who do arouse and sustain the interest is not quite so understandable as it might be.

This young married couple, Anthony and Millie Stretton, are subjected to the tyranny of a senile old man, the father of Anthony, and conspire together to release themselves from it. This means that Anthony shall go in search of a livelihood, which as the son of a baronet and an officer in the Coldstream guards, had hardly occurred to him to do until driven to it by the abject conditions in which he is placed. He leaves for America, confiding his wife to the heroine of the story, Pamela Mardale, a rich, independent minded young woman of fashion who has the habit of keeping her word. The young husband meets with misfortune at every turn, and his wife falls under the fascinations of an objectionable adventurer. Pamela remembers her promise, and undertakes the salvation of the wife. To do this she calls to her aid a gentleman who has for many years been her all but hopeless suitor, and in the fabric that fate weaves about these four people, love makes rare embroideries.

The novel has much delightful character drawing on the side, so to speak, and from first to last the story is not premitted to drag. (Harper & Bros., publishers.)

I wish to mention with appreciation the exquisite edition of Sir Philip Sidney's "SONNETS," published by Houghton, Mifflin & Co. of Boston. A chaste frontispiece, delicate italicized type, and a dark mulberry binding bearing Sir Philip's coat of arms. The edition is limited to 430 copies.

Miss Isabel McDougal has, in grave and simple English, been telling the stories of a number of child kings and queens in such a manner that young readers will enjoy these brief histories. The title of her book is "LITTLE ROYALTIES," and the illustrations are the reproductions of old portraits. Miss McDougal has not been picturesque at the expense of truth, but has written her stories with scrupulous regard to history and humanized them with her sympathy. A proud galaxy of royal born children have been summoned by her out of the dim past, and made to move for a little before the eyes of happier boys and girls, and her labor has been so delicately performed that little children take unfeigned pleasure in listening to the tales. (Fleming H. Revell company.)

Miss Clara E. Laughlin has written only a few stories. So far as I know only two have been published, "The Evolution of a Girl's Ideal" and "Miladi." These little stories were both unusual and remained in the memory because of a quality of singular sincerity that they possessed. Now comes another story, "DIVIDED." It found print first in a magazine, but now appears in Revell's Art Gift Book Series, with an attractive cover and decorated margins. It is a simple tale of an unselfish and dreamful woman, who loved better than she knew, and who won her way to love valorously and dolorously. Miss Laughlin has simplicity and sincerity, and she writes with a sort of fervor and conscientiousness which make her work unusual. (All books, they say, are only expressions of the personality of their authors.) (Fleming H. Revell company.)

"WHEN LITTLE BOYS SING" is the title of a charming book of songs written by Mr. and Mrs. John Alden Carpenter. Mr. Carpenter has written the words and the music for the intimate little lyrics of boy sorrow and boy joy, and Mrs. Carpenter has illustrated them in a manner which gives quaint reality to the songs. Seldom has a book of songs for children appealed so directly to the children themselves as does this one. The music is dramatic and excellently suited to the words. The volume is dedicated to the solemn thoughts of little boys. (A. C. McClurg & Co.)

THURSTON'S "THE MASQUERADER"

Reviewed by Prof. George C. Howland of the University of Chicago.

"THE MASQUERADER," by Katherine Cecil Thurston (Harpers), is the most powerful novel of the year. It has been running serially in this country and in England, but no story is less suited to serial publication. The interest excited by one installment must have made unendurable the suspense of waiting for the next chapter. In book form it is likely to be read at one sitting—the first time.

There is no lack of incident, of excitement; besides, there are two problems. The first is another phase of the question that dominated "The Quick and the Dead," the question how far physical resemblance may aid the substitution of one person for another in a woman's affections. The second problem is to determine the respective values of opportunity and of will in determining a career.

John Chilcote, member of parliament, is a slave to opium. John Loder, unknown, has lost ambition in the shock of sudden poverty. Physically, so far as nature can accomplish it, one appears the mirrored image of the other. An exchange of identities is effected. The rich member of parliament, released from the responsibilities of his position, yields unreservedly to his secret vice. The poor man, who had sunk into apathy because all avenues to success seemed closed, utilizes his mask to test his personal power. He makes a hit in parliament and, living in the shadow of exposure, wins a new reputation for the name of John Chilcote. The political climax of the story is reached when the supposed Chilcote attacks the government for waiting until Russian encroachments have led to the wanton murder of unarmed Englishmen by Russian soldiers on neutral ground. In language strangely prophetic the author tells of the "thrill of awe and consternation," the "deep horror that such an event should obtrude itself upon our civilization," the truth "that the news which had just reached England was not so much an appalling fact as a sinister warning to those in whose keeping lay the safety of the country's interest." The orator who voiced these feelings and added an array of arguments born of perfect knowledge of the past and appreciation of the present shook the government to its fall and made h: self an indispensable factor in the new cabinet. And all the while he was under obligations to surrender everything and retire to obscurity whenever it might please an opium fiend to demand back his place!

Chilcote has a wife, Eve. For years they have lived lives apart. Now she feels, though she cannot comprehend, a subtle change in Chilcote. He is more serious, more gentle, more powerful. Her ambition for her husband is gratified by his parliamentary success. She comes to identify this new personality so thoroughly with her earlier ideals that when she learns, as she does at last, that he is not the real Chilcote, constancy and wifely devotion seem due to him rather than to the other. But with the happy omnipotence of a novelist the arbiter of fate eliminates "the other," and the reader's confidence is not betrayed.

Few novels published lately contain so little that is superfluous. Every incident adds directly to the march of events. The minor characters are distinct, but they are properly subordinated to the development of the main figures. Neither a crowd of people nor useless digressions or elaborations, nor fine writing has been suffered to weaken the reader's human interest in the hopes and fears of John Loder and of Eve. Their reality outweighs the initial improbability of the situation.

One does not think of the author while reading the story, but in retrospect the question shapes itself in the mind: "Can this high level be sustained? Can this success be repeated?" If so, the public is sure of one source of delight for years to come, such delight as our fathers felt when one masterpiece after another came from pens now classic.

"THE PROBLEM OF MONOPOLY," by Prof. John Bates Clark (the Columbia University Press), is an able and complete, though popular, presentation of the views of one of the clearest thinkers in America. The keynote of the six lectures contained in this volume is found in the words, "The policy is not destructive but preservative, since it demands that we do not kill the industrial monsters which threaten and injure us, but tame them and convert them into useful servants."

The means by which Prof. Clark suggests that trusts may be tamed are not limited to the power of publicity and a threat to withdraw the good will of the people. Nor is he prepared, until all other ways have failed, to advocate public ownership. The source of monopoly he finds in freight rebates. One step then must be rigid control of common carriers. The chief weapon of monopoly is the ability to kill competition by selling one or more articles at a loss in one or more districts, while reaping an immediate profit on other articles or in other places, with the prospect of regaining by higher prices in the future all that is temporarily lost. A defense against that practice might be found in a law compelling uniformity of price for all products sold by the monopoly. That would make underselling a hopelessly unprofitable way of ruining smaller concerns and would leave the monopoly under the restraint of potential competition where actual competitors are lacking. In close connection with that there is suggested a reduction of the tariff on protected articles which are sold abroad at lower prices than at home.

Other chapters discuss the relation between organized labor and monopoly, the rise and progress of the grangers and other combinations of farmers, and those monopolies which are properly governmental. The book is temperate and optimistic in tone. It is brief enough to be read by a busy man. It contains the result of years of study, but is new and original. Its logic is controlled by facts. Such an addition to the sober study of a vital question is timely and creditable.

GEORGE C. HOWLAND.

To acquire mere historical facts for a novel demands from the author only patient perseverance in looking up documents, reading histories and biographies, but to weave facts once gathered into the plot of a love story so that they appear its organic parts and not excrescences is a requirement, though more imperative, too apt to be neglected by the unskillful writer. In this respect, however, Mr. S. Levett-Yeats has been far from unsuccessful in his novel of "ORRAIN." The plot centers about Catherine de Medici and the rising society of the Huguenots; the time is just previous to and following the issue of the first edict of toleration by King Henry II. A young Huguenot maiden, beautiful, rich, and faithful to her people, is the mainspring. To obtain possession of her Catherine Dian, the king's mistress, and several grandes of the court conspire with another and against one another, exerting every possible stratagem and perfidy to gain their end. The queen in the end is successful and bestows the girl upon Orrain, a noble, brilliant and daring, more than once her rescuer and the faithful servant of the queen. ONE SIDED GAMES PROMISED TODAY.

Football Schedules Arranged with Reference to Battles Next Week.

TEXAS MAY FOOL CHICAGO

Little Is Known of the Southerners, Who Will Play at Marshall Field.

The western football schedule for today is the lull before the storm. Next Saturday, the games which will in all probability determine the standing of the leading teams of the west, will be played. Michigan and Chicago will meet in their annual contest at the home of the champions, Wisconsin and Minnesota will fight it out on the gophers' home grounds, and the purple of Northwestern will struggle with the orange and blue of Illinois for the supremacy at Evanston. Today, however, most of the western elevens are slated for easy contests.

The local game between the Universities of Chicago and Texas looks like the hardest game in the west, as well as the one in which the most is involved. The poor condition of Stagg's men and the reputed strength of the southerners promise a much more even contest than was anticipated when the game was arranged. Both elevens have much at stake. To the Texans, it is the first opportunity they ever have had to gain football laurels in the north. Chicago, on the other hand, cannot afford to be beaten. With the exception of the game with Illinois, the maroons have a clean record thus far.

Cripples in Local Camp.

From the maroon standpoint the situation is all the more serious when the poor physical condition of the squad is considered. With Catlin and De Tray out of the lineup, Bezdek is the only man of the first set left in the backfield. De Tray has recovered to the extent that he can be used if it becomes necessary, but Catlin is clearly unable to play, and as he is the man who is relied upon to back up the line in next week's game, it would be almost suicide for maroon chances in the contest with the Wolverines to run the risk of further disabling him. As a substitute for the lanky maroon Stagg has decided to send Parry into the game at right half, relying upon the weight of the big tackle to carry him through the opposing line. Parry has been tried at half for the last two nights, and although slow in staring, when once under way he is hard to stop.

Owing to the bad condition of Eckersall's leg it is probable Lee Maxwell, who filled qu[illegible]er so well on the 1902 eleven, will be started in the game. In handling the team there should be no weakness from the absence of the star quarter, as Maxwell is one of the cleverest field captains in the west.

Tobin, the big guard, who last week played right tackle throughout the greater part of the Illinois game, will be sent in at left tackle, Boone playing in the corresponding position, and Terry going in Tobin's place. Kennedy, who yesterday was suffering from sore throat, is expected to be able to play.

Texans Are Unknowns.

Of the Texas team little is positively known. It is said to be strong and fast and composed of men who have played together for several years. Coach Hutchinson, however, has said his men are in first class condition and will play the best article of football of which they are capable. Last year the Lone Star team was the best in the south, and this season, according to reports, it is fully 50 per cent stronger than it was a year ago.

Following is the lineup:

Other Western Games.

Of the other games in the west, the one of most significance is that between Iowa and Nebraska at Lincoln. From the showing of the two teams thus far in the season, Nebraska should win by a clear margin unless a slump similar to that suffered by the Chicago team after the Northwestern game has followed the game with Minnesota last Saturday. Iowa always plays a strong game against the corn huskers.

In the game with Ohio State at Columbus Illinois may run into an unexpected obstacle. Reports of overconfidence among the Illini after the tie game with Chicago have been sent out from Champaign. The victory of Indiana over the Buckeyes a week ago would seem to indicate that the Ohio eleven has been overrated since the game with Michigan.

The other teams all have easy games. Northwestern should have another walkover with the team from Oshkosh Normal school. In the game against Drake, Michigan should run up another startling score, and Wisconsin should not meet any strong opposition in Beloit.

Dartmouth and Harvard.

In the east the most important game is that between Dartmouth and Harvard, although the West Point-Princeton contest should be hard fought. Last year Dartmouth defeated the crimson, and with its unusually heavy team and Harvard suffering from the drubbing at the hands of the Pennsylvanians last week the chances for a repetition of last year's performance by the eleven from New Hampshire are good. Yale will play Brown. For several years this has been a hard game, but the poor showing of Brown this year seems to augur a comparatively easy time for its opponents.

No Game with Minnesota.

Concerning the reports that Chicago will play Minnesota a post-season game at Marshall field Dec. 3 Coach Stagg said last night that no such arrangement had been made. "A post-season game was talked of last winter," he said, "but I have heard nothing of the matter since then. No correspondence has passed between Dr. Williams and myself on the subject, and I can say with certainty the game will not be played."

MICHIGAN'S STARS TO REST.

Crack Players Will Not Take Part in Game Against Drake Today—Heston to See Chicago Game.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—Michigan tonight finished the last full week of practice before the Chicago game and the close of the Wolverine season. Again the veteran backfield was kept out of all the heavy work and confined to signal practice, while the linesmen were put through the most bruising kind of blocking and scrimmage to get them into condition for Chicago next Saturday.

Norcross was not in practice for the first time in two seasons. Heston will have a little vacation and will probably witness the Chicago-Texas game at Chicago tomorrow. In the Drake game Saturday Michigan will not attempt to roll up a big score, perhaps not even to equal the Wisconsin count. The only veterans sure to be in the game are the linesmen from tackle to tackle.

The entire backfield will be made up of the following substitutes: Magoffin, right half; Patrick, left half; Becker, quarter; Weeks, full back. It is possible Michigan will use Stuart at end and play a kicking game as an experiment, preliminary to the Chicago game next Saturday. In this event he will take right end position, while Clark will go in at left end. Ted Hammond may be used at left guard for Shulte.

INDIANA HELD BY WABASH

HOOSIERS RUN INTO SNAG, WINNING BY LOW SCORE.

Hare Drops Goal from Field, Making the Only Points of a Game in Which Both Teams Play Hard Football, with the Pigskin in Center of the Field the Greater Part of the Game—Game with Knox for Thanksgiving Day.

Crawfordsville, Ind., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—Before the largest crowd ever collected on the local field, the Wabash college football team, although seven pounds lighter to the man than its opponents, played Indiana university to a standstill, being defeated by the low score of 4 to 0. The only thing that saved the game for Indiana was a drop kick by Hare early in the first half. Two other attempts at goal from field were made by Hare, but were blocked. Wabash was unlucky and failed at two attempts at goal from the field.

The game was started with both teams in a crippled condition. Indiana had three regular varsity men out of the game and Wabash was even in worse shape. Wabash kicked off to Indiana and from then on through the first half play was in the center of the field, neither team being able to make consistent gains.

Only once did Indiana get within striking distance, and this time Hare kicked a drop kick goal, making the only score of the game. Twice Wabash tried for place kick, but both times the kick was blocked. The game developed into a kicking contest in the second half with honors about even, time being called with the ball in Wabash's possession on her own fifteen yard line.

Hare was the star for Indiana, and had it not been for his toe the game would have at least been a tie. Hare and Shank did the best work for Wabash.

After the game, Coach Horne spoke highly of the Wabash team. Coach Francis M. Cayou, who has succeeded in developing the Wabash eleven, said: "It was merely another piece of bad luck."

Wabash has arranged for a Thanksgiving game with Knox college to determine the championship of the secondary colleges of the west.

EVANSTON TEAM HAS EASY GAME

Northwestern Should Run Up 50 Points Against Oshkosh if Present Speed Is Continued.

Fifty points probably will be registered by Northwestern against Oshkosh Normal this afternoon if the purple team plays up to the standard it has been setting in practice scrimmage during the week. Fighting spirit has been displayed in plentiful amounts and the play has been hard and fast. Last night's work, which was merely signal practice, was the best that has been seen on Sheppard field this fall.

Before the university game the class contest between the freshmen and the sophomores will be played and promises to be a lively contest. McCornack will not be present, as he left last night for Columbus, where he will watch the Illini play the Ohio state team. He has not seen them play this year and is anxious to become acquainted with their tackle and guard back plays which played such havoc with Chicago.

BERTKE TO PLAY HALF BACK.

Wisconsin's Big Guard Tried Back of Line in Scrimmage Before Beloit Game.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—Wisconsin had light work tonight in preparation for the game with Beloit. The rooters, who supposed that Bertke's presence at half back yesterday was merely to give him a little extra work, were surprised to see him again in the position this afternoon, both on offense and defense. Hunt was at left tackle.

Contrary to custom the day before a game, the team was given a short scrimmage in addition to the regular signal practice, and considerable work getting down the field under punts. No lineup has been announced for the game, but it will probably be as follows:

Freshmen to Play Hyde Park.

As a curtain raiser to the Chicago-Texas game today the Hyde Park High school eleven will meet the maroon freshmen on Marshall field. A number of shifts has been made on the Hyde Park team. Parker, the big center, will be out on account of injuries. Gum, the right guard, will take his place, while Cockrell will go in in place of Gum. The rest of the lineup will be the same as in the game against North Division on Wednesday, while the freshmen lineup will be unchanged from that of last Saturday in the Morgan Park game.

American Hockey League to Meet.

The American Hockey league meeting announced for yesterday will be held this morning at the Auditorium Annex, when the committee on rules and bylaws will report. The league will have five cities in its circuit, and as the different clubs have been getting new men from Canada the tournament promises to be well contested.

NEW TEAM FOR HARVARD.

UNTRIED COMBINATION TO BE USED AGAINST DARTMOUTH.

Today's Contest in the Crimson Stadium Promises to Attract the Largest Crowd of the Season in Cambridge—Coaches Consider Result of Game Doubtful and Will Save Strong Substitutes for Yale Match if Possible—Betting Is Even.

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—The largest crowd of the season is anticipated at the Harvard-Dartmouth game on the stadium gridiron tomorrow. More than 20,000 seats have been sold already and a big delegation is expected from Dartmouth.

Harvard went through easy practice this afternoon, and tonight the coaching staff gave out the probable lineup, which was as follows: Pruyn, left end; Brill, left tackle; White, left guard; Parkham, center; Squires, right guard; Meier, right tackle; Leary, right end; Starr, quarter back; Sperry, left half back; Hurley or Wendell, right half back; Mills, full back.

This team has never played together before and the outcome of the game is much in doubt. There are several strong substitutes who will be put in if any of the above named play poorly, but they will not figure in the lineup until absolutely needed, as Coach Wrightington intends saving them for the Yale game.

Pruyn never played on the varsity before, White did fair work earlier in the season, Starr figured in the Pennsylvania game, and so did Leary. The betting tonight is even money. The Dartmouth men want odds, but Harvard will not give them, owing to the uncertainty of the team.

Yale to Meet Brown Today.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—All the Chicago and Northwestern boys on the Yale eleven are in a more or less battered state, and most of them will not get in tomorrow's game with Brown, Yale's last match before the Princeton and Harvard battles. Jack Owsley, Paul Veeder, and John Stevenson will not be played tomorrow. Tom Shevlin has a bad muscle bruise and limps badly, but will start the game. Roswell Tripp has a battered thigh, but will play. Ralph Bloomer of Cincinnati will be unable to play left tackle, and Substitute Kinson will get his place. Brown was beaten by Pennsylvania, which licked Harvard, by a score of 6 to 0, and Yale expects a terrific game tomorrow.

Illinois Will Outweigh Ohio.

Columbus, O., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—Nearly a ton of Illinois football strength alighted from one street car this afternoon and sallied into the Great Southern hotel to brush away the stains of travel and satisfy its husky appetite. Ohio state men see they will have nearly as heavy a bunch to buck against tomorrow as they had in the Michigan team. Illinois will outweigh Ohio state six pounds to the man. The Illinois men are in good condition, as was shown at practice this afternoon. Taylor is the only member of the team who was here two years ago. The game starts at 2 o'clock, with Esterline as referee and Evarts Wrenn as umpire. The advance sale of seats has been large.

Purdue to Play Medics.

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—On account of a hard week's scrimmage work the Purdue team did not indulge in practice tonight. The Indiana medical team, coached by Redden of Michigan, will be played on Stuart field tomorrow, and a hard practice game is expected. Coach Cutts, who has been east the last week, returned today and resumed charge of the team. The resignation of Assistant Coach Young has placed Trainer Nufer, former captain of the Michigan track team and last year's coach of the Albion football team, as assistant coach of the Purdue team.

Calumet After Canadian Players.

Calumet, Mich., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—Hod Stuart, captain of the Calumet club of the American Hockey league, has gone to Canada to sign players. Three of the fastest members of last year's champion Ottawa team have been secured, and the promoters of the club have decided to have a fast team regardless of expense. The new $25,000 rink will be completed soon.

Toronto Club on the Market.

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 4.—The directors of the Toronto baseball club met today and wound up its affairs. The new company could not see its way clear to assuming some of the liabilities of the club. The bondholders will foreclose their mortgage and the club will then be placed on the market.

Contracts in National League.

New York, Nov. 4.—The following contracts were today approved and promulgated by President Pulliam of the National baseball league: With New York, Joseph P. McGinnity, J. J. Dunn, A. Devlin, W. O. Gilbert, Luther H. Taylor, F. Bowerman, William F. Dahlen; with Boston, Henry R. Harley.

[BY GEORGE SILER.]

"I am not going to permit boxing matches in Chicago. I have said so once and will not discuss the matter again." The above was Mayor Harrison's reply to the question if he intended to permit boxing in Chicago this winter. In previous interviews his honor said he did not mind bona fide clubs holding boxing shows solely for the benefit of the members and would not tolerate fly by night organizations breaking into the game for private financial gains.

The Chicago Athletic association has a standing rule which permits each member to invite two guests, and whatever profits accrue from its boxing shows goes into the club's treasury. If other clubs in town would run the shows on the same lines the game would be in full blast within a fortnight. The probability is the mayor will loosen the reins and will issue permits to clubs with a legitimate membership, regardless of how the profits are divided. The Watita league, the first of the outside clubs to announce a show, made no headway yesterday with respects to its first attraction.

Tommy Mowatt, known in pugilistic circles as the "fighting conductor," yesterday agreed to meet Charley Neary at Milwaukee on Nov. 11. Jack McClelland of Pittsburg was to have met Neary, but was taken ill, and with no windup the Milwaukee club made strenuous efforts to induce either Mowatt, Benny Yanger, or Billy Finucane to face Charley. The inducement offered did not meet with their approval, but a raise of the ante and the weight conditions, 134 pounds, weigh in at 4 o'clock, caught Mowatt.

The Chicago Athletic association's star attraction tonight will be the Billy Mellody-Dick Fitzpatrick bout. Both men are reported as being in good condition and a hard and guelling battle is looked for. The boys went to a fast six round draw last winter. Other bouts will enlist "Dusty" Miller and Monte Attel, Maurice Thompson and Dick Hart, Jack Robinson and Ed Johnson, and "Packie" McFarland and George Quinn.

Jack Root and Tommy Ryan will not meet in a fifteen round battle at St. Louis, as was announced yesterday. Instead they will hook up for six rounds at Philadelphia under the auspices of the National Sporting club on Nov. 23. The inducements are a guaranteed purse of $2,500 with a privilege of 65 per cent of the gross receipts.

Jack O'Keefe and Eugene Bezenah probably will meet before the Alexandria club of Cincinnati on Nov. 17. O'Keefe received word from the club yesterday offering him 65 per cent of the receipts to meet "Gene" at from 142 to 145 pounds. The match, if arranged, will be a fifteen round affair.

Howard Carr of the Harlem Athletic club yesterday matched Otto Sieloff and Dick Green to contest the semi-final to the "Buddy" Ryan-Billy Mellody fight, which is slated to take place on Nov. 14. Eddie Kenny, the tough west side slugger, and Jack Turner in a preliminary bout completes Carr's card.

Jack Carmer and Carl Walters boxed four hard rounds to a draw at a political meeting at Eighteenth street and Ashland avenue. Mayor Harrison is said to have been a spectator.

Aurelia Herrera, the clever and hard hitting featherweight, arrived in town from Denver last night. The Mexican was to have fought Martin Devaney at Denver the latter part of the month, but was taken sick. He will leave for Hot Springs in a day or two, and after a two weeks' stay will return to Chicago, fit, he hopes, to meet all comers.

FORBES AND COBB IN A DRAW.

Fight Ten Clever Rounds at Detroit—Chicagoan to Meet Joe Cherry in Saginaw.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—Harry Cobb of Detroit and Clarence Forbes of Chicago went ten rounds to a draw tonight at the Detroit Athletic club, thereby leaving unsettled the argument that arose over their recent unsatisfactory bout in Chicago, which Forbes won on a foul. Tonight's contest was clever. Cobb had a big advantage in height and reach, and had a good lead in the early part of the fight. Forbes was unable to get by Cobb's long left until the sixth, but from that time on he made a rushing fight of it. The third was Forbes' only early round, and he scored a clean knockdown in that period. He made a great finish in the tenth, rushing Cobb about the ring and evening things up. Harry Forbes and Joe Cherry signed articles today for a bout late this month, and the Saginaw A. C., which made a bid at the signing, will probably get the mill.

Mowatt to Box Neary.

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—The matchmakers of the Badger Athletic club have finally landed a boxer to meet Charlie Neary, the local champion, in the windup on Nov. 11, in Tommy Mowatt of Chicago. The conditions are 130 pounds at 4 o'clock.

Williams and Stoll to Wrestle.

Calumet, Mich., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—Bert Williams and Herman Stoll will wrestle before the Laurium Athletic club Nov. 8 for the heavyweight championship of the northwest at the Cornish style.

Terre Haute, 6; Lafayette, 4.

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—Lafayette went down in defeat tonight before the Terre Haute polo team by a score of 6 to 4. The game was one of the roughest ever witnessed on the local rink. Two fouls were called.

Vanderbilt's Salambo Wins.

PARIS, Nov. 4.—W. K. Vanderbilt's Salambo won the race for the Prix Heaum at the Maisons Laffitte races today.

"KILLING" MADE ON TELESCOPE.

Half Brother of Commando Wins at Aqueduct, Being Backed from 50 to 5 to 1.

"BOOKIES" LOSE HEAVILY

Speculators Take $75,000 Out of Ring—Claim of Foul Not Allowed.

New York, Nov. 4.—[Special.]—Telescope, a half brother of the famous Commando, being a 3 year old son of Horoscope—Emma C., was put through for a tremendous "killing" in the last race at Aqueduct today. He ran in the colors of W. H. Kraft, a close friend of J. G. Follansbee, and was prepared for the race by Trainer "Doc" Kyle.

In the opening prices 50 to 1 was offered, but the money was placed in small amounts all over the ring so quickly that the odds dropped to 20 to 1. Then there was a general rush to get aboard at these odds, and, as the wagers were larger, the price against Telescope was soon beaten down to 5 to 1.

F. Thompson, the colored jockey, known in the west as "Two bits," had the mount, and he put up a masterly ride. Telescope went to the front at a terrific rate, but he was tiring at the end, and to some of the spectators it looked as if he had been beaten a "snoot" on the post by J. B. Haggin's Thespian, a 12 to 1 shot. But the judges gave the race to Telescope by a whisker.

Before the red board had been adjusted, however, Schilling, who rode Thespian, made a protest of foul against the winner, but it was not allowed. It is estimated $75,000 was taken from the bookmakers on Telescope's success.

Last year Telescope, while hitched to a buggy, ran away through the streets of Saratoga, and several persons were knocked down. He was generally regarded as no account after the incident, but Kyle evidently worked with unusual skill to fit him for his triumph. Summaries:

ROLL HIGH TEAM SCORE.

COLUMBIAN KNIGHTS TOTAL 1,106 IN THE CHICAGO LEAGUE.

Figures Are the Best Made by Any Local Club This Season, Being Thirteen Pins Better than the Previous Mark—Side Averages 993 1-3 and Take All Three Games from the Ramblers, Who Are in Poor Fettle—Schindlers Defeat the Halls.

Columbian Knight rollers awoke from their lethargy last night and rolled even over their usual standard. Topping their series against the Ramblers with 1,106, the highest team score made on a local alley this year, they averaged 993⅓, won three games from the Ramblers, and climbed up one place in the race. Heller led the performance with 204⅔.

In the other series the Schindlers, rolling a medium series, found the Halls in poor fettle and twice defeated them.

Waddell's Champions dropped two games to the Levys in the Phoenix league, while the Schillers inflicted a like defeat on the South Parks. Brown of the Levy team averaged 214.

In the Illinois league the Centurys, by defeating the Grands, advanced to a tie for second place with the Illinois. The La Salles took two games from the Remnants. S. Schlieman of the Halcyon team, in the Southwest league, averaged 214⅔ and helped his side to take two games from the Waiss players. McCoy averaged 213⅔ in the Lake View league. Scores:

YAWKEY AND JOHNSON CONFER.

Owner of Detroit Club and American League President Discuss Plans—Magnates to Go Hunting.

President Yawkey of the Detroit American league club was in the city yesterday and spent the day in conference with President Johnson at baseball headquarters. The only result of the conference made public was the addition of the Detroit magnate to the deer hunting expedition which is planned for next week to invade the swamps of Wisconsin. Mr. Yawkey is an enthusiastic sportsman, and on learning of the trip arranged by Messrs. Johnson and Comiskey eagerly accepted an invitation to join them in the deer chase.

The White Sox's magnate will return from St. Louis today, and the plans are to leave Monday night for northern Wisconsin so as to reach the wilderness on the night before the deer season opens—Nov. 10. Mr. Yawkey returned to Detroit last night, expecting to meet Manager Armour and have a talk on Tiger plans for the season of 1905. He will return here on Monday.

President Yawkey denied the report that the Detroit club would attempt to revive Sunday baseball in the Michigan metropolis. He said the plan had not even been discussed. Regarding the team's prospects for next year he was optimistic, and believed that with the material already on hand Manager Armour, in whom he has great confidence, would be able to turn out a first division team. He said it was up to Armour, who would be given absolute control of the team and could have any players he wanted.

Canadian Kickers to Play Here.

The association football match between Douglas Park and the Wanderers, scheduled for Sunday afternoon at West Eighteenth street and Forty-second avenue, has been postponed until Nov. 27.

The Galt team, champions of Ontario, will play the Wanderers at Parkside on Nov. 19, and one of the best matches of the season is looked for. On Sunday the Hyde Park Blues will meet the Calumets at Sixty-first street and Champlain avenue and the result will determine the leadership in the race. It is reported that Jack Gibson, the star hockey player from Houghton, Mich., who is now in Chicago, will assist the Calumets.

TRADE OUTLOOK IS LIVELY

DUN'S FINDS ENCOURAGEMENT IN CHICAGO DISTRICT.

Strengthened Demand for Factory Products Is Apparent—Rising Cost of Raw Materials and Heavier Retail Dealings in Necessities—Pig Iron, Steel, Lumber, and Hides Are Showing Advance—Labor Market Steady and More Hands Now Are Employed.

The weekly review of trade in the Chicago district, published by the R. G. Dun & Co. mercantile agency, will say:

Features of the business situation which stand out distinctly are the strengthened demand for factory products, rising cost of raw materials, and heavier retail dealings in necessities. Moderate decline is seen in quotations for leading grains, but, directly affecting important industrial lines, pig iron, steel, lumber, and hides are dearer. Entirely seasonable weather has not yet transpired, yet there was little hindrance in final distribution, while there are indications that consumption again has reached high volume.

Labor Market Shows Improvement.

The labor market is steady and more hands are now employed than at any time heretofore this year. Industrial activity reflects easier confidence and a widening effort to respond promptly to accumulating demands upon capacity. This is notably evident in metal, woodworking, and leather branches. Jobbing trade is well sustained in staple goods, current selections being well distributed on both local and outside requirements.

Western shipments of general merchandise continue large and more buyers take advantage of discounts. Reports from the interior are satisfactory as to the outlook in trade and agriculture and mercantile collections occasion but slight complaint, defaults again making a good comparative showing.

Soft Coal Supply Is Ample.

While receipts of bituminous coal fall short of those for the corresponding period last year, available stocks are seen to be ample for normal needs, and strike interruptions at the mines had slight effect. Railroads increased specifications for considerable rolling stock and rails, and new contracts added to the previously engaged condition of shipbuilding yards.

Receipts of lumber were 40,212,000 feet and barely equal to those a year ago. Lumber dealers report stocks much broken, and a large aggregate of building and factory demands quickly absorbs fresh supplies. New construction planned exceeds that of same period last year, and sites for business improvements are in strong request. Traffic returns show increased movement of commodities by rail and lake, but the volume of breadstuffs handled shows a falling off, the scarcity of wheat and corn causing low receipts.

Activity on Board of Trade.

Notwithstanding diminished supplies of grain, dealings on the board of trade maintained fair activity. Grain shipments, 3,133,-664 bushels, fell 40 per cent under those a year ago. The market was influenced by realizing sales, but prices, compared with closings last week, show only slight declines. Flour buyers operated conservatively, domestic stocks having gained and the general demand being lighter. Hog products rallied on the monthly statement, disclosing reduced stocks here, but the gain was not equally sustained.

Live stock receipts, 340,956 head, overran those of last week. Hogs were of deficient quality and cheaper, but choice cattle and sheep brought better prices, the former again touching the highest quotation this year.

Bank Clearings Are Increased.

Bank clearings, $191,656,298, increased 7.4 per cent over those of corresponding week last year. Offerings of commercial paper made a trifling gain, and the market rate for choice names ruled steady at 4½ to 5 per cent. Bankers find reviving inquiry for larger use of money in the near future. Dealings in choice bonds and securities paying satisfactory dividends reached an increased aggregate, and the ten active stocks made an average gain this week of 20 cents a share.

Failures reported in the Chicago district were 24, against 20 last week, and 35 a year ago.

BUSINESS GAINS ARE STEADY.

Commercial World Shows No Anxiety Regarding the Future, and Payments Are Met Promptly.

New York, Nov. 4.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade tomorrow will say:

Business improves steadily, and there is no evidence of anxiety regarding the future. Payments are more promptly met, tending to stimulate preparations for coming trade, and the disposition to limit purchases to immediate needs is gradually disappearing.

All the leading branches of manufacture are in a better position, with noteworthy activity at iron furnaces, woolen mills, and footwear factories. Fall River cotton mills are still idle because of the wage controversy, but many other New England plants have resumed, and the outlook for this industry is more favorable than at any time since it became demoralized by inflated raw material last year.

Traffic reports are satisfactory, railway earnings in October exceeding last year's by 7.6 per cent. Foreign commerce returns at this port for the last week show a gain of $789,276 in exports and a loss of $297,752 in imports, as compared with 1903.

Wholesome progress is recorded in the iron and steel industry, sentimental improvement being succeeded by actual business. Thus far the best news comes from blast furnaces, contracts for delivery of pig iron running well into next year, with a further sharp rise in prices.

Limited supplies maintain hides in a strong position, and some lines are bought in advance of salting. A better demand for leather is noted, large exports to Japan providing a new outlet for stocks. Eastern shoeshops are busily engaged on late fall goods. Prices are fully maintained.

Trade in cotton goods is limited to early shipment, neither element in the primary market seeking to operate beyond the business in sight. Much export business is imminent, judging by the frequent inquiries and small difference in views as to prices.

Woolen goods are strong and moving freely, the coming opening of heavyweights promising to be at high prices. Raw wool has again advanced, and is an important factor in the situation.

As Viewed by Bradstreet.

Bradstreet's tomorrow will say: Warm weather, activity in fall farm work and, to a lesser degree, ante election interest have detracted from retail trade distribution north and west. For like reasons jobbing sales are smaller in volume. Against this, however, is to be cited increased activity in a number of industries, headed by iron, steel, and allied lines of manufacture.

The strike of comparatively small number of mine employés is responsible for the idleness of close to 40,000 Indiana and Illinois coal miners and higher prices for bituminous coal.

Reports from the winter wheat crop are of an immense, possibly a record, acreage in that cereal, but drought and Hessian fly damage reports detract from an otherwise excellent prospect in the surplus producing states of the west.

The south gives relatively the best reports as to trade.

Business failures in the United States for the week ending Nov. 3 number 200, against 190 last week, 216 in the like week in 1903, 148 in 1902, 191 in 1901, and 161 in 1900. In Canada failures for the week number twenty, as against twenty-two last week and nineteen in this week a year ago.

Wheat, including flour, exports for the week ending Nov. 3, aggregate 1,482,202 bushels, against 1,479,613 last week and 4,340,-281 this week last year.

Corn exports for the week aggregate 346,927 bushels, against 449,151 last week and 1,459,-836 a year ago.

Bank Clearings of the Week.

The following table, compiled by Bradstreet, shows the bank clearings at the principal cities for the week ended Nov. 3, with the percentage of increase and decrease, as compared with the corresponding week last year:

POOLS RULE IN MARKET.

NEW YORK DAY GIVEN UP TO PROFIT TAKING.

[BY A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—[Special.]—Strength in the industrials and a sagging in railroads were the features of an erratic market today. Small pools evidently were controlling the movement in the general list, which advanced sharply at times for small transactions.

The aggressive strength of the United States Steel stocks formed a broad underlying support for the whole market. The common took precedence over the preferred stock, both in the volume of the dealings and in the amount of its gain, but both stocks touched new high levels for the movement. The other iron and steel stocks were affected in sympathy. Outside of these there was a bewildering array of all kinds of industrial stocks, some of them selling at nominal figures and some of them seldom making their appearance in the record of transactions.

The comparative firmness of the southern group was due to the attention given to an estimate of a bumper cotton crop by an official authority. The money market continued tranquil. The receipts from the interior proved less than last week. A decrease of nearly $9,000,000 in cash on all accounts is indicated, not including the $2,000,-000 in gold which will go to Cuba tomorrow. Profit taking on the day's rise made the day's close easy with only the United States Steel stocks at the best prices.

Bonds were irregular. Total sales, par value, $6,855,000. United States bonds were unchanged on call.

Close: Money on call steady, 2@2¼ per cent; closing bid and offered, 2. Time loans, steady; 60 and 90 days, 3¼ per cent; six months, 3½. Prime mercantile paper, 4@4½ per cent. Sterling exchange firm, with actual business in bankers' bills at 486.45@486.50 for demand and at 483.70@483.75 for 60 day bills. Posted rates, 484½@485 and 487@487½; commercial bills, 483¼@483¾. Bar silver, 58. Mexican dollars, 46¼. Government bonds, steady; railroad bonds irregular.

NEWS NOTES FROM NEW YORK.

Interesting Points in Decision in Case of Home Against Victoria-Montreal Company.

New York, Nov. 4.—[Special.]—The Supreme court of Canada, in the appeal of the Victoria-Montreal Fire Insurance company, defendants in the suit taken against them by the Home Insurance company of New York, for a policy of reinsurance, dismissed the action with costs. The points are interesting. The Western Assurance company insured the railway property of the Canadian Pacific and Canada Atlantic railway companies, and reinsured a portion of this risk in the Home of New York. The latter company in turn reinsured a portion of its risk with the Victoria-Montreal Fire of Montreal. Such a contract of reinsurance was not in the form of a treaty contract, but in the standard form of a fire policy New York used. A description of the risk contained a typewritten rider attached forming part of such a policy. The policy contained the usual condition that no suit or action of recovery would be sustainable unless commenced within twelve months next after the fire.

In the Ottawa-Hull conflagration in April, 1900, a large quantity of railway property was destroyed. The loss was adjusted by the Western and paid the following March. The Home paid its proportion of loss under its reinsurance policy, but neglected to bring action against the Victoria-Montreal Fire until the following June—more than one year after the fire. The case was tried in the Superior court of Montreal, which maintained the action of the Home Insurance to the extent of $3,727, with interest and costs, holding that the printed condition limiting the right of action to one year from the fire was not applicable to the policy of reinsurance.

This judgment was unanimously confirmed by Judges Mathieu, Lavergne, and St. Pierre, and a number of United States cases were cited to support such judgment. The Victoria-Montreal Fire Insurance company appealed to the Supreme court, and that court, by a majority of three to two, reversed the decision of the lower courts and held the right of action to twelve months applicable to the contract of reinsurance and that the stipulation of the contracting parties in such respect must govern.

A situation that promises interesting complications exists in regard to the insurance of Newark's public school property against loss by fire. The finance committee of the common council authorized the city treasurer to retain from the appropriation for school maintenance an amount equivalent to 1 per cent of the value of schools and additions upon which insurance policies never have been written. That sum is to form the nucleus of an insurance fund against loss by fire. The amount in question is $8,600, being 1 per cent on the $860,000 valuation fixed for the property involved.

It developed that the president of the board of education took preliminary steps Oct. 28 to reinsure the public schools upon which policies expired three days later. That made all insurance good until Nov. 13, leaving the matter of premium rates of the fire insurance companies for future settlement.

Mayor Welles of Pensacola, Fla., called a special session of the city council to take up the investigation of the large fire of Oct. 22, when four residences were destroyed, entailing a loss of over $25,000. The meeting was called upon the request of the local board of underwriters, who state that either the fire department or the water company was negligent or the fire could not have spread to the three buildings. The mayor decided it would be best to have the entire matter thoroughly sifted and place the blame where it belongs. The fire department claims the water company did not furnish sufficient water to fight the fire, while the water company alleges it maintained a pressure above that required.

Blagden, Kelly & Co. have filed notice of appeal from the finding of the arbitration committee of the New York Fire Insurance exchange, requiring a discontinuation of their arrangement with F. W. Temmler & Co.

The Augusta (Ga.) Fire Insurance exchange has notified the cotton factories in that city that an advance of 1 per cent in rates hereafter will be charged on all warehouses and their contents that are endangered by cotton in the streets. The matter is the subject of considerable discussion lately, and cotton factories have been repeatedly warned that the menace must be abated or the rates will have to be increased. In some localities cotton bales are scattered all over the street and greatly impede traffic. Some factories are inclined to resist the advance and claim they can get insurance at the old rate.

A public meeting was held at Troy, N. Y., Wednesday evening under the auspices of the chamber of commerce of that city to consider the "pink slip" charge for deficient fire protection. The matter was fully discussed and an effort was made to defend the position of the common council in holding up the proposed appropriation for necessary improvements in the fire department and water supply of the city. A letter from the secretary of the state board of fire underwriters was read setting forth the position of the underwriters as to what improvements were necessary to bring about a repeal of the "pink slip" charge. Some members of the local board of fire underwriters explained that their organization in nowise was responsible for the advance and then proposed to appoint a committee from the chamber of commerce to investigate the situation.

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—C. B. Armstrong, one of the foremost figures in the insurance and commercial life of Buffalo, died last night, after a protracted illness. He was the senior member of the prominent agency of C. B. Armstrong & Co., organized in 1861, and representing a large number of prominent fire, marine, and fidelity insurance companies. He was the first president of the Buffalo Association of Fire Underwriters, chartered in 1881, and in the direction of its affairs he until recently had taken an influential part. His loss will be severely felt personally by a large circle of influential friends in business circles.

LONDON, Nov. 4.—[Special.]—It has just become known the Yorkshire Fire and Life Insurance company of York has taken over the home fire, accident, and life department of the National Assurance company of Dublin, Ireland. What becomes of the other business of the National is not yet known in fire offices here. For several years British underwriters have been expecting some transaction of the kind in view of the National's financial condition, but the Yorkshire had not been rumored in this connection.

The National Assurance of Ireland was established in 1822, and entered the United States in 1899. George E. Kendall is manager of the American branch headquarters at Hartford. He is widely and favorably known in fire underwriting circles. Just what will be done about the business in the United States as well as that in South Africa, South America, and Australia is not now known, and will be the subject of much guessing. The total premiums on the National's business all over the world in 1902 was about $2,000,000.

INDICTED AS "WILDCAT" MEN.

E. A. Shanklin, S. W. Jacobs, and Others Held on Charges of Using Mails to Defraud.

The federal grand jury has returned indictments against E. A. Shanklin and S. W. Jacobs, who had been held to it by the United States commissioner a few months ago, on a charge of using the mails with intent to defraud in connection with "wildcat" insurance companies. Indictments on a similar charge also were returned against Charles J. Russell, who has been connected with unadmitted fire insurance companies in Chicago, and against two others whose names are withheld until they can be arrested. Both are well known in the business. It is probable the cases will be called for trial before the end of the month.

The hearing by Judge Brentano on the temporary injunction secured against the Chicago Underwriters' association by Frank F. Holmes in connection with the placing of the Cook county insurance will be held on Tuesday in the offices of Peck, Miller & Starr, attorneys for the association. That was the only day Judge Brentano had free for the hearing, and as the courthouse is closed on election day it had to be held outside. It has been suggested that it will be better, in view of the general interest in the matter, to hold the hearing in the assembly room of the Chicago Underwriters' association, as more convenient for all concerned.

Frank M. Butt of Atlanta has formed a partnership with J. C. Clark, general agent for the Ocean Accident in South Carolina, Georgia, and Florida, and the new firm will have the liability department of the Ocean for the entire south. It also will have the New York Plate Glass company for a number of the southern states.

A. R. Erwin of Erwin & Fields, local agents at Nashville, Tenn., has been appointed special agent in Kentucky and Tennessee of the Williamsburg City.

The Southeastern Tariff association has appointed a special committee of Atlanta managers to review the lists of mixed agents in the southeastern field and urge separation.

The Supreme court of Tennessee has sustained the contention of the Ætna at every point in a suit brought against it by the Scarborough & Henderson company of Knoxville. The plaintiff insured a stock of produce in one building and then moved it to another, where it burned. It held the policy covered it, and the company denied this and refused to pay the claim.

W. L. Nelson & Co. of Memphis, Tenn., general agents, have applied for licenses in Louisiana for the Colonial of New York and the Farmers and Merchants' of Lincoln, Neb.

The Fidelity Mutual Life and the Provident Savings Life have been indicted at Owensboro, Ky., for alleged rebating.

There is trouble among the agents at Dubuque, Ia., over the lumber in yard H of the Dubuque Woodenware and Lumber company, in Peosta street, said to have been written at 2¼ per cent, as against the advisory estimate of 3¼ per cent, based on the lumber's proximity to a planing mill rated at 4 per cent.

De Witt Stevens has opened an office as an independent adjuster at 218 La Salle street.

REMANDS ILLINOIS LIFE CASE.

Kentucky Court Reverses Decision Involving Exchange of Chicago for Louisville Property.

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—The Appellate court today reversed the Jefferson chancery court, Second division, in the case of Mary A. Coleman and others against the Illinois Life Insurance company and remanded it for further proceedings. The action grew out of the exchange by appellants of property at Chicago valued at $470,000 for property at Louisville of appellee valued at $200,000 and $270,000 in cash. Appellants were later required to pay the city of Louisville $2,954 in taxes on the property, and sued the insurance company to recover that amount. The court here holds the company liable.

Indianapolis Agents' Peace Plan.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 4.—[Special.]—On Oct. 26 the local agents association passed a resolution refusing to collect the conflagration advance ordered in this city, to be effective Nov. 1. Today they agreed to rescind the former action if the governing committee of the Western union would agree to hold a conference with a local committee, holding the advance in abeyance until definite action be taken after such conference. The agents there feel that they have opened the way to an amicable settlement of the local tangle.

NEWS OF THE RAILWAYS.

NEW FIGURES ON RAILWAYS OF UNITED STATES.

Advance Sheets of Poor's Manual Show Great Increases in Capital Stock, Funded and Unfunded Debts—Big Jump in Operating Expenses Also—Freight Business Figures the Best—Announcement of Winter Homeseekers' Excursions to West.

Interesting facts concerning the results of railroad operations in the United States during the last year are contained in the advance sheets of the introduction to "Poor's Manual of Railroads," which have just been issued. According to the figures the length of steam railroads in this country on Dec. 31, 1903, was 207,604 miles, a net increase of 4,595 miles in the year.

The increase in the capital stock was $276,-916,739 and the expansion in funded debt was $256,925,678. In 1892 the increase in capital stock was about $100,000,000 and the expansion in funded debt about $430,000,000. The heavy temporary borrowings of railroads in 1903 are shown by an increase of nearly $140,000,000 in unfunded debt, whereas in the two preceding years this item had shown a decrease.

Figures on Annual Income.

	1903.	1902.
Miles of railroad operated (inc. 7,201.35)	208,885.99	190,684.64
Traffic earnings—
Passenger	$ 429,705,287	$ 396,518,412
Freight	1,344,150,719	1,197,212,452
Miscellaneous	135,001,820	127,089,088
Total gross	$1,908,857,826	$1,720,814,900
Expenses and taxes	1,316,349,314	1,160,788,623
Net earnings	$ 592,508,512	$ 560,026,277
Other receipts	89,485,484	77,663,483
Total available rev.	$ 681,993,996	$ 637,689,760

Total payments	$ 560,113,908	$ 528,523,326
Surplus	$ 121,880,088	$ 109,166,434

The figures show the great increase in railroad working costs, as of the $188,000,000 increase in gross earnings more than $150,-000,000 was consumed in increased operating expenses. The percentage of operating expenses to earnings was 68.96, against 67.45 in 1902.

Freight Shows Greatest Increase.

The greatest increase in earnings was in the freight department, which aggregated $1,344,150,719 in 1893, as against $1,197,212,-452 in 1892. The increase, $146,938,267, is 12.29 per cent, with an increase of 2.75 per cent in the average receipts a ton a mile.

Following are comparisons of leading traffic items:

	1903.	1902.

More Homeseekers' Excursions.

Western Passenger association roads will run excursions every first and third Tuesday in January, February, March, and April to all western and southwestern homeseekers' points at one fare plus $2 for the round trip. These excursions during the winter months will be extended to Denver, Colorado Springs, and Pueblo, to which points a round trip rate of $35 from Chicago will be made.

Reduced rates have been agreed on for the national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic at Denver in September, 1905, and for the convention of the Epworth league at Denver next July.

Big Profit in Conclave.

A statement just issued by the Transcontinental Passenger association shows the railroads derived an unexpectedly large revenue from the passenger business for the conclave of Knights Templar and the grand lodge of oddfellows at San Francisco last September. It appears that 21,106 tickets were validated for the return trip. There were confiscated by the joint agency at San Francisco 120 tickets and by conductors on trains ninety-five tickets. Their value was $13,027. The total revenue from the tickets sold for that occasion exceeded $1,000,000.

TRANSFERS POLICE OFFICERS.

Chief O'Neill Moves Three Lieutenants "for Convenience of the Department."

A general order issued by Chief O'Neill last evening resulted in the transfer of three police lieutenants. Lieut. Thomas Duffy, known as the "Marshal," was transferred from Central detail to the Twenty-second street station, vice Lieut. Thomas Meagher, who returns to his old place at Maxwell street. William Ambrose goes from Maxwell street to Central detail to take Lieut. Duffy's place. Chief O'Neill said the transfers were made for convenience to the department.

CITY EMPLOYE AN UNDERTAKER.

P. J. Cummings, Superintendent of Sewer Work, Says Funeral Directing Is Only a Side Line.

P. J. Cummings is both an undertaker and a city foreman of sewer work, and the combination took him before the civil service commission yesterday on charges that he neglected city business to take charge of funerals. His undertaking headquarters are at 4116 State street. Some witnesses said the undertaking business was a mere "side line," and that Cummings delegated the care of it to others. Others insisted that the city job was the "side line." The commission took the matter under advisement.

BAD DAY FOR HOLDERS.

WHEAT NEWS GENERALLY BEARISH—MARKET OFF A CENT.

Improved Crop Conditions in Argentina, Weakness in Liverpool, Better November Condition of Winter Wheat in Ohio than a Year Ago, and Dull Cash Demand and Weak Cash Markets, Particularly Northwest, Affect Prices.

Argentine crops news was more favorable, the Liverpool market weak upon that information, the Ohio crop report indicated a better wheat condition Nov. 1 than last year, 87 points compared with 81, and no damage from fly, northwestern receipts were larger than last year and primary receipts not so much smaller as they have been running, while milling demand was dull and cash prices were weak, particularly in the northwest.

These conditions made a heavy market here, prices off about ½c at the start and never recovering, selling 1⅛c lower on the extreme decline and closing at moderate reactions, with losses of ⅝c for December and May to 1c for July. The December range was from $1.12⅛ to $1.11¼, the close at $1.11⅝. May sold from $1.11⅞ to $1.11¼, and closed $1.11⅝ sellers. July closed at 97⅞c.

Northwestern markets were still weaker, Minneapolis off 1⅛c for cash and December and 1½c for May, Duluth off 1⅛c to 1⅜c. Kansas City lost 1c and St. Louis ⅝c. The cash situation became particularly weak in the northwest, No. 1 and No. 2 northern at Duluth both quoted 2½c lower, while premiums at Minneapolis were reduced, millers buying little lower grades slow and dragging. The northwestern weakness was naturally a factor in the decline here, and the northwestern bull interest was a heavy seller of December, but bought May against these sales.

Stocks Still Increasing.

The fact that receipts at Minneapolis and Duluth were 901 cars, compared with 866 a year ago, with estimated increases in stocks for the week of 300,000 bu at Duluth and 1,150,000 bu at Minneapolis, affected speculative temper in that section. The flour demand was called dull there and local millers and brokers could find nothing better to say of it here. Milling demand here was dull, choice grades steady, particularly of soft winter wheats, but lower grades weak, light weight but millable spring wheat bringing 10c less than the same quality sold for a week ago. Sales in scattered lots were about 25,000 bu.

Primary receipts were 1,122,000 bu, compared with 1,343,000 bu last year; primary shipments 406,000 bu, compared with 797,000 bu. Clearances were only 38,000 bu for the day, all flour; for the week from both coasts and Canada, as reported by Bradstreet's, they were 1,482,000 bu, about one-third of last year's shipments. Argentine shipments were liberal, 1,280,000 bu, just ten times larger than a year ago. Liverpool closed ⅛d to ⅜d lower, London unchanged, Paris ½c to 1c higher, other continental markets unchanged.

Outside of the selling of about 1,000,000 bu December and buying of as much May by a bull commission house, speculative trade was smaller than of late and largely professional. Armour bought considerable December on the break, presumably covering shorts. Cudahy seemed to be on both sides of the market in a scalping way. Peavey, Spencer, Milmine-Bodman, Sickel-Roberts, Kneeland, and Ware-Leland were good sellers. At times around bottom prices at the close some of these houses turned buyers, and Pringle and Bartlett-Frazier bought, causing a small rally.

December Corn on Top.

December corn shorts alarmed themselves in the first hour with discussions of the small contract stocks and with rumors they would not be increased because all the interests owning dryers were long on the market and would not manufacture contract corn. Shorts were sufficiently disturbed to advance prices ⅝c early, but on the swell houses representing the eastern long interests were heavy sellers, apparently changing long December over into May, some of them large buyers of May in addition, and all the December advance was lost, the close 48¼c, while May gained ⅛c to 45½c. The final reaction was influenced by weakness of new corn in the cash market. While opening prices were 1c higher, they broke 3c finally on liberal arrivals of about 40 cars, or half the total receipts of 84 cars.

Old corn was ½c to 1c higher and in sharp shipping demand, sales reported as high as 250,000 bu at 7c over May in store; total sales, 275,000 bu. The Ohio crop report that corn was husking out poorly, much soft and moldy, stimulated buying. Estimated receipts for today, 87 cars. Primary receipts are showing some increase, relatively 306,000 bu, compared with 446,000 bu. Clearances were 2,000 bu, export sales at the seaboard 11,000 bu. Argentina shipped 2,254,000 bu, compared with 3,188,000 bu a week ago and 2,128,000 bu last year. Liverpool was steady to ⅛d higher on futures, and ⅛d higher on spot Argentine. Knight-Donnelley, Ware-Leland, and other bull houses were heavy sellers of December, but even larger buyers of May. Harris-Scotten sold December. It looked as though Armour took advantage of the unusually liberal December offerings to cover a big line of shorts.

Lifeless Trade in Oats.

Oats were unusually dull and lifeless from a speculative point of view. Trade light and range narrow, less than ¼c, with the close steady at ⅛c lower, May the weakest delivery. Receipts were 110 cars, the estimate for today 122 cars. There were 60,000 bu standards out of private houses. Cash prices were steady to ¼c lower, shipping sales about 125,000 bu. Clearances were only 1,000 bu.

Provisions Lack Support.

In provisions the concentrated buying of the last few days was entirely lacking and the market sagged back, apparently from its own weight, closing near bottom, at losses of 10c to 17½c for pork and 7½c to 10c for lard and ribs. Hog receipts were over the estimate at 17,000, but the market was active and strong. For today arrivals of 12,000 are expected. Western packing points got 56,200 to 56,800 last Friday and 46,600 a year ago. Shipments of meats and lard were considerably smaller than a year ago, the greatest falling off in lard. Speculative trade was exceedingly dull, not a transaction in the pit during one interval of forty-five minutes.

Rye Prices Steady.

Rye was quiet but steady. November closed nominally 79¾c; December, 80c bid, and May, 82c bid. Cash No. 2 sold at 83½@84c, free on board, and No. 3 sold at 81c, free on board. Receipts were 9 cars.

Barley ruled dull and unchanged. Malting sold from 39@52c and screenings, 24@37c. Feed sold at 37½@38c.

Timothy seed was quiet but steady. November closed nominally, $2.60; January, $2.65, and March, $2.75. Country lots sold from $2.00@2.45.

Clover seed ruled firm. Prime was quotable at $12.35 and cash lots at $7.00@12.00.

Flaxseed ruled quiet but steady. November, $1.10, and December, $1.11; No. 1 northwestern closed at $1.16 and southwestern at $1.10. Receipts at Minneapolis were 130 cars and Duluth had 153 cars. Local receipts were 1 car.

INTERESTING TRADE GOSSIP ON 'CHANGE.

If dry weather in September and October can injure winter wheat seriously some cause for concern is furnished by the exhibit of the weather and crop bulletin, showing decided departures from normal precipitation in important parts of the belt. The shortage for October has not been as great as during September, but the figures for the two months at southern points show as follows: Memphis, shortage from normal for September, 2.54; October, 2.49. Nashville, same months, 3.25 and 2.18. Chattanooga, 2.63 and 2.21. Knoxville, 1.60 and 2.69. Lexington, .83 and 1.62. Louisville, .17 and 2.51. Cincinnati, 1.14 and 1.54. Columbus, 1.78 and 1.65. Parkersburg, 2.09 and .92. Pittsburg, .21 and .33. Springfield, Ill., is short 2.60 for October, having but one-tenth of an inch for the month. Cairo is short 1.55 for the last month. St. Louis, 2.39, showing but half an inch rain since Sept. 1. Kansas City has had one inch during October, 2.38 less than normal. The shortage last month was 1.79 at Topeka, .99 at Wichita, .32 Concordia, .73 Lincoln, and 1.07 Omaha.

"The south has raised a big cotton crop, is going to get a big price for it, and is more prosperous than ever before in her history," said F. D. Blakemore, who has just returned from a trip through the Carolinas and Georgia for Ware-Leland. "Business in all lines is going to be good. The corn crop of the south this year is also unusually large and of good quality." Asked as to the appearance of winter wheat Mr. Blakemore said: "Through Indiana, Ohio, and Pennsylvania on the Pennsylvania road the plant is looking fine. In Kentucky and Tennessee, along the line of the old Queen and Crescent from Knoxville to Lexington, a trip I made by daylight, the wheat has hardly germinated. In some places you can see a faint greenish tinge on the ground, elsewhere not that. They say they have had no rain in that section for two months."

The intermarket agreement between grain shippers in Chicago and buyers in New York, providing for terms of shipment and for arbitration of disputes, the important details of which have been reported, has been published and circulated among the trade by the committee which helped draw it up for Chicago, James Pettit, W. H. Merritt, and Robert McDougall. It is apparently more popular in New York than here, as forty firms acting in that market have signed the agreement and only eight here, but it is explained local shippers have simply not taken the time to get in line, but are sure to do so. The boards of arbitration in the two markets are made up as follows: Chicago—Walter Fitch, E. L. Glaser, J. M. Jenks, G. S. McReynolds, S. T. Graff; New York—H. B. Day, W. H. Kemp, John Marshall, Yale Kneeland, E. Pfarrius.

Cash wheat was about steady for choice grades, but poorer qualities were dull and weak, 51 lb spring wheat selling at $1.03, or 10c lower than the same sort of wheat sold for a week ago. Generally, however, the declines were less marked. Sales to millers were about 40,000 bu in scattered lots. Kansas City cash prices were 1c to 2c lower, Duluth 2½c lower for both No. 1 and No. 2 northern, St. Louis was ½c lower. Milling demand was limited. Old corn was strong, ½c to 1c higher; sales, 250,000 bu No. 2 at 7c over May in store, making 500,000 bu in two days, and 25,000 bu sample corn. Oats steady to ½c lower, sales 125,000 bu white clipped.

"Wheat buyers had temporary encouragement on one or two days of the week," says Bennett, "on seeing western receipts much less than last year. The later days of the week show a movement well over 1,000,000 bu a day, and considerable doubt is expressed as to just when the falling off in receipts is to take place. Northwest markets, which were the leaders in strength before, have shown some weakness, and the trade has heard less about cash and milling demand from that quarter. It looks as if a revival of cash strength and better flour business may be necessary to hold wheat futures."

The Modern Miller says: "Drought conditions have prevailed quite generally throughout the winter wheat belt. In some sections, notably in the southeast, complaints of retarded growth or inability to seed are becoming more general. Otherwise the prospects are good, as the plant is making seasonable progress. Hessian fly is reported in early sown wheat, and some damage is being done, but this as yet has not developed into anything serious. A large acreage of winter wheat is assured."

The Northwestern Miller estimates 52 per cent of the wheat crop in the Dakotas and Minnesota to be No. 1 and No. 2 northern. This is one of the reasons for the weakness at Minneapolis and Duluth. According to the state inspection department of Minneapolis September receipts 14 per cent graded No. 1 northern, 20 per cent No. 2 northern. In October 11 per cent graded No. 1 northern, 20 per cent No. 2 northern. Duluth inspection was undoubtedly better.

"I see they are discovering Hessian fly in Nebraska," said I. C. Gifford. "Some one must be 'long.' Our elevator reports from Nebraska all say wheat is looking fine and there has certainly been a big increase in acreage. There is no reason for alarm because wheat is not high on the ground. Farmers do not sow as early as formerly, finding better results from late seeding."

A message from Casselton, N. D., to Bartlett-Frazier says: "The big Oliver Dalrymple farm, located near that point with 8,000 acres of wheat this year averaged 8¼ bu per acre, three cars of which graded No. 1 northern and the balance No. 2, No. 3, and No. 4. Last year the wheat yielded 19¼ bu to the acre and it all graded No. 1 and No. 2 northern."

A Des Moines message to Ware-Leland suggests the possibility of the weather being too good for corn, saying: "It looks as if farmers were picking corn too soon. Weather has been warm and with no winds it is not drying out good. Some complaints of spoiling in cribs. Husking returns as good or better than expected as to quantity."

The Ohio crop report for November, as wired by C. A. King & Co. of Toledo, says: "Wheat condition, 87; year ago, 81. Last July, 59. Area sown this fall, 1,859,000 acres; 99 compared with last year. Little fly damage. Corn condition, 71, against 73 last month and 69 a year ago. Corn is not husking out well, much soft and moldy."

Broomhall cabled his Argentine agent had just returned from a week's trip through Entre Rios and Santa Fé, which contain about half the wheat acreage, and reported the wheat crop looked splendid. He considered the present weather favorable for the crops and claimed that the damage reports are unfounded.

Receivers generally think the first real rush of new corn to this market will begin in earnest next week, their advices from the country indicating dealers will be consigning new corn generally and freely by that time. Already half of the small receipts are from the new crop, an unusual proportion so early in the year.

E. F. Rosenbaum of the J. Rosenbaum Grain company announced with pride yesterday that his house had won all the first prizes at the St. Louis exposition on exhibits of feed barley for export. He added conscientiously that there were no other exhibits in that class.

St. Louis wires Logan-Bryan: "Twenty-six of the largest mills in the territory around Nashville, Tenn., have shut down for six days—full of flour and slow sales."

Flour stocks are increasing, 857,466 brls, at important distributing centers Nov. 1, compared with 679,676 brls Oct. 1, and 728,179 brls Nov. 1, 1903.

Liverpool cabled American sellers of new corn for December-January shipment are making some efforts to buy back these sales.

Jones of London, not of Minneapolis, estimates India's shipments for the week at 2,488,000 bu.

Estimated receipts for today are: Wheat, 56 cars; corn, 87 cars; oats, 122 cars; hogs, 12,000.

Winnipeg wheat receipts were 825 cars, compared with 194 last year.

LAKE STREET "L" LOWER.

SHARES DECLINE, PRESUMABLY ON REPORT OF TRAFFIC.

Can Shares Seem Unable to Rise Above 50 at Present—Increase of Output Reported by Cripple Creek Mines—King, Hodenpyl & Co. Have Bullish Advices—Large Production of Anthracite Coal—Application to List More Bonds.

Local stocks were generally steady yesterday. Chicago and Oak Park L shares were a little lower, presumably on the October statement of traffic. The line continues to make unfavorable monthly exhibits. Nothing that has thus far been done for the road has led to improvement, although much ingenuity has been expended. Apparently some adverse factor offsets every move.

The Union Traction company, for instance, after the Yerkes holdings of Lake Street were sold, ran a trolley wire under the structure of the elevated and put into operation large cars, which, for a surface line, make good time. Traffic was literally taken from the elevated at the foot of its stairways. The Northwestern Elevated canceled a considerable debt which the Lake Street owed, and thereby reduce both its floating debt and its interest charges. The Lake Street was also loaned cars of the Northwestern Elevated. It has been given things, been extended, been reorganized, and generally coddled in a financial way, but still it does not pay and gives no prospect of paying in the future.

Trading in American Can shares was only moderately active, and the price changes were fractional. The stock seems to meet difficulty in rising to 50 or above that price. It is believed, however, that the shares will go much higher, based merely on earning power and management. The concern was in such straits for so long after its organization, and so many purchasers of the stock lost money that it is difficult for old holders of the shares to believe anything good can come out of the proposition. But the property has been revolutionized, and there is hardly a comparison between its earning power now and what it was at the time of organization.

The Biscuit shares were in usual fair demand. Prices ruled steady. There was nothing doing in the Union Traction shares, though a moderate volume of buying developed in City railway.

Union Pacific Earnings Gain.

Union Pacific earnings for September show a gain of 4.7 per cent in gross and 8.6 in net. The operating ratio was 51.75 per cent, against 53.35 for the corresponding month last year. It will be recalled that St. Paul earnings for September also showed decided improvement.

Great Western figures issued yesterday showed a decrease of 5.4 per cent in gross. The operating ratio was reduced and there followed a small gain in net. Chicago Terminal Transfer again showed a loss, the decrease being 5.7 per cent.

Bank Statement Forecast.

The National City bank paid the subtreasury yesterday for the $2,000,000 in gold coin taken for shipment to Cuba today. This $2,000,000 will not figure in today's bank statement.

Known movements of money for the week indicate an apparent loss in cash by the banks of $8,730,000.

Cripple Creek Gold Output.

The output of the Cripple Creek mining district for October was the largest in over two years. While the production of the camp for September passed the $2,000,000 mark, October will be a little better, having a total value for the month's ore shipments of $2,043,900.

The official figures are as follows:

Plants.	Tons.	Av. val.	Total.

Bull View of Influential House.

In their closing letter from New York yesterday, King, Hodenpyl & Co. had the following from F. K. Sturgis of Strong, Sturgis & Co.:

"The recent setback which speculation received has been beneficial and, in addition to the influence that it may have upon the speculative mind, it has gone far to show that there is no pressure of stocks in Wall street even when it becomes necessary to realize heavily upon speculative ventures. The conservative stock brokerage houses of Wall street have not materially increased their lines. There are of course some exceptions to this, but we speak in a general manner regarding it. This will go to evidence that the stocks are not held for speculative purposes and is an important bull argument on the market.

"If, during the recent concession, stocks had flooded the street and it became evident that brokers were overloaded, we should have felt much more timid; as a matter of fact, however, such has proved not to be the case, and we speak of it as being healthy in our opinion in its influence upon the future course of prices. Without reference to what the next two or three weeks may produce or what changes of a moderate nature may come just before or subsequent to election, we are disposed to take a more hopeful view of the subsequent condition of affairs.

"Beginning soon after Dec. 1 we are inclined to look for a continued and healthy improvement in the prices of all securities that will pay better than 4 per cent. The extremely easy rates for money indicate that such will be the case and the scarcity of stocks confirms the indication. With the advance on good things, poorer securities will receive attention, and it may be wise therefore to purchase moderately upon any reaction. For the next two or three weeks doubtless we shall have a traders' market with its ups and downs, but the investment demand arising on or about Dec. 15 will, we think, give a great stimulus to prices during the year 1905."

West Chicago.

For the purpose of adjusting the rents, etc., of the company the books of the West Chicago Street railway company will close Nov. 5 and reopen Nov. 16.

Dividend Declared.

The New York and Queen's Electric Light and Power company has declared a semi-annual dividend of 2 per cent on its preferred stock, payable on Dec. 1 to stock of record on Nov. 15.

General Financial News.

A high official of the United Gas Improvement company is quoted as saying there is absolutely no truth in the statement that negotiations looking toward the acquisition of the American Light and Traction company have been reopened.

The Minneapolis and St. Louis has applied to the New York stock exchange to list $1,250,000 additional first and refunding mortgage fifty year bonds.

On and after Jan. 1, 1905, the anthracite tonnage of the Susquehanna Coal company controlled by the Pennsylvania railroad will be sold directly by salaried agents of the company instead of through other firms, as heretofore. C. L. Thompson of Erie, Pa., has been appointed general western agent of the company, with headquarters at Erie.

The Pittsburg Coal company gives notice that the preferred stock dividend scrip issued Jan. 25, 1904, is called for payment to holders of record Nov. 25, 1904. Scrip may be presented at the treasurer's office at any previous date, and when so deposited will be paid by check Nov. 25. The scrip will be transferrable up to and including Nov. 14.

The production of anthracite by the Reading company for the month of October was the largest in the history of the company, being between 1,145,000 and 1,150,000 tons.

"KID" FARMER, PRIZE FIGHTER, MUST END LIFE IN PRISON.

Announcement of Verdict Causes Collapse of Man Convicted of Committing a Holdup.

Benjamin Fienberg, who has fought many prize ring battles under the name of "Kid" Farmer, Joseph Fienberg, his brother, and William O'Connell were found guilty of robbery yesterday and the jury fixed their punishment at imprisonment for life. When the verdict was announced the fighter collapsed, and it was necessary for deputy sheriffs to carry him from Judge Smith's courtroom to the jail.

The three men were convicted of having held up and robbed George Rogers, a saloonkeeper, in Forty-seventh street. They used revolvers, and this fact, under the law, gave the jury the right to impose a life penalty. Rogers and a customer were forced into an ice box and held prisoners while the men robbed the cash register and escaped.

All three defendants denied their guilt and tried hard to prove an alibi. The state had only two witnesses against them.

MAKES CHARGE OF FAVORITISM.

Property Owners Ask That Drainage Board Be Enjoined from Closing Contract for $91,230 Job.

Charging favoritism by the drainage board, Thomas J. Donegan yesterday sought an injunction to prevent it from confirming a contract with the Wellman-Seaver-Morgan company of Cleveland for work on the drainage canal costing $91,230. He appears as the owner of propery on the waterway and recites that the Stilwell-Bierce-Smith & Vail company of Dayton, O., made a bid of $85,894 for installing an electric power plant near Lockport, but that the successful company, which failed to provide means of inspecting the tubes, was allowed to make provision for this by changing the bid, and then was given the contract.

APPROVES PLANS FOR THEATER.

Building Department Gives Mrs. Augusta Lehmann Permission to Erect $1,000,000 Majestic.

Deputy Building Commissioner Stanhope approved yesterday the final plans and drawings for the new Majestic Theater and Office building at 71 to 75 Monroe street. A permit was issued, costing $212.90.

The cost of the structure, which is to be the property of Mrs. Augusta Lehmann, was given as $1,000,000. The building will be twenty stories and basement high, and the top lines will be 260 feet above the street level.

The theater will be the first new one constructed under the rigid rules of the new theater ordinance. It will seat 2,000 persons.

MRS. E. F. SMITH TO BE MARRIED TO MR. HANS SCHWEGEL.

Ceremony to Take Place in London in January—Miss Margaret Kendrick and Miss Henrietta Holmes First Debutantes of the Season—Mrs. William Amberg to Give a Large Tea This Afternoon—Wedding of Miss Juliette Bond Today.

Mrs. Kendrick and her daughter received the guests in the drawing room, which was banked with American beauties, palms and ferns. The débutante wore a gown of white chiffon. Throughout the house potted plants predominated in decorating, and in the dining room the table was done in pink. Mrs. and Miss Kendrick will be at home the first Monday in each month.

The début of Miss Holmes was made in afternoon and evening, the hours being from 3 to 5 and 8 to 10 o'clock, during which time the hostess was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. Charles S. Hoppin, Mrs. George Roble, Mrs. Armour Morris, Mrs. Francis Kitchell, Mrs. Gordon Ellis, Mrs. Joseph Thompson, Mrs. Wilbur S. Jackman, Mrs. Charles Bradley, Mrs. Henry Bedder. The affair will be a large one, several hundred invitations having been issued.

The wedding of Miss Juliette Bond, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Bond, to Mr. Robert Valentine Massey of Wilmington, Del., son of Mr. and Mrs. George V. Massey, will take place this afternoon. The ceremony will be performed at 3:30 o'clock at the family residence, 4025 Drexel boulevard, by the Rev. Selden P. Delaney of Appleton, Wis. Miss Rachel E. Bond will attend her sister as maid of honor and will wear white chiffon taffeta combined with pale blue. She will wear a white lace hat and carry a tulle muff. ARGUMENTS IN DAVIS CASE WILL CONTINUE NEXT WEEK.

Assistant State's Attorney Lindley Attacks Plea of Levy Mayer—Judge Dunne to Inspect Columbus Theater.

Arguments on the Iroquois theater indictment against Will J. Davis will be continued before Judge Kersten this morning, and may not be concluded until next week. Attorney Lindley for the state and Attorney Rosenthal, representing the defendant, will occupy the time of the court today. Attorneys Barnes and Mayer will submit briefs instead of further oral arguments. In his address to the court yesterday Attorney Lindley contended that, regardless of the alleged failure of the city council to prescribe a penalty for violation of the theater ordinance, "it was the duty of Davis, as proprietor, to protect the public."

Theater Posters Enjoined.—Because the Columbus advertises its attractions by large, "wild and lurid" signs in front of the theater building not withstanding the protests of the owners of the property, the Webers were enjoined by Judge Brentano. The complaint was made by the Northern Trust company. It is declared the big posters are "inartistic and unsightly," that they make the building look "tawdry and cheap," and scare away any prospective lessee of the premises.

Judge to Inspect Theater.—Judge Dunne will attend the matinée performance at the Columbus theater this afternoon to gain light on the injunction case pending before him in relation to the theater ordinance. "A Midnight Marriage" is the play, but the court is expected to devote his attention to brass railings, width of aisles, rows of seats, fire escapes, and other matters.

PARK FLOWER SHOW AT HAND.

Annual Exhibition of Chrysanthemums in Lincoln Greenhouses Will Be Open Tomorrow.

An unusual number of new varieties of chrysanthemums will be shown at the annual exhibition of these flowers, which is opened in Lincoln park conservatory tomorrow. The arrangement of the 7,000 plants was completed yesterday by the chief gardener.

Among the most gorgeous of the new chrysanthemums is the light yellow plant named after Mrs. Pullman. "Chebique," a magenta plant with ragged petals; "Nellie Pocket," a solid white flower; and "Iora," pink and ivory, also make their début.

One of the features of the show will be the three seedlings which were named yesterday "Kuroki," "Oku," and "Nodzu." "Gen. Kouropatkin" is also on exhibition.

The "Zeroff" trailing chrysanthemums for hanging baskets have also attracted much attention from the florists and artists who have been admitted to the greenhouses. One of the seedlings has been named Mary McGinnis, after a little girl who is much interested in the flowers.
